INSURGENTS OPEN DRIVE SOUTH OF MONTALBAN

15,000 TRAPPED, GEN. VARELA THINKS

"It's Not a Battle, It's a Pursuit," Declares Leader of One of Armies in Rebel Advance — Reports of Other Gains.

the Associated Press.

WITH THE SPANISH INSURGENTS AT RILLO, NORTH OF TERUEL, April 23.—Generalissimo Francisco Franco's forces began a new drive over a wide front south of Montalban today, capturing thousands of prisoners and conquered a large area of mountainous territory in Teruel Province.

The army, commanded by Gen. Jose Varela, drove forward after a long rest since the capture of Teruel, Feb. 22. Montalban is about [illegible] miles northeast of Teruel.

Gen. Varela said only feeble resistance was encountered in the drive through an area with few highways.

"It's not a battle," he said, "it's a pursuit."

Varela estimated 15,000 Government troops were trapped in a pocket around Sierra de Cano Or[illegible].

The advance began at dawn with heavy artillery and air bombardment of the six Government brigades and 14 groups of assault guards in the Montalban sector.

Then two columns launched a pincer movement, one advancing southward from Molinos, south of the Montalban-Alcaniz highway, and the other eastward from Fuentes Calientes, near the Teruel-Montalban road.

Among the towns captured are Aliaga and Montoro, giving the insurgents control of sections of the road leading southward toward the Teruel-Valencia highway.

REBELS CLAIM FRESH GAINS

the Associated Press.

HENDAYE, France (at the Spanish Frontier), April 23.—Spanish insurgents announced tonight they had broken through Government lines in three places in a new drive on the Teruel front.

They reported the capture of Aliaga, in the San Just Mountains 32 miles northeast of Teruel, on the front some 160 miles east of Madrid. By capturing Aliaga, insurgents said, and breaking through Government lines near Valdeconejos to the northwest and Molinos to the northeast, insurgent columns had encircled six brigades of Government militiamen.

Insurgents on this front pushed Government troops back along the highway leading to the coastal city of Castellon de la Plana.

At the same time another rebel force advanced southward along the coast toward the city despite Government counteroffensive.

Government dispatches from Barcelona, 152 miles northeast of Castellon, confirmed reports of the Teruel drive on the strategic provincial capital, new objective in Generalissimo Francisco Franco's attempt to widen the area separating Catalonia from the remainder of Government-controlled Spain. No details of the drive were given.

Rebel Columns Move South.

On the coast, two of the three insurgent columns moved southward while reinforced Government forces blocked the progress of the center column along the San Mateo highway near Villa Neuva de Al[illegible].

To aid in the Government counteroffensive, the loyalist Gen. Jose Miaja sent troops from Madrid, Granada and other points in the central Spanish territory.

The right insurgent column moved southward along secondary roads between Albocacer and Villafames. Hand-to-hand fighting was reported in the streets of Albocacer, [illegible] miles north of Castellon. At the same time the left column advanced down coast highways toward Torreblanca, eight miles south of [illegible]ala de Chivert and 20 miles northeast of Castellon.

A Day in Barcelona Treason Court: Three Deserters Sentenced to Death, Woman to 23 Years for Hiding Them

Former Madrid Private School Teacher, Officer in International Brigade, Among the Condemned.

By ROBERT OKIN,
A Staff Correspondent of the Associated Press.

BARCELONA, April 23.—The secret Court of Espionage and High Treason sentenced four men to death today—three of them soldiers charged with attempting to desert to France and the fourth a robber.

By permission of the court, this Associated Press reporter was allowed to view the three-hour proceedings, which were of increasing interest as the Government pursued its campaign to clean up the rearguard.

Three women were tried on charges of aiding the deserters. One of them, Teresa Veloy Sastre, 38 years old, of Lerida, was given a 23-year prison term for housing and concealing deserters. The other two, clerks in the Agricultural Ministry, were ordered tried in lower court on lighter charges of disaffection toward the regime.

Scene at the Trial.

Only the seven defendants sitting on a long wooden bench, the court of five judges, two of them in military uniform, the prosecutor, the defense attorney, four witnesses, two clerks, two guards and the reporter were present during the trial.

Each defendant in turn was called to the witness chair in the middle of the room, facing the curved bench where the judges—in black robes with lace cuffs—sat in swivel chairs.

To the right, at a high desk, his pomponed octagonal court cap before him, sat the prosecutor. He and the court president conducted the questioning. To the left, at another desk, sat the defense counsel. In the rear of the room, back of the defendants, sat two uniformed assault guards with rifles.

Professor of Mathematics.

Typical of the three soldier-defendants was Ricardo Lopez Garcia, 35. He wore seedy brown-striped pants, and fingered his rough, woolen trench cap as he talked quietly. He told the Court he had been a professor of German, French and mathematics in a Madrid private school before the war. He joined the International Brigade as an interpreter and was made a Lieutenant.

"You wrote Fascist propaganda, you lived with Fascists, you sympathized with Fascists?" the Court asked.

"No! No!" the defendant replied, shaking his head vigorously. He explained he did not like life in the International Brigade, that he was ill in a hospital and later went to Lerida.

Then he admitted he falsified papers which would permit him to leave, but said he was willing to return to the army if he would not be assigned to the International Brigade.

"Is it true that you were drunk most of the time?" the Court asked.

"Yes, he replied mildly, "I drink anything and I only stop when I have no money."

The other soldier-defendants in turn were shown papers which they were charged with falsifying. They protested that their only motives were to come to Barcelona and that they did not attempt to desert to France.

Women Before the Court.

The women then were heard. Senora Veloy Sastre told her story in mile-a-minute Spanish, gesticulating and using familiar idioms. She said she supplied rooms for the men in return for board money, but denied she made any attempt to conceal them. The two agricultural clerks denied they had aided the three soldier-defendants.

Witnesses were called—two doctors who testified that Lopez Garcia was a chronic alcoholic and a member of the Socialist party who said he knew one of the two clerks and knew her to be an "outside factor."

The prosecutor then summed up, outlining the charges and calling for heavy sentences. The judges relaxed, lighting pipes and cigarettes.

On Robbery Charges.

In the final case, Antonio Ricard Bean, 29, was charged with robbing a pharmacist at a pistol point. He testified he was a member of P. O. U. M., so-called "Trotsky group," and had served at the front for a year. He denied the robbery charges.

The pharmacist was called to the stand and nervously testified how Bean came into his shop, placed a pistol against his stomach and demanded his money.

The testimony finished, the prosecutor asked that the death sentence be imposed because "in wartime it is necessary for the welfare of the republic."

The court then adjourned and four hours later reconvened to announce the verdicts.

A. F. L. CONVENTION PICKETED BY ONE OF ITS OWN UNIONS

Rhode Island Teamsters Say Non-Union Driver Delivered a Desk at State Headquarters.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 23.—More than 100 delegates to the annual convention of the Rhode Island State branch of the A. F. of L. refused to go through a picket line this afternoon to attend the meeting—and all because of a desk.

Some days ago, the State headquarters of the A. F. of L. was moved to the Strand Building. A non-union truck driver for a furniture concern delivered a new desk to replace an old one.

Today the teamsters, chauffeurs, stablemen's and helpers' union, local 210, picketed their own State union's headquarters, the sandwich boards saying, of all things: "R. I. State branch A. F. of L. unfair to local 251." Later two pickets appeared at the State convention at Eagles' Hall.

It appeared a compromise might be reached before Monday. Terms being discussed were: Let an A. F. of L. teamster take the desk out of A. F. of L. headquarters, cart it back to the store, and then redeliver it in accredited fashion. The cost would be borne by the State branch treasury.

SPANISH REBELS PUT TIGHT CENSORSHIP ON NEWSPAPERS

All Publications Placed Under Cabinet Control, With Bureaus in Each Province.

By the Associated Press.

BURGOS, Spain, April 23.—The insurgent Government announced today, a new press law placing newspapers and periodicals under strict Cabinet control.

Bureaus were established in each province to enforce the measure.

The law authorized the Government to "organize and watch over the press, regulate the number and importance of periodicals, intervene in the designation of editorial directors, regulate the newspaper profession, establish and maintain censorship."

Any persons writing "directly or indirectly in a defacing manner against the nation's prestige" were declared subject to punishment.

NINE EXECUTED BY SOVIETS AS AGRICULTURAL WRECKERS

"Bucharinite Nationalists" Put to Death in Kirchizia; 30 Known April Executions.

MOSCOW, April 23.—The execution of nine convicted "Bucharinite Nationalists" in Kirchizia, Middle Asia, on charges of sabotage in agriculture was reported today in a provincial newspaper.

(Nikolai Bucharin was the leader among 21 men convicted March 12 in Moscow of plotting against the Soviet Union. Eighteen, including Bucharin, were shot.)

The Kirchizia shootings brought the total of April's known executions throughout the Soviet Union to 30. The condemned had been convicted on various charges of disrupting agriculture, embezzlement and murder.

STOCK EXCHANGE CONSIDERS ACTION IN WHITNEY CASE

Committee to Decide Whether to Take Disciplinary Steps Against J. P. Morgan & Co.

IT NOTES SECRECY ON BROKER'S THEFTS

Interested in Testimony That George Whitney and T. W. Lamont Hid Fact From Partners.

By RICHARD L. STOKES,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 23. — The Business Conduct Committee of the New York Stock Exchange, it is learned authoritatively today, is studying the testimony in the Richard Whitney case before the Securities and Exchange Commission, with a view to determining whether to undertake disciplinary proceedings against J. P. Morgan & Co., the country's foremost banking house.

The committee is particularly interested in the testimony of two senior Morgan partners, George Whitney, brother of Richard, and Thomas W. Lamont. Lamont, who returned from Europe a few days ago after an absence of three months, has been summoned to appear at the S E C hearing Tuesday in Washington.

George Whitney has related under oath that last Nov. 23 his brother told him a sudden demand had been made for the return of securities and cash owned by the gratuity fund of the exchange which was in the broker's custody, and that he was unable to comply because he had diverted these properties to his own use. George Whitney testified that he repeated his brother's confession to Lamont, and borrowed from him $1,082,000, which was used to redeem the fund's securities and replace its cash.

Protected by Silence.

The record indicates that George Whitney and Lamont kept Richard Whitney's guilt a secret even from their associates in the Morgan banking house. George Whitney did promptly suggest that his brother's brokerage firm, Richard Whitney & Co., go out of business. But there is no testimony thus far to show that either partner advised Richard Whitney to resign as a member of the Exchange or its governing committee, or even as a trustee of the fund he had looted.

Neither partner, according to the record to date, notified the Exchange that its former president had disclosed himself as an embezzler. George Whitney testified that he felt then, and feels now, that he owed no responsibility to the Stock Exchange. Although it was to himself and not officers of this institution that Richard Whitney confessed, the banker declared: "The Stock Exchange had equal opportunities with myself to find out the facts."

Neither Lamont nor George Whitney is a member of the Exchange. But J. P. Morgan & Co. is a member firm, and two of its partners, J. P. Morgan himself and his son, Junius S. Morgan, are members as individuals. Under the regulations, J. P. Morgan & Co. is answerable to the Exchange for the conduct of all its partners, whether they are members or not.

Exchange Watching Testimony.

Howland S. Davis, chairman of the Business Conduct Committee, declined to be quoted this afternoon. But a responsible officer of the Exchange made the following declarations: "As is its duty under the rules, the Business Conduct Committee is following attentively the evidence in the Richard Whitney case, for the purpose of determining whether such evidence provides any basis for disciplinary action."

The situation is complicated by the fact that the present Business Conduct Committee, under the constitution of the Exchange which was recently adopted, will pass out of existence May 16, and will be consolidated with three other committees in a body styled the Committee on Member Firms.

Its continuity is assured, however, by the fact that Davis is to continue as a salaried officer of the Exchange in some capacity not yet designated, except that he has refused to become a candidate for the presidency. He has resigned his partnership in the brokerage house of Blake Brothers & Co., effective at the end of this month.

The Committee on Member Firms, to be appointed May 9 by the president of the exchange, will consist of five regular members and two alternates, three of them

33 ENTER PLEAS IN KANSAS CITY ELECTION FRAUDS

Four Throw Themselves on Mercy of Court While 29 Others Answer "Not Guilty."

BONDS OF TWO ARE FORFEITED

One of Two Women Who Failed to Appear Surrenders Later and Her Bail Is Restored.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 23.—Four election vote fraud case defendants pleaded no contest, bonds of two others were forfeited—but the bond of one was restored later—and 29 others under indictment for election frauds conspiracy pleaded not guilty today when Judge Merrill E. Otis in the Federal Court called four cases for arraignment.

Those who pleaded nolo contendere are: Marguerite Peterson, Republican judge in the Fifth Precinct of the Twelfth Ward at the election Nov. 3, 1936; Thelma Rogers, Republican judge, and George J. O'Neal, Republican precinct captain, both in the same precinct, and Wanda E. Fitzpatrick, Republican judge in the Twenty-Seventh Precinct of the Twelfth Ward.

Judge Otis deferred sentence until after the trials of the other defendants named in the indictment with the four. Trials were set yesterday by Judge Otis for May 9, for 107 defendants who pleaded not guilty. They will be given a chance, however, to change their pleas May 4.

Two Women Forfeit Bonds.

The bonds forfeited when the defendants failed to answer after their names were called in court were those of Katheryn Wolf, Democratic judge, and Mary Elliott, Republican clerk, both officials of election in the Fifth Precinct of the Twelfth Ward at the November, 1936, election. The bonds were for $1500 each, furnished by the Central Surety & Insurance Corporation through Eugene Eisenman.

Immediately after the forfeitures, Judge Otis issued capias warrants and instructed deputy United States marshals to search for the two women. Later Katheryn Wolf surrendered, saying she had not been notified of the arraignment. Her bond was restored.

Mrs. Rose Probst, a Democratic worker in the Twentieth Precinct of the Twelfth Ward, obtained a continuance until May 4, to appear for arraignment on the indictment. James Daleo, a defense attorney, informed the court Mrs. Probst had been injured in an accident and presented a physician's certificate. Judge Otis commented the injury would not prevent her from appearing later.

When Judge Otis called the name of William M. Johnston, a Democrat judge in the Twentieth Precinct of the Twelfth Ward, the defendant failed to answer. Randall Wilson, first assistant United States District Attorney, informed the judge Johnston was under arrest at Yakima, Wash., and would be returned to Kansas City. Judge Otis passed his case until May 4.

Move to Bar Woman's Trial.

The first case called was that charging nine defendants from the fifth precinct of the Twelfth Ward, of which Mrs. Frances S. Ryan, Pendergast organization boss of the Twelfth Ward, is a defendant. Daleo presented pleas in abatement as to her, contending to try her again on charges of vote fraud conspiracy would place her in double jeopardy. The Court set a hearing on the pleas in abatement for 9:30 a. m. Thursday.

Daleo also presented pleas in abatement and demurrers and motions to quash the indictment as to Catherine Brimsdon, a Democratic judge; Irene Mulloy, Democratic clerk, and William J. Mulloy Jr., a Democratic precinct captain. Without argument Judge Otis overruled the pleas and demurrer and motion to quash. The Court allowed an exception.

"I am going to dispose of all (voting fraud) cases as rapidly as I can," the Judge said. "I am going to show all consideration possible, but my docket is going to be cleared, even if it takes all summer to do it."

Judge Otis said he would ask Maurice M. Milligan, United States District Attorney, to elect from time to time in the course of the trials this summer, which two cases he would try next. He said that was fair to the defense.

The defendants indicted from the twentieth precinct of the Twelfth Ward who pleaded not guilty are: John Francis Harnett, Demo-

BODIES OF 45 MEN TAKEN FROM VIRGINIA MOUNTAIN MINE WRECKED BY BLAST

RESCUE CREWS WORK ALL DAY IN FURNACE-LIKE AIR

DEBRIS "SPOUTED AS FROM CANNON"

Indications Workers Died Instantly; Victims From Three States; Dust Probable Cause; Autos Jam Highways at Scene.

By the Associated Press.

GRUNDY, Va., April 23.—Forty-five charred bodies of miners were taken from the Keen Mountain mine of the Red Jacket Coal Company today, victims of the volcano-like explosions which greeted the night shift as it entered the mine late yesterday, United States Bureau of Mines officials said no other bodies were in the "drifts."

The explosion occurred only a few minutes after mine cars carrying the night shift had gone into the mine, which is not deep but which extends far back under the mountain. Some witnesses said there were two separate explosions and others said three. A near-panic was created in the commissary of another coal company a mile away when the second blast shook merchandise off the shelves. C. P. Kelly, chief mine inspector of the State Department of Labor, said: "All the evidence indicates the underground crew died instantly." He expressed the opinion the blasts were caused by dust.

State Police Sergt. P. F. Sprenger, an eye-witness, who said the whole top of the mountain looked as if it was coming off, told of seeing an automobile containing three boys almost blown off the highway. The youths followed him up the mountain.

Grim Work by Rescuers.

Mine Superintendent E. R. Kirby, one of the first to enter the dangerous tunnels, took a lead in the rescue work, which began almost immediately after the explosions.

Sweating, sooty-faced members of mine rescue squads worked all day in 30-minute relays in the furnace-like atmosphere until they had explored every avenue of the big mine. Two members were overcome by bad air, which had to be blown out before the final group of bodies could be removed.

For many hours the crews worked grimly, without hope of finding life among the victims trapped by the blasts but unwilling to cease their efforts until every miner had been accounted for. Debris shaken loose by the blasts and hot gases that lingered in the shafts impeded their work.

Relatives Watch Workers.

Relatives watched the 400 rescue workers, from three states, hopeful that some of the men had survived, but only bodies came up from the mine.

A miner named Bill Smith, who had been helping remove bodies down the four-mile narrow gauge railroad for many hours, paused long enough to relate that he was standing 50 feet from the mouth of the mine when he heard a roar and saw fire belched from the mountain.

"The blast was away from me, and that's why I didn't get hurt," he said. "I saw coal-carrying cars, motors, slate and timber spouted as if from a cannon."

He did not finish his story. Another load of bodies was ready to go down the incline to await identification.

Mike Lilly said he missed death by the two minutes it took for him to get another mine lamp when his refused to burn. He said he saw two men hurled 60 feet. "I turned and ran like hell," he said.

Miners' relatives were kept away from the mine entrance during the night by State police. Mrs. J. L. Blevins was the only wife who definitely knew the fate of her husband before daylight. He had been

Vienna Jews Forced to Picket Own Shops With Signs: "Don't Buy"

Hitler Youths Hang Anti-Semitic Placards From Necks of Store Patrons as Nazis Purge National Library of Forbidden Books.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, April 23.—Jews in Vienna were forced today to picket their own stores with signs reading, "Don't Buy from Jews."

Jewish shopkeepers were made to hold up the signs at arm's length. In some instances for 40 minutes or longer.

Draped about the necks of persons found in Jewish establishments were placards proclaiming: "This stupid, common person still buys at Jewish stores."

Hundreds of brown-shirted Hitler Youths began a purge of the famous Austrian National Library.

The chief librarian was supplied with a list of proscribed "non-Aryan" works to be removed from the magnificent collection of 1,200,000 volumes, and burned.

Officials seeking books outlawed by the Nazis visited a private Viennese collection.

Public bookships already have conducted their own purge. Among those destroyed or relegated to cellars were the works of Thomas Mann, Stefan Zweig, Jacob Wassermann and Vicki Baum.

Patrons found in some stores were made to sit in the establishments after closing hours.

Store owners told police they were prevented from enforcing the 7 p. m. closing regulations by Nazi pickets. They thereupon were threatened with arrest and a fine.

Meanwhile, it was announced that two of Max Reinhardt's fixtures at the Salzburg Festival would be eliminated this season.

Goethe's "Egmont" will replace "Faust," and some medieval morality plays will be substituted for "Everey Man."

Jewish impresarios can do no business. The many Jewish actors and singers in Vienna are out of work.

Foreign music students, among them a number of Americans, seem to have stopped taking lessons. They give as the reasons that their professors are non-Aryans, and therefore can no longer place them in the Vienna opera, or that the political situation has ended the feeling of security they need for abstract study.

Baron Alfons Rothschild, one of Austrian Germany's wealthiest men, lost three big estates today in proceedings before a court in Gaming, Lower Austria. The court decided that the Baron, reported to have fled the country, had forfeited the property. It held that the estates, at Waidhofen an der Ybbs, Steinbach and Landau, had "become property of the Reich to repay damages Rothschild inflicted on the former Austrian State Treasury."

The court named a trustee for the properties.

The newspaper Weltblatt reported that the munitions magnate, Fritz Mandl, also had fled from the country.

An official administrator has been named for Mandl's property until "he appears personally before the court."

The Weltblatt said Mandle left the country owing about $70,000 in back taxes.

In their brief weeks of domination, the Nazis have nearly finished their task of purging Austrian music and theaters of "non-German" influences.

MUSSOLINI HAS "CORDIAL" TALK WITH HORE-BELISHA

British War Minister, on Way Home From Malta, Calls on Italian Premier.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, April 23.—Premier Mussolini made another move toward Anglo-Italian reconciliation today by receiving British War Minister Leslie Hore-Belisha for a short but "cordial" conversation.

Significance was attached to the meeting in Mussolini's Palazzo Venezia because Hore-Belisha was on his way home from inspecting British defenses in Malta which have been a cause of friction between Britain and Italy, and because Hore-Belisha was the first British Cabinet member Mussolini had received since June, 1935, when Anthony Eden tried and failed to induce Il Duce not to make war on Ethiopia.

At a luncheon given by Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano for Hore-Belisha, the War Minister talked with Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, one of the major military figures who aided Mussolini to defy Britain in Africa.

GANDHI DESPONDENT, PREDICTS OWN DEATH IN ABOUT A YEAR

Mahatma Writes: "I Have Detected in Me a Flaw Unworthy of a Votary of Truth."

By the Associated Press.

BOMBAY, April 23.—Frail, despondent Mohandas K. Gandhi, who has led India's millions along the troublesome road toward political autonomy, has predicted his own early death.

"My days are numbered," the 68-year-old Mahatma wrote in the newspaper Harijan. "I am not likely to live very long—perhaps a year or a little more.

"For the first time in 50 years I find myself in the slough of despond. All about me is darkness; I am praying for lights. . . . I have detected in me a flaw which is unworthy of a votary of truth."

Ill for several months, Gandhi is in the midst of a fight for freedom of political prisoners in Bengal Province. Despite his illness, he observed a day-long fast April 7, during "national week."

DAYLIGHT SAVING BEGINS

New Time Schedule in Many Cities Effective at 2 A. M. Today.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Daylight saving time goes into effect in 17 states at 2 a. m. tomorrow, to continue to Sept. 25.

The Merchants' Association of New York estimates daylight saving time also will be observed by 3,000,000 persons in Canada and 112,000,000 in Europe.

CUSTOMER SHOOTS BARTENDER TO DEATH

Ex-Convict Arrested Near Saloon Says It Was Accident.

Lewis Pedretti, bartender in a saloon at 1835 North Garrison avenue, was shot and killed in the saloon last night by Thomas Kilgore, an ex-convict, of 2937 Madison street, who at first denied the shooting and then admitted it, explaining a pistol he was carrying was discharged accidentally as he started to show it to Pedretti.

At City Hospital, Pedretti, 38 years old, was pronounced dead of a bullet wound of the heart.

Kilgore, arrested at Garrison and Laflin avenue, a block from the saloon, told police after questioning that he "'got scared and ran" after the shooting and asserted Pedretti was a friend and had expressed a wish to see Kilgore's pistol, a "vest pocket," weapon of .22-caliber.

The pistol was found in the yard of a house at 2521 Coleman avenue, where Kilgore told police he had thrown it. He said he had been to a party before going to the saloon and had had a "a few drinks."

Kilgore said he had served 17 months of a two-year sentence at Algoa Farms Reformatory, assessed in 1935 for robbery and auto theft.

Mrs. Eva Kobylinski, 1730 North Grand boulevard, told a reporter for the Post-Dispatch she was seated at the bar when Kilgore took a seat beside her, drew a revolver. When the bartender walked in front of them, Kilgore raised the weapon and held it against the man's chest, she said.

Pedretti jokingly said, "Go ahead, shoot me," the woman related. Kilgore then fired one shot and ran out, she said.

ROOSEVELT ON WEEK-END CRUISE DOWN THE POTOMAC

JAPANESE REPORT ADVANCE IN NEW SHANTUNG DRIVE

FURIOUS FIGHTING NEAR TAIERHCHWANG

Defenders Assert Invaders' Offensive Has Been Thrown Back in This Sector.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, April 24 (Sunday).—A Japanese army spokesman said today the Rising Sun flag had been carried across the border into Kiangsu Province when the reorganized Japanese offensive drove a deep wedge into Chinese lines in Southern Shantung.

The Japanese salient, he said, was a few miles east of Taierhchwang where the invaders suffered a smashing defeat April 6 after they had occupied the city and crossed the border into Kiangsu for the first time from the North.

Twenty thousand Chinese were reported retreating in the direction of Pihsien, about eight miles from the Lunghai Railway, vital East-West line, which the Japanese have been trying to reach for months.

Fighting Near Taierhchwang.

The Chinese asserted the Japanese offensive suffered a serious setback in bitter fighting north of Taierhchwang where 5000 Japanese troops who escaped from besieged Yihsien attempted to join the main column advancing from Lini for a concerted drive southward.

They said two small villages became the scene of a pitched battle, with Chinese reinforcements arriving in time to turn the Japanese lines completely. The Chinese Twenty-sixth Army, which defeated the Japanese at Taierhchwang, bore the brunt of the fighting.

To the east of this sector, the Chinese, believed to number about 200,000, launched a counter offensive northward along both banks of the Yi River. They insisted they still were holding firm along the 30-mile front south and southwest of Lini.

Chinese Active in Other Areas.

The Chinese also reported the recapture of some 15 towns and cities in Shansi, North Honan and Hopeh provinces during the last four days as a result of Japanese withdrawal of troops for the Shantung drive.

With the fighting in Shantung spread over a wide area, the Chinese strategy generally seemed to be to avoid frontal attacks as far as possible and seek openings for quick flank attacks. They also appeared to be trying to draw the Japanese deeper into the interior before making a full stand.

Chinese army headquarters at Hankow said their army in Shantung was continuing to move up reinforcements and make the utmost preparations. The fighting in this area in the last three days, according to Chinese headquarters, is merely a preliminary to the decisive action which is expected to take place in the near future.

Four-Way Japanese Campaign.

Four inter-related Japanese operations now are discernible on the south Shantung front:

1. A drive from Lini southwestward down the main highway toward Taierhchwang.
2. A thrust due south from Lini along the motor road through Tancheng with Sinanchen, on the Lunghai Railway, as its objective.
3. An independent operation southward from Changcheng, midway between Lini aand Taierhchwang.
4. A drive along the spur line from Yihsien toward Taierhchwang.

The main clash, foreign military experts believe, will be along a 30-mile front from Taierhchwang to Tancheng, roughly 20 miles north of the Lunghai. A secondary line of defense was reported already established between the points.

BODIES OF 45 MEN TAKEN OUT AFTER MINE EXPLOSION

decapitated by a mine motor hurled down the mountain side.

Autos Jam Highways.

Automobiles jammed the highways as the rescue work went on and State police strung ropes in front of the tipple so that, those carrying food to the tired workers could go and come. The line of automobiles extended for miles on both sides of the highway.

The payroll office was besieged for names of the dead and the missing. Townspeople at Grundy, gathered with bowed heads as the Salvation Army held a prayer service for the victims.

The single party telephone line to the mine office was busy continuously. Persons from far points made inquiry of relatives.

It was a steep ascent to the mine entrance but many persons went up to offer their services and to encourage workers.

Inspector Kelly said Federal, State and mine officials would make a full investigation. The mine was a new one, opened last November, and was described as up-to-date in every respect.

First Major Disaster in Field.

This is the first major mine disaster in the newly-developed field in Buchanan County.

The mine was operating with about 300 men at the time of the disaster—only about one-third of capacity. A potential producer of 7000 tons of coal per day, the average lately had been 2000 tons.

George White, an appliance company safety worker in the Virginia-West Virginia coal fields, comparing the Red Jacket explosion with others in the area over a period of several years, said the roof, sidewalls and slate connections were far above the average and did not crumble as in other mines. He added, however, that he had never seen carbon monoxide so bad in any mine. Re-establishing air channels delayed removal of the bodies, but Mingo Keadle, vice-president of the Red Jacket Co., said air was circulated through all passages early in the day.

The Dead and the Injured.

Individual funerals were planned for the victims, who were listed as: Ernest Boyd, Hammond Varney, Orville Street, Coy Reed, J. L. Blevins, Kilmer Patrick, Ed Gilley, Claud Dollar, J. W. Combs, Glenn Ratcliff, Orville Norris, F. Buckler, Marcus Thacker, O. C. Hitchcock, Charlie Keen, W. H. Grant, Walker Sutherland, Aneill Owens, W. E. Willis, Lee Marshall, Walker Solomon, Kendrick Sullivan, Drew Howard, E. W. Ellem and Charles Miller. E. H. Fisk, R. H. Gentry, Charlie King, Granville Goins, Harvey King, John Rowe, Smith Harrington, D. E. Compton and his brother, John Compton, Frank Ratcliff, Harper Lester, Cecil Guild, Floyd Compton and his son, F. S. Compton; Tom May and his twin, Lonnie May; Tom Ratcliff, Orville Collins, Robert Watson and Luther Ziemore.

J. W. Elam and Clarence Combs, caught at the mine entrance, were in serious condition from burns in a Richlands Hospital, and Ed Harris was suffering from several broken ribs.

All were natives of the area or from nearby West Virginia and Kentucky—also the home of the rescue workers.

The two funeral homes in the little town of Richlands had to call for assistance from neighboring towns. The miners lived in a cluster of 75 houses regarded here as a "model," some of them being two stories and others bungalows, with a central heating plant.

William Green Sends Telegrams of Sympathy for Miners.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, sent telegrams today to E. J. Shave, secretary of the Virginia Federation of Labor, at Hampton, and Thomas Cairns, president of the West Virginia Federation of Labor at Charleston, saying:

"Please convey my heartfelt sympathy to the families of those who lost their lives in the shocking mine explosion at Grundy. Every miner in the country shares the grief of the bereaved."

W P A INVESTIGATING PENNSYLVANIA ROW

Coercion and Works Contracts Charges Between Guffey-Lewis and Earle Factions.

PHILADELPHIA, April 23.—John B. Kelly, Democratic city chairman, said today he had turned over to the W P A "considerable data" to support his charges that Pennsylvania W P A workers were being threatened with dismissal if they did not support the Democratic primary ticket backed by Senator Joseph E. Guffey.

But, Kelly asserted, "the mass of information" was withheld. He explained: "This information is accompanied by affidavits. I am again requesting that the Federal Bureau of Investigation investigate these charges."

Kelly made his charges in a telegram yesterday to President Roosevelt. The W P A ordered an investigation, a representative visiting Kelly today.

The warring factions, each vowing support of the New Deal, are shouting counter accusations of "political coercion" in relief and public works.

From the Guffey side have come charges that Kelly himself is guilty of the sort of "coercion" he lays to the Senator. The counter blasts topped off a week's cross-fire of accusations that brought mention of Gov. George H. Earle's private income and a Republican demand for his resignation.

Break Over Governorship.

Guffey, long a Democratic power in Pennsylvania, broke with the State committee over its slating of Charles Alvin Jones, Pittsburgh lawyer, for the gubernatorial nomination at the May 17 primary. Guffey threw his support to Lieutenant-Governor Thomas Kennedy, who is backed for the governorship by John L. Lewis, C I O leader.

Gov. Earle — Guffey's running mate four years ago in the Democratic victory that broke a 40-year period of Republican control—became the State committee's choice for United States Senator. The Guffey-Lewis forces selected Republican-elected Mayor S. Davis Wilson as Earle' opponent.

The bitter factional fight may be accounted for, in part, by the stakes—control of the big Pennsylvania delegation at the 1940 Democratic national convention, State and Federal patronage, and the political lives of the individuals involved.

Early in the campaign Guffey charged that pressure was being applied to the 27,000 State jobholders to support the State committee's Earle-Jones slate. Earle, who had pledged there would be no political coercion in what he termed "a family argument," ordered a State investigation. The charges were declared to be without foundation.

Contract Investigation.

The W P A inquiry in Philadelphia is the second started during the week. Attorney-General Charles J. Margiotti, himself a Democratic candidate for the governorship, began an investigation of the State Authority's $65,000,000 building construction program.

Margiotti acted after Mayor Wilson demanded an explanation of $30,000 in loans he said Governor Earle had received from Matthew H. McCloskey, Philadelphia contractor and co-leader with Kelly of the Philadelphia Democratic organization. McCloskey has been awarded more than $9,000,000 of Authority contracts.

Governor Earle, terming Wilson a "turncoat hatchet man," said McCloskey, a long-time personal friend, lent him money in 1935 and 1936 and that only $6000 remained unpaid. Wilson reported that McCloskey "has been parading the fact 'I own you (Earle) body and soul.'" Margiotti said his State Authority inquiry would include contracts and appointments of building inspectors but that he was without authority to question the Governor.

Further complicating the Democratic fight is a split between rival labor organizations. The Pennsylvania Industrial Council, formed by C I O unions, is supporting Kennedy, who is secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers. The Pennsylvania Federation of Labor State unit of the A. F. of L. is backing the Earle-Jones ticket.

Meanwhile, the Republican campaign, with former Governor Gifford Pinchot once more, at 72, seeking the nomination against Judge Arthur H. James, of Pittston, near Wilkes-Barre, has been marked by spirited campaigning.

STOCK EXCHANGE CONSIDERS ACTION IN WHITNEY CASE

members of the board of governors. It will take over the business hitherto handled by the Committees on Business Conduct, Quotations and Commissions, Customers' Men and Foreign Business. The present members of the Business Conduct Committee, in addition to chairman Davis, are: Allen L. Lindley, vice-chairman, a special partner of Shields & Co.; Maurice L. Farrell, of F. S. Smithers & Co.; Frank R. Hope of Paine, Webber & Co.; L. Martin Richmond of Moore & Schley; Robert L. Stott of Wagner, Stott & Co., and Blair S. Williams of Blair S. Williams & Co.

Method of Procedure.

Should the Business Conduct Committee or its successor, conclude that it is necessary to bring charges, these, as in Richard Whitney's own case, will be laid before the Board of Governors. If the Board of Governors decides that the accusations justify such action, a trial will be held. Should the charges be sustained, J. P. Morgan & Co. could be suspended from membership for a term of years, or expelled from the Stock Exchange.

District Attorney Dewey's office knew weeks ago, it was disclosed this afternoon, that Thomas W. Lamont supplied the money used to bail Richard Whitney out of the gratuity fund embezzlement. The fact was not mentioned in the review of the case, which Dewey, prior to the broker's sentencing, submitted to Judge Owen W. Bohan of the Court of General Sessions.

"It was not germane to Whitney's larceny from the Sheldon estate," explained Assistant District Attorney Sewell T. Tyng, who had charge of the Whitney case under this indictment.

DALADIER STARTS RULE BY DECREE IN FRANCE THIS WEEK

Calls "Inner Council" for Conference Before Putting Emergency Program Up to Cabinet.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 23. — Premier Edouard Daladier, moving to bolster the sagging franc and to build a strong international position for France, scheduled today a week of conferences and gave notice he was ready to make his first use of decree powers.

To prevent further unfavorable developments in foreign exchange, Daladier moved up a Cabinet meeting from Tuesday to Monday and announced that a plan for economic and financial rehabilitation by decree had been prepared.

The franc fell to 166.75 to the pound sterling in London trading, or 3 per cent off yesterday's Paris closing.

"Inner Council" to Meet.

Daladier and five of his ministers, who form the "Inner Council," will meet Monday morning for a final review of the financial-economic plan before presenting it to President Albert Lebrun and the rest of the Daladier Cabinet.

By that time, Daladier hoped to have conferred with British War Minister Leslie Hore-Belisha as a preliminary to talks in London on military and political co-operation between Britain and France.

Before going ahead with plans to borrow money from the people for defense and Government operation, Daladier sought to build up national morale.

Business circles expressed concern over the possible nature of the financial decrees. A group of bankers was reported to have told Finance Minister Paul Marchandeau that a national defense bond issue could not be floated in France at this time.

Alien Plotters Warned.

Meanwhile, the Government let it be known that France no longer could be the setting for foreign plotting. The national police warned that foreigners caught in subversive conspiracies or interfering with French politics would be promptly expelled.

The warning followed an announcement that 20 White Russians had been ordered to leave France within eight days and that similar proceedings had been started against 200 other foreigners.

Several Germans in the Metz and Thionville frontier district were ordered out of the country, including an engineer named Lauer, accused of being a Nazi propagandist.

Minister of Interior Albert Sarraut announced he would propose a decree soon to increase penalties against undesirable foreigners refusing to obey expulsion orders and to make persons harboring unwelcome aliens liable to imprisonment.

PROSECUTOR TOLD TO BOOK OR RELEASE "BUGS" MORAN

Court Gives Instructions as to Man Held for Questioning About Counterfeiting.

CHICAGO, April 23.—The Criminal Court instructed the State's Attorney's office today to book or release by 11 p. m. George (Bugs) Moran and Frank Parker, prohibition era figures held for questioning about a counterfeiting plot.

Capt. Daniel Gilbert of the Prosecutor's police informed Chief Justice Cornelius J. Harrington that Parker was linked with the scheme but that he had nothing thus far on Moran. Gilbert said out-of-state residents would be interviewed and he expected developments.

Investigators searched the North Side of the city for a printing plant where they thought more than $1,000,000 of spurious traveler's checks were produced. Seven others were arrested here and three in Pittsburgh.

ONE BIG UNION IS URGED BY PRINTERS' PRESIDENT

Charles P. Howard Says Peace Depends on Agreement Between A. F. of L. and C I O.

By the Associated Press.

UTICA, N. Y., April 23.—Merger of all labor unions into one large union was urged today by Charles P. Howard of Indianapolis, president of the International Typographical Union. He spoke at the opening of the fortieth semi-annual convention of the Empire Typographical Conference.

Howard discussed the objectives of the A. F. of L., C I O and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, and said "more would be accomplished if all three merged.

"The differences which have arisen between the two leading organizations tend to divide them," he said. "These will become more serious as time goes on unless the leaders realize that the rank and file want unity.

"If the desire of the vast majority of labor for peace is to be realized, some basis for agreement between the C I O and the A. F. of L. must be reached."

SPANISH INSURGENTS OPEN NEW DRIVE SOUTH OF MONTALBAN

decreed mobilization of all men between the ages of 18 and 45 to strengthen the Government defenses.

(Government military dispatches from Bourg Madame, on the French-Spanish border, said 2000 insurgent troops had been trapped in a Pyrenees pass and wiped out by 80 Government gunners operating from Maladetta Mountain. The attack took place in a ravine below Viella. Other insurgents continued to hold the Aran valley, but the Forty-third Division, cut off from the main Government army a few days ago, restored its communication lines and presented a sudden threat to the insurgent rearguard. Reinforced Government defenses slowed the insurgent advance along the frontier of Andorra toward Seo de Urgel.)

Insurgent efforts to blast Government barricades at Tortosa proved ineffectual due principally to a lack of bridges across the swollen River Ebro.

Results of Week's Fighting.

A week of desultory fighting on the 200-mile Catalonian front resulted in few important changes except in the extreme north along the French border where the insurgents won the chief frontier passes.

In the center, the lines remained virtually the same, with both sides jockeying for positions east of Balaguer and Lerida.

The insurgents slightly increased the stretch of coastline they hold in Eastern Spain. They now dominate an area about 45 miles wide from the mouth of the River Ebro to Alcala de Chivert.

The greatest potential danger for the Government, military observers said, lay in the continuing insurgent drive along the Spanish frontier toward Seo de Urgel and Puigcerda, important points in Catalonia's northern defenses.

NAZI LEADERS MEET IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA

Sudeten Germans Cheer Demands for Equality With Czechs.

By the Associated Press.

KARLOVY VARY, Czechoslovakia, April 23.—A congress of Nazi Sudeten German leaders met behind closed doors here today and cheered demands for equality of this nation's 3,500,000 Germans with the Czechs.

The meeting was expected to culminate tomorrow in an important declaration by Konrad Henlein, Czech-German leader, voicing a demand for autonomy.

Deputy Ernst Kundt, parliamentary floor leader for the Sudeten German party, paved the way for such a demand by telling the Congress today: "We reject the idea of a minority status. We want our position to be exactly the same as that of the Czech nation."

He closed menacingly with an implied reference to Adolf Hitler, who has promised protection to Germans beyond Germany's borders.

"We belong to a great nation which is led by a great man," he said. "It has recovered its inner strength and confidence."

The convention closely resembled similar Nazi performances in Germany, with shouts of "Heil," snappy salutes and clicking of heels. The only exception was that the Nazi swastika was replaced by the letters S. D. P. (Sudeten Deutsche partie) on a spadelike field of white on a background of red.

Czechs officials watched the outcome of the meeting closely, since it came in the midst of a barrage of anti-Czech propaganda in newspapers in neighboring countries—Germany, Poland and Hungary.

Henlein's representative, Deputy Karl Hermann Frank, opened today's session with a speech reviewing the Austrian-German union and the united German movement in Czechoslovakia. He was followed by Kundt, who, in voicing a demand for autonomy, declared that Premier Milan Hodza's proposed grant of additional minority rights to Germans in Czechoslovakia was wholl yinadequate.

Later, Henlein himself appeared briefly, to be greeted by wild cheering.

Czechoslovakia's 186,000 Jews, especially those living in Sudeten German sections, watched with special anxiety. If the Germans are granted autonomy, it is taken for granted they will apply anti-Jewish measures in all communities under their control. Jews in such communities already are feeling the effect of a silent boycott against their businesses.

SOCIALISTS SCENT WAR IN ROOSEVELT POLICIES

Convention Puts Plank in National Platform Assailing His Type of Liberalism.

By the Associated Press.

KENOSHA, Wis., April 23.—Delegates to the Socialist party's national convention adopted today an anti-war resolution declaring "Roosevelt liberalism, like Wisconsin liberalism, is a prelude to war, part of a system to charm the workers by a few concessions to lay down their lives for capitalism."

Delegates leaped to their feet cheering as the resolution was read and promptly adopted it by unanimous vote.

"The struggle against war must be converted into a political struggle against Roosevelt and his henchmen," the resolution said. "The struggle must be converted positively into a broad political movement for an anti-war program against pro-war New Dealers."

The resolution called upon the working class to reject the "Communist proposal for a collective security program."

The resolution also urges:

Immediate withdrawal of American ships and Marines from Chinese territory and the evacuation of American nationals; a people's boycott of Japanese goods; immediate lifting "of the embargo now directed against the Loyalist Government in Spain"; opposition to the new Army and Navy bills; national and international action toward disarmament; refusal to vote the military budget; abolition of military training in high schools and removal of military supervision from the C C C and all civilian institutions; a Constitutional amendment providing for a war referendum; abandonment by the United States of "all imperialist ventures" in Latin America; independence for American colonial possessions; international co-operation to lessen economic friction between nations.

The resolution advocates that should war threaten despite those efforts, the workers bring whatever pressure they can—including the general strike—to prevent its outbreak.

Two plans dealing with formation of a national farm-labor party were placed before the convention. One was offered by the New York delegation, the other by the Michigan group.

R. BEBEE INQUEST ERDICT WAITS ON POLICE TESTIMONY

Officers Summoned to Give Dying Man's Explanation That He Shot Self Accidentally.

IS 'PERSONAL AID' AND MAID HEARD

Attendant Tells of Hearing Pistol and Finding Illegal Operation Specialist Wounded in Office.

The inquest in the death of Dr. Bert P. Bebee, who specialized in illegal operations, will be resumed Tuesday, when policemen are expected to testify that before he died of a gunshot wound Friday afternoon at St. Anthony's Hospital he told them he had shot himself accidentally.

Policemen summoned to the hospital reported Dr. Bebee said he was examining a revolver preparatory to cleaning it when ot was discharged. The bullet pierced the chest, striking the heart, and lodged in a window sash in his office at 3214 South Grand boulevard.

At the opening of the inquest yesterday, Palmer Branham, who called himself the "personal aid" of the physician, said he was in a room across the hall from his office at 2:15 p. m. when he heard a shot. He ran to Dr. Bebee's side, he said, finding him collapsed in a chair at his desk with the revolver in his lap. Branham summoned a doctor and then, with the aid of Irene Hart, Negro office maid, whom he called, dressed the wound.

"Oh, Boy" All He Said.

He said that when he asked Dr. Bebee what had happened, his employer groaned and said, "Oh, boy," but gave no explanation of the manner in which he had suffered the wound. Dr. Bebee died at 5 o'clock at the hospital, to which he was taken after the physician summoned by Branham had arrived.

Dr. Bebee, 58 years old and partially deprived of the use of his legs by an illness, had lived with Branham at 7552 Buckingham drive, Clayton, since last February, the witness said. Branham had been employed by him for six years, his chief duty being to assist him from place to place.

Branham testified that when Dr. Bebee came to live with him the physician gave him an insurance policy for "a couple of thousand dollars," remarking that it would provide the money to bury him.

Negro Maid's Testimony.

Irene Hart, the only other witness heard yesterday, testified that she was across the hall when she heard the shot in Dr. Bebee's office. She said she saw Branham run to the office and a few minutes later she was summoned.

Dr. Bebee was divorced from his fourth wife in 1925. He had been arrested many times for questioning about deaths of his patients, but had never been convicted. Last February, however, he was named in two felony indictments growing out of the deaths of Miss Olive A. Cash, 2809 Missouri avenue, in his office, and of Miss Lena Ledford, East Alton grade school teacher, in an Alton hospital. At the same time Health Commissioner Joseph F. Bredeck made formal recommendation to the State Board of Health that his license to practice be revoked.

Miss Cash, 35, died in Dr. Bebee's office under an anesthetic and was buried under a certificate signed by him in which he gave cause of death as acute heart disease with bronchial asthma as a contributing cause. For this he was charged in the indictment with attempting to perform an illegal operation, and in a separate warrant with making a false death certificate.

In the case of Miss Ledford, who died of pneumonia, he was charged with manslaughter on the testimony of a man who said he had taken her to Dr. Bebee's office and paid him to perform an illegal operation.

In November, 1932, Dr. Bebee was named in a Coroner's verdict of homicide in the death of Mrs. Rose Hoffman from peritonitis resulting from an illegal operation, but he was exonerated later. Julius N. Stean, his ex-convict office assistant, pleaded guilty of manslaughter and was fined $500.

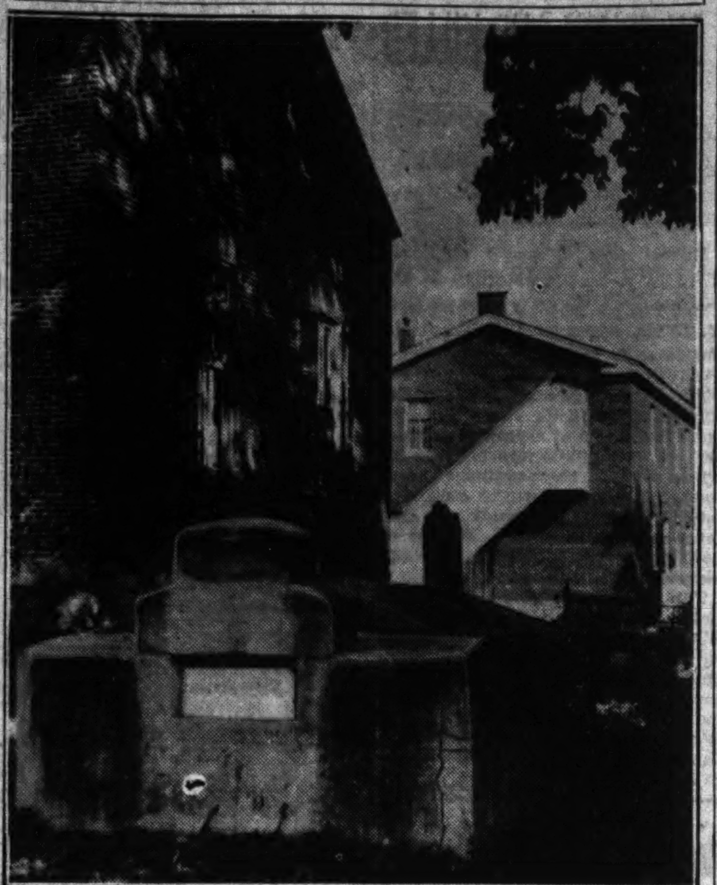
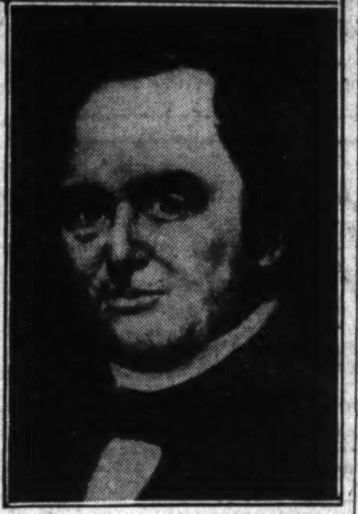
The Tomb a Texan Heard Was Neglected



TOMB of MOSES AUSTIN, at Potosi, Mo., from which representatives of the Texas Historical and Landmark Commission tried to remove his remains to Texas. Below, a portrait of AUSTIN.



NEW ROW STARTS OVER MOSES AUSTIN'S GRAVE

Potosi Seethes When Historian Says He Heard Site Had Been Neglected.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
POTOSI, Mo., April 23.—Public indignation, aroused yesterday when an undertaker employed by the Texas Historical and Landmark Commission made an unsuccessful attempt to remove the body of Moses Austin from its 117-year-old grave here to the State Cemetery at Austin, Tex., increased today with the statement by L. W. Kemp of Houston, chairman of the advisory board of Texas Historians, that he had been told the grave was not in the best condition and that it "reflected somewhat on Texas."

First to take issue with the statement, made by Kemp in announcing that no legal steps would be taken to carry out plans for removal of the body of the father of Stephen Fuller Austin, "founder of Texas," was Mayor W. L. Edmonds.

Notified by townsmen who heard the ring of pick and shovel at the stone and concrete vault in the old Presbyterian Cemetery early Thursday morning, Mayor Edmonds quickly stopped the three Negro workmen employed by the undertaker and immediately called the City Council into special session.

Remembers the Alamo.

The Council as promptly issued an order denying permission to exhume the body from the cemetery, over which it has control, and served notice on the Texan that it would resist any legal efforts to obtain the body with the same determination that marked the defense of the Alamo.

"Who do they think they are?" asked the irate Mayor when he read of the Texan's dissatisfaction with the condition of the vault in which lies the body of Potosi's founder. "It was in excellent condition until their workmen tore out the side of the vault Thursday."

"Hundreds of persons, incloding history scholars, visit the place each year and it always has been a source of pride to the town. Last February, the Civic League of Potosi (a women's organization) began raising funds for a bronze plaque to place at the grave, giving a comprehensive identification of the founder of Potosi.

Recalls Colonization of Texas.

"If it hadn't been for Moses Austin's plan for colonizing Texas with Anglo-Americans, a project carried out by his son, Texas would still be part of Mexico."

Among others who were so displeased at the suggested removal of the body that he was preparing to organize a protest to Gov. Stark, was Dr. Ralph P. Bieber, associate professor of history at Washington University, St. Louis. He pointed out that the body of Daniel Boone had been removed from its grave near Marthasville, Warren County, in September, 1845, before protest could be made against the request of the Kentucky Legislature which provided for burial at Frankfort, Ky. All that remains at the Marthasville grave site is a "Daniel Boone grave monument," indicated on State highway maps as a "point of interest."

Coming to Missouri in 1797, Austin arrived some two years before Boone, Dr. Bieber pointed out, referring to the Austin papers, compiled by Eugene C. Barker, professor of history at the University of Texas, which include letters in possession of the Missouri Historical Society.

Built Smelter at Potosi.

Obtaining a grant from the Spanish Government, which then controlled the Southeast Missouri lead lands, Moses Austin, who had left his home in Connecticut to become a successful merchant in Pennsylvania and lead mine operator in Virginia, established the first scientific smelter at Mine a Burton, the site of Potosi. In 1816, he moved to Herculaneum, favored as a site for economical construction of a shot tower because of its high bluffs.

A man of wealth in pioneer days, Austin reckoned his worth at $160,000 in 1812 and was one of the founders of the Bank of St. Louis which failed with the panic of 1819, leaving him, as he wrote from St. Louis to James Bryant, husband of his daughter, Emily, "in a most unpleasant situation without a dollar to get a shirt washed."

It was in an effort to re-establish himself that he obtained permission from the Spanish Governor at San Antonio, Tex., to establish a colony of 300 American families. Upon his return to Missouri, however, he died of pneumonia June 10, 1821, at the home of his daughter at Hazel Run, four miles northeast of Bonne Terre. His son carried out his plan, was a leader in the fight for Texas independence and was buried in the State Cemetery at the capital which bears his name.

OVERCOME BY ICEBOX FUMES

William Kennedy, an insurance salesman, was overcome yesterday by fumes from the electric refrigerator in his flat, 3705 Hydraulic avenue. Firemen used an inhalator for half an hour to revive him.

Kennedy, sleeping in a bedroom, was overcome when the refrigerating gas leaked from a valve while a repair man, William Friedrich, 3404 Cambridge avenue, Maplewood, was working on the refrigerator. Friedrich, affected by the gas, left the house and notified neighbors, who carried out Kennedy.

JUDGE ENDS TRIAL OF KILLER OF MOTHER

Considers Verdict in Case of Chicago Boy He Heard Without a Jury.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, April 23.—The fate of Teddy Danielsen, 16-year-old boy who killed his crippled mother with a bread knife, was placed in the hands of Judge Cornelius J. Harrington of the Criminal Court today.

Judge Harrington, who heard the case without a jury, took the evidence under advisement after listening to closing arguments in which the State demanded "severe punishment," for the youth and the defense asked his freedom and a chance to remake his life.

The defendant wept as he addressed the Judge.

"Whatever you do with me will be all right," he said. "I want you to know that I loved my mother. I don't care what Mr. Meyers (Prosecutor Morris Meyers) said. If I was in my right mind at that time, I never would have done it."

His father, Theodore Danielsen, gave the boy a word of encouragement when he addressed the court, declaring he was present to back up the boy's statement.

"If you go to the penitentiary," he said, "your father and mother will be to blame."

Prosecutor Meyers told the Judge the Coroner's report indicated the youth strangled his mother before he thrust a bread knife in her throat last March 3 after she had upbraided him for truancy, adding that unless the boy was put in an institution the case might have "some terrible implications."

Asserting the boy's act, under the law, was that of an insane person, Defense Counsel Leonard C. Reid, charged that Mrs. Danielsen was not an understanding mother, and told the Judge that nothing he could do would punish the lad as much as his conscience would in the future.

Young Danielsen had pleaded innocence to a murder charge, although he confessed the killing.

MAN AND MOTHER OF EIGHT END LIVES IN SUICIDE PACT

"Can't Have Each Other, So We Died Together," Note Says; Baby in Auto With Bodies.

By the Associated Press.
WESTERLY, R. I., April 23.—Mrs. Madeline Partelow, mother of eight children, and John William Ledoux were found shot to death here today in a small coupe. Chief of Police Robert Kessel said the deaths were the result of a suicide pact.

A note was found in the coupe which read, "We can't have each other so we died together.—Jack and Madeline."

A month-old baby, unharmed, was found in the car.

Robert Smith, 13 years old, of Ashaway, who was riding near by on his bicycle, told police he heard five shots. He rode down the lane and found the bodies.

The baby found in the car probably was Mrs. Partelow's, Chief Kessel said. Her other children, he said, are in a state institution.

Ledoux recently had worked in Stonington, Conn., on a highway job. Whereabouts of his family is not known. He was about 40, the woman 30.

CIO WORKERS IN GRANITE CITY PLANT ACCEPT WAGE CUTS

Paid Vacations Also to Be Suspended by National Enameling & Stamping Co.

Union employes of the National Enameling & Stamping Co. plant at Granite City voted yesterday to accept a proposal by the company temporarily to discontinue paid vacations and reduce wages 7½ per cent for piece work and 2 to 5 cents for hourly payments. About 700 members of the iron, steel and tin workers branch of the C I O are affected.

A similar proposal was rejected Monday. The vote yesterday came after an expansion program in the plant was halted and union officers were told it might be necessary to close the plant if the old scale were continued. The new rates will remain in effect for 13 months.

ROSEGRANT'S TERM REDUCED TWO YEARS

Penal Board Grants Merit Allowance for Work in Prison Epidemic.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, April 24.—Angelo Rosegrant of St. Louis, serving a 20-year sentence for the kidnaping of Dr. Isaac D. Kelley, is one of 23 convicts to whom the State Penal Commission today awarded merit allowances ranging from 234 days to two years for their work in the prison hospital during the 1936 spinal meningitis epidemic in the penitentiary.

Rosegrant's allowance is two years. Prior to the allowance he faced serving 11 years and eight months, after deduction of five-twelfths of his sentence for good behavior. The merit allowance reduces the time he still has to serve to nine years and eight months, which would fix the date of his release in December 1945. He entered the penitentiary in March, 1936. In the meantime he is eligible for parole at any time, if the Penal Commission should so decide.

Other convicts who got two-year merit allowances for hospital work are: Eugene M. Evans of Kansas City; James Ralls, Dave Kaner and Charles Webster of St. Louis; W. M. O'Dell, Cole County; Elmer Johnson, Greene County; L. D. Vezey, Pettis County; James Colose, Jackson County, and Harold Ransdell, Marion County.

$500,000 Painting Theft Committed by Experts

Gloves Hide Fingerprints—Works of Rembrandt, Gainsborough and Others Cleanly Cut From Frames in England.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, April 23.—Scotland Yard kept a close watch on ships and airports today after a band of thieves, who left no fingerprints, carried away $500,000 of paintings from a Kentish castle. Week-end guests slept while the thieves worked.

Five old masters including Rembrandt's portrait of his first wife, "Saskia at Her Toilet"—were taken in the biggest British art robbery of this century.

They belonged to Sir Edmund Davis, art collector and mining company director, who kept them in a ground floor gallery in his seventeenth century Chilham castle near Canterbury.

The robbers entered the ground floor of the castle by cutting a pane from a mullioned window.

Discovers Frames Empty.

The robbery was discovered when Davis entered the gallery in the front of the castle this morning and found the empty frames.

The Rembrandt was valued at about $250,000. Davis bought this three-by-three foot masterpiece from the Hague Museum in 1900 and today he was chagrined particularly because he had declined to lend it to the current Amsterdam exhibition commemorating the birth of Crown Princess Juliana's daughter.

Besides the old master, the thieves carried away two paintings by Gainsborough, eighteenth century English portrait and landscape painter; one by Sir Joshua Reynolds, eighteenth century English portrait painter; and one by Van Dyck, Flemish painter of the seventeenth century.

The Gainsboroughs stolen were "Lady Clarges" and "Pitt," the Reynolds was "Earl of Suffolk," and the Van Dyck was "Man With Dog."

A valuable Velasquez was left on the wall and the robbers also passed up an idol of pure gold whose value the owner refused to estimate.

Gloves and Cushions Used.

Davis declared:

"The men obviously were members of an experienced gang of art thieves, but they ransacked a number of rooms and took away other things of comparatively little value.

"All the paintinigs were cut clean from their frames and the greatest care was taken.

"Marks of gloved hands have been found all over the place. The thieves put cushions on the floor so the frames—some of which are very heavy—would not make any noise when taken down.

"The Gainsboroughs, Van Dyck and Reynolds are worth many, many thousands of pounds. The thieves passed other treasures. They examined an idol found in a railway cutting in Colombia, but discarded it, thinking it probably brass. It is pure gold."

In previous art robberies, famous pictures sometimes have been returned after a period of time in which the thieves sold many copies representing them as the genuine stolen articles.

Most famous theft of the century was the removal of Leonardo da Vinci's Mona Lisa from the Louvre in Paris on Aug. 22 or 23, 1911.

It was recovered Dec. 12, 1913, in Florence, Italy, by an art dealer named Geri to whom it was being sold, and returned to the Louvre Jan. 1, 1914.

The man arrested for the theft was Vincenzio Perugia. He said he had watched the crowds pass in admiration before the painting and, overcome by patriotism, decided to steal it and return it to Italy whence he said it had been "stolen." He was sentenced to life imprisonment and Geri received the $5000 reward offered by the Louvre.

GOVERNMENT INCOME PASSED $5,000,000,000 ON APRIL 21

To Meet Roosevelt Estimate Additional $1,300,000,000 Must Be Collected by June 30.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—The Federal Government's income in the 1938 fiscal year passed $5,000,000,000 this week.

A Treasury statement today showed receipts for the fiscal year which began July 1, 1937, totaled $5,009,837,814.87 April 21.

In his January budget message, President Roosevelt estimated receipts for the entire 1938 fiscal year at about $6,300,000,000.

DISPUTE OVER CONTROL OF CAMPBELL ESTATE

Public Administrator Sues for $1,872,000 of Assets, Held by Trust Company.

Administrative control of $1,872,000 of assets, commonly referred to as the estate of the late Hazlett Kyle Campbell, is in dispute between the St. Louis Union Trust Co., which now has the assets, and Public Administrator Thomas R. Madden.

Madden, in his official capacity, yesterday obtained a Probate Court citation against Allen C. Orrick and the St. Louis Union Trust Co., trustees, ordering them to show cause why they have not surrendered the assets in their control to him. Probate Judge Glendy B. Arnold, who issued the citation, set the hearing for June 8.

Hazlett Campbell, 80 years old and mentally incompetent for a half-century, died March 27 in the old Campbell home at 1508 Locust street. The Public Administrator took out letters of administration on his estate, and made demand on Orrick and the trust company for the property. The trustees refused to turn the assets over to Madden, holding that, legally, the assets constituted a trust estate, which had been held for Campbell's benefit, and which now will go to his nearest relatives, but were not Campbell's personal estate.

The trustees claim their authority as operating under a trust created in 1885, succeeding a trust created in 1879 by Robert Campbell, frontier trader and Indian fighter, who founded the family fortune. The original trust provided for a division of the property among the three sons; the 1885 trust, after the division, was created to care for Hazlett Campbell's share, with the provision that after his death, the property should go to the nearest surviving relatives. As Hazlett outlived his brothers, the prospective heirs are collateral relatives.

On the day after Hazlett Campbell's death, Orrick and the trust company filed a suit, naming 38 persons known to them as claimants of kinship, and asking the Circuit Court to set a hearing, pass on such claims and determine the relative nearness of kinship of each individual.

The trustees yesterday amended their petition, naming 120 additional persons. This proceeding has been assigned to Judge Eugene J. Sartorius' division of Circuit Court. The trustees recently asked the Court for authorization to conduct an inquiry in Northern Ireland, where a number of relatives live, and to take depositions there for use in the distribution of the estate.

At the time of his death, Campbell was under the guardianship of Anton Schuler, former Public Administrator, by appointment of the Probate Court.

GIRL NOW DENIES SHE POISONED BROTHERS

But New York Prosecutor Tells Judge She Has Confessed Killing of Two.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 23.—A medical examiner's report charged today that Elizabeth Wagner, 22 years old, administered liquid poison to her brothers, Henry 21, and Charles, 14.

The girl was arraigned today before Magistrate Anthony Savage, who fixed Monday for her hearing on a homicide charge. The girl said nothing, save that she wished to see her mother, Mrs. Marie Wagner, who had not attended the arraignment. Mrs. Wagner was at the home of a neighbor with her only surviving son, August, 29.

After questioning by Assistant District Attorney Edmund Rowan, the girl was taken to the police lineup in Manhattan. There she denied, almost incoherently, that she had poisoned her brothers. Then she was taken to the Women's Detention Home.

In a statement filed with the Court, Rowan declared:

"Elizabeth has admitted that on four different occasions, as she prepared milk and orange juice for her brothers, she took rat poison which she kept under a tray of the gas oven and put pinches of the powder in the orange juice and milk."

Until the boys became ill and died last week-end, Henry was employed now and then as a chauffeur and Charles attended school.

The only suggestion of trouble came from Elizabeth, police said today. She fared so badly in school that she was taken out and for eight months was a patient in the Wassaic State hospital near Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Lately, Elizabeth and Henry occasionally quarreled, police reported.

"She told us," Rowan said after he had questioned Elizabeth for hours, "that she and Henry did not get along. She said she liked Charles very much and that though she knew the powder would harm him, she does not know why she did it."

The brothers complained about the "funny taste" in the milk and orange juice, Rowan said, and Henry even accused her of trying to poison them. Elizabeth said he was foolish and tasted the milk herself.

On the night of April 7, Elizabeth, Henry and Charles went to a movie. When they came home they ate cookies, the boys four each, Elizabeth one. The next evening, Henry and Charles complained of great pain. Elizabeth was slightly ill but recovered.

The boys grew worse and were taken to a hospital, where Charles died Saturday night, Henry the following morning.

ELIZABETH WAGNER,

UNION TO DICKER WITH G. M. BEFORE STRIKING

U A W Votes for Walkout at Buick and Chevrolet Plants at Flint, Mich.

By the Associated Press.

FLINT, Mich., April 23.—Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, sai dtonight that, although C I O unionists of the Buick and Chevrolet plants of General Motors Corporation had voted to strike, there would be no strike or stoppages of work until grievance procedure has been exhausted.

Close upon this statement, William E. Dowell, director of General Motors locals of the U A W, said corporation concessions relating to "preferred lists" of employes to be retained or called back to work after lay offs might make a strike unnecessary.

A General Motors spokesman confirmed Dowell's announcement that the corporation had given assurance that no abuses of such lists would be tolerated.

"We have a contract with General Motors, and we will live up to it," said Martin. "The U A W also has a constitution, and we will live up to it. That constitution provides there shall be no strikes or stoppages of work until grievance procedure has been exhausted, and there will be no strikes until that has been done."

20,000 Vote in Strike Referendum.

Twenty thousand union members participated in the strike referendum, which started Wednesday. Jack Little, U A W local president, announced the strike was approved by these votes: Buick Motor Co. employes, 9500 to 2080; Chevrolet Motor Co. employes, 6500 to 2015.

A strike would paralyze industrial operations of this city for the second time in little more than a year. More than 50,000 General Motors workers were idle here during the 1937 strikes. Shutdown of Chevrolet plants would cut the supply of parts to all of that division's assembly lines. Buick and Chevrolet are General Motors' largest producing units this year.

U A W employes in a Chevrolet plant at Bay City, Mich., charging discrimination and wage cutting, also have voted to seek authority for a strike.

William Taylor, U A W international representative here, said the Buick and Chevrolet strike authorization would be sought "if we don't get the desired results" in grievance negotiations. He said 65 per cent of union members in the two divisions have been laid off.

Other Union Grievances.

In addition to the "preferred lists," grievances leading to the strike vote were: Charges of intimidation of workers through lay-offs, violation of seniority provisions and "misinterpretation" of recent supplemental sections of the working agreement with General Motors.

Other points of contention have included assignment of foremen, not eligible for U A W membership, to production line jobs, and charges that the corporation has offered to return laid-off employes to work at lower wage levels.

Negotiations to settle four strikes involving C I O unions at Detroit were at a standstill, but there were plans for resumption of conferences in some of the disputes next week. Plants affected are the Bohn Aluminum & Brass Co., the Michigan Steel Castings Co., the Detroit Moulding Corporation and the American Brass Co.

St. Louis Picked for Moose Parley.

COFFEYVILLE, Kan., April 23.—St. Louis was chosen as the 1939 convention city by delegates attending the twenty-sixth annual tri-state conference of the Loyal Order of Moose. Approximately 100 delegates from Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma are here.

E. ST. LOUIS BOY HIT BY TRUCK AND KILLED

Robert Solt Loses Life When Crossing Street With Sister, Who Is Injured.

Robert Solt, 9 years old, was killed by a truck yesterday in the 2500 block of Waverly avenue, East St. Louis, when he and his sister, Patricia, 6, ran across the street hand in hand.

The driver, James Ray, 2621 Lafayette street, said the children came from behind a parked car and that an automobile approaching the truck further blocked his view of them. The girl tried to stop, ran into the side of the truck and suffered cuts, but Robert, unable to halt, was struck by the bumper and his skull was crushed.

The children lived at 405 North Thirty-fifth street, East St. Louis. With their father, Harry Solt, a painter for Armour & Co., their mother, three sisters and a brother, they had been visiting their grandmother, Mrs. W. M. Waterson, 2557 Waverly avenue. Robert was a third grade pupil at the Park School in East St. Louis.

NEW GROUPS OF STARS 'UNBALANCE' UNIVERSE

Harvard College Scientist Reports Discovery of Dense Galaxies.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, April 23.—Discovery of a new and extremely dense group of galaxies of stars which seem to throw the universe slightly out of balance was announced today before the American Philosophical Society by Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard College observatory.

This group, which appears to make the universe somewhat lopsided, was recently found during a "patrol survey" of the heavens to determine the density of galaxies which lie far outside our own Milky Way, which also is a galaxy of millions of stars.

To understand the immensity of the spaces involved, the sun and earth would appear as two tiny specks on one of the arms of the Milky Way, which is spinning like a Fouth of July pinwheel. Around our own galaxy are many others, whirling about in the same way.

Dr. Shapley and his assistant used the Milky Way as a flat plane, or reference point, and pointed their telescopes south of it to make a photographic survey of an area 600,000 light years in extent near the South Galactic pole. A light year is the time light travels in a year moving at a speed of 186,000 miles per second.

The survey was made on the density of galaxies approximately 10,000,000 light years from the earth. A uniform distribution of the galaxies was found over most of the area from the South Galactic pole upward toward the plane of the Milky Way. However, at one point near the South Galactic pole, density of the galaxies was found to be eight times the normal distribution, which was the new dense group and which appeared as a long streak through the area.

Dr. Shapley declared that there is no apparent explanation for this clustering together of systems of stars. He added that a similar survey will be undertaken near the North Galactic pole to determine whether a similar density situation exists.

A theory of how such pinwheel galaxies are formed was offered before the society by Dr. Ernest W. Brown of Yale University. He said a possible explanation is that a group of stars near each other will group together in bars like two pencils lying together. Then, he declared, the stars nearest the middle of the bars will begin to rotate faster than those near the ends, with the result being the formation of the pinwheel arrangement.

MICHAEL R. CULLEN FUNERAL TO BE TUESDAY MORNING

Shoe Firm Executive Who Died of Pneumonia to Be Buried at Calvary Cemetery.

Funeral services for Michael R. Cullen, shoe firm executive who died of pneumonia yesterday at his home, 5934 Plymouth avenue, will be held at 9:30 a. m. Tuesday from the Stuart undertaking establishment, 1225 Union boulevard, to St. Rose's Catholic Church, with burial at Calvary Cemetery.

Mr. Cullen, who was 79 years old, had been in the shoe business since his boyhood. For the last 20 years he was secretary of the George R. Cummings Jr. Co., manufacturer of shoe specialties, although he lost his sight in 1924. As a member of the arbitration board of the Knights of Labor, early workers' organization, he once represented labor in many controversies.

Surviving are four daughters, Sister Agnes Michael of the Order of St. Joseph; Mrs. E. T. Davenport, Miss Virginia M. Cullen and Miss Helen Cullen; two sons, Joseph A. and Robert M. Cullen; and a sister, Mrs. James H. Hughes.

BLANTON ASKS COURT TO SET ASIDE RIVERFRONT AWARDS

U. S. Attorney Files Exceptions to Valuation as Too High After Owners Protest They're Too Low.

Asserting that condemnation commissioners in the acquisition of city block 5 for the riverfront memorial site made excessive awards in allowing $133,538 for the property in the block, United States Attorney Harry C. Blanton filed exceptions to all these awards in United States District Court yesterday. He asks the court to set the commissioners' findings aside and fix reasonable values. Assessed valuation of the block for taxation is $113,540.

Owners of three pieces of property in the block filed exceptions, on the other hand, Friday, declaring the awards for their holdings were too low. The aggregate allowed them was $22,946. One of these owners, the United States Seed Co., which was put down for $9169, alleged that $29,700 would have been reasonable for its property alone. The block is bounded by the Wharf, Main street, Elm street and Clark avenue.

MEDAL FOR PANAY SURVIVOR

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Capt. Frank N. Roberts, Oskaloosa (Kan.) army officer who was aboard the United States gunboat Panay when it was sunk in China, has been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for "excellent leadership, courage and tact," in conducting the Panay survivors to safety.

When the Panay was bombed by Japanese planes on the Yangtze River last Dec. 12, Roberts was a passenger. The only unwounded officer, he took charge of the survivors and conducted them to safety.

REPORT ON TREATMENT OF ADVANCED CANCER

Foundation Says Two Patients With 'Hopeless Cases' Have Apparently Recovered.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, April 23. — Two persons with "hopeless cases" of cancer are now apparently well, the net result of one year's worldwide study reported today by the International Cancer Research Foundation.

The foundation, using the income from $2,000,000 donated by William H. Donner of Philadelphia, supported 41 separate cancer investigations.

Temple University Medical School here refrigerated cancers, cooling them down to about 60 degrees Fahrenheit by use of special knives and rods.

Thirteen "hopeless cases" were treated. Eleven of the patients died.

The other two, the report says, "have recovered, with apparently complete disappearance of the former lesions, and return to health."

One of these has been apparently well for 13 months and the other for six months. In medical practice these periods are both too short to be accepted as conclusive evidence of cures.

RELIEF APPEAL QUOTES LAW TO SECURITY BOARD

St. Louis Planning Council Points Out Shelter Is Listed in Act Among Needs to Be Met.

ASKS AGAIN FOR UNSPENT $33,000

General Liberalization of State Body's Policies, Including Payment of Rents, Sought.

The Social Planning Council's relief committee, in letters to members of the State Social Security Commission, made public yesterday, urges not only return to St. Louis of the $33,000 unspent balance of the March relief allotment, but a general liberalization of the commission's policies.

The relief committee, which has conducted a campaign for payment of relief rents, quotes the text of the Social Security Law under which the commission functions, reminding members that the law provides for relief allowances "sufficient to provide a reasonable subsistence compatible with decency and health."

Maximum allowances, defined in the law, are to include "sufficient food, clothing, shelter, medicine, and other necessary supplies or services," the letters continue.

Expansion of WPA employment, with 31,436 persons employed at a cost of $1,949,156 for the month prior to April 19, has lightened the relief burden for the State, the letters point out, but for many months inadequate relief has been provided in St. Louis.

Some Rents Unpaid for 7 Months.

"Who is bearing the burden?" the letters ask. "Much is borne by landlords, many of whom now have gone seven months without rent, and who must pay taxes to the city and State and water licenses, even though no income comes to them.

"Who else bears the burden? Relatives and friends, mostly all poor themselves, help the desperate cases to move from three rooms to two, from two rooms to one, lending or giving a few cents to help stall off the new landlord and movers.

"This is only the economic problem involved in the failure of St. Louis public relief program to meet the needs.

"In addition to the above financial burdens there is the daily mental anguish on the part of many citizens forced to accept relief, who do not know what day their possessions will be thrown on the street.

"Furthermore, the crowding and jamming together of thousands of families in unsanitary and crowded quarters, coupled with the poor physical conditions of many, due to years of strain and undernourishment, creates a hazard, public danger and economic loss that cannot be expressed in exact figures of dollars and cents.

State's Responsibilities.

"The State Social Security Commission has two responsibilities, as we see it— (1) to see that its funds are spent economically and properly, and (2) its chief concern should and must be the adequate care of those unfortunate victims of today's conditions, who are the wards of your commission and totally dependent on your actions.

"The State was willing last fall to carry 60 per cent of St. Louis' estimated needs. Due to the enlarged Federal program 60 per cent of the March, 1937, budget would have undoubtedly paid all urgent rent needs in March, 1938. Sixty per cent of $273,053 (March, 1937, expenditures) would have allowed $30,000 for rents and supplementation, and April will be at least as favorable a month.

"You will recall the Commission's statement of April 6:

" 'The State Social Security Commission recognizes the fact that shelter is as much a necessity as food or clothing. If funds were available the Commission would gladly provide sufficient funds to cover the rent needs of those on relief. The funds are not available to make such allotments.'

"With $33,000 allotted to St. Louis unspent in March, surely payments of rent can now be promptly authorized.

"We respectfully urge your approval of our request to add the unspent $33,000 to the April allotment for St. Louis, and also to provide a plan to liberalize your general policy as to rents and supplementation in order that there may be provided funds, sufficient food, clothing, shelter, medicine and other necessary supplies or services compatible with decency and health, as the statute provides."

Members of Committee.

The letters ar signed by Julian B. Cohn as chairman of the Social Planning Council's committee. Other members of the committee are Herschel Alt, secretary of the Provident Association and Children's Aid Society; Earl W. Brandenburg, secretary, Y. M. C. A.; the Rev. John J. Butler, president, Catholic Charities; John T. Clark, director, Urban League; William J. Gibbons, president, St. Louis Typographical Union; William R. Gilbert, attorney; Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman; John S. Leahy, attorney; H. D. McBride, president, Tuberculosis and Health Society; John E. Riley, president, St. Vincent de Paul Society; Mrs. D. K. Rose, board member of the Social Planning Council; Dr. Llewellyn Sale, president of the council; Dr. Dudley Smith, representing the St. Louis Medical Society; Dean Sidney E. Sweet of Christ Church Cathedral, and Mrs. Robert C. Treiman, representing the St. Louis League of Women Voters.

Copies of the letter were addressed to Gov. Lloyd C. Stark, Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann, and George I. Haworth, Social Security Administrator, as well as to members of the commission. James M. Kemper of Kansas City is chairman of the commission. Other members are William T. Nardin of St. Louis, Wallace Crossley of Warrensburg, Mrs. A. B. McGlothlan of St. Joseph, and N. W. Brickey of Festus.

KIRKWOOD COUNCILMEN AND MAYOR GET PAY RISES

A. S. Kinyon's Salary Increased From $1500 to $2350, the Others From $1250 to $1750.

The retiring Kirkwood City Council, it was disclosed yesterday, recently voted Mayor A. S. Kinyon a salary increase of 56 per cent, from $1500 to $2350 a year, and the two other Council members increases of 40 per cent each, from $1250 to $1750 a year.

Mayor Kinyon, a banker, explained to a Post-Dispatch reporter that growth of the suburb and of the work of its government, including the operation of the water and electric services, demanded so much time of the Council members that they were entitled to the higher remuneration. They are not required to give full time, but the Mayor said he often spent 16 hours a day with the city's affairs, while his salary in eight years in office had averaged $114.58 a month. The maximum pay permitted by law in a city of this size, he added, was $2400 for the Mayor and $1800 for the other Councilmen.

Voting for the increases were Mayor Kinyon and Councilman Irvine A. McGirk, who were re-elected. William L. Hoeman, who was succeeded by Charles F. Hoyt, refrained from voting.

TWO MESSAGES FROM PRESIDENT LIKELY THIS WEEK

They Concern Monopoly and Taxation of State and Federal Salaries and Securities.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Leaders today arranged a heavy program for Congress next week and set June 1 as the approximate date of adjournment.

President Roosevelt intends to complete his legislative recommendations during the week and leave Washington Friday for a fishing trip. Messages are expected frm him on monopoly and the removal of tax exemptions on salaries of public employes and on income from Federal and State securities.

Administration leaders on Capitol Hill hoped to send the tax revision measure to the White House next week, obtain Senate approval of the naval expansion bill and clean up a half dozen odds-and-ends of legislation in the House.

The President's spending-lending progam is before the House Appropriations Committee. Officials of the Farm Security Administration are scheduled to testify before the committee Monday and Secretary of the Interior Ickes may appear Tuesday.

Tax Law Compromise.

Drafting of a compromise tax law in the form it probably will go on the statute books hinged on the action of a Senate-House Conference Committee in reconciling differences in separate bills passed by the two houses.

Senator Harrison (Dem.), Mississippi, a member, forecast the joint committee would complete its work Monday. Yesterday, the conference group agreed on a modified form of the House-approved undistributed profits tax, which has been indorsed by Mr. Roosevelt. It also accepted with slight change a capital gains levy voted by the Senate and approved by business spokesmen.

Speaker Bankhead asserted he was "greatly pleased" that the agreement had been reached and predicted that the House would approve the compromise. Predictions of Senate approval came from leaders in that chamber.

Provision Agreed On.

The committee approved a system under which all gains from assets held for 18 months and less would be included in ordinary income subject to the applicable normal and surtax income rates. Gains from assets held from 18 months to two years would be taxed a flat rate of 20 per cent, and gains from assets held more than two years would be taxed 15 per cent.

In many cases, the flat rates on gains realized from assets held more than 18 months would be less than the taxpayer would have to pay if the gains were included in his ordinary income and taxed at regular income tax rates.

For the "little fellow," however, the Senate-House compromise agreement provides that taxpayers would be given the option of including 50 per cent of their capital gains in ordinary income for taxation purposes. Thus, a taxpayer with an income small enough to pay 4 per cent income tax rate would pay only that amount on one-half of his capital gains. For example, an unmarried person with a $1000 salary and $1000 of capital gains in one year, would pay ordinary income taxes on the $1000 salary plus $500—50 per cent—of his capital gains.

Roosevelt Calls in Harrison.

Harrison, leader of the Congressional fight to wipe out the undistributed profits levy, called on the President at the latter's invitation today. Harrison declined to say what was discussed.

There was speculation that Roosevelt may have assured the Mississippian that he had no ill feeling as a result of the tax fight. Another possibility was that he asked for Harrison's advice regarding the forthcoming tax exemption message.

Interest centered on the tax exemption and monopoly messages, but usually well informed persons predicted neither would recommend any immediate legislation.

Commenting on reports that Roosevelt and Senator Borah (Rep.) Idaho, were in substantial agreement on the monopoly question, Bankhead mentioned that Borah was the author of a proposal to control monopoly through Federal licensing of corporations.

Bankhead said that if the question of Federal licensing were aised, Congress would have to work its way through an entirely new field of legislation. Such legislation probably would require thorough study, he added.

The Two Messages.

Senator O'Mahoney (Dem.), Wyoming, co-author of the licensing proposal, in a statement said that the bill "raises the most important problem before the people of the United States."

A few legislators doubted that Mr. Roosevelt's monopoly message would be limited to a recommendation for a long-range congressional study of the problem. They said it also might ask for some immediate changes in the anti-trust laws.

In his tax exemption message, Mr. Roosevelt is expected to suggest that present salary and securities tax exemptions could be removed by legislation, without a constitutional amendment.

By a 34 to 33 vote, the Senate has written into the pending tax bill a proposal by Senator Borah to make the interest on all future Government security issues subject to Federal income tax. Borah has contended that a constitutional amendment would be necessary to remove tax exemptions from State securities and the salaries of State employes.

The Borah proposal now is before the Joint Tax Conference Committee, and a decision on it probably will be delayed until after committeemen receive Mr. Roosevelt's recommendations.

Wage-Hour Bill May Die.

Bankhead told reporters that the administration's spending and lending program was the only major legislation ready for action by the House.

Wage and hour legislation, repeatedly recommended by President Roosevelt, has been revamped by the House Labor Committee and now is in the hands of the House Rules Committee. Chairman O'Connor (Dem.), New York, intends to call the Rules Committee together next week to decide whether the new legislation should be given the right of way on the House floor.

The original wage-hour bill was blocked in the Rules Committee last winter. Speaker Bankhead said today the revised measure would be blocked also unless some of the Republican members of the committee changed their views.

Leaders think action on major measures will be hastened by the desire of Congressmen to get away from Washington and begin their re-election campaigning.

County P. T. A. Council to Meet.

The St. Louis County Council of the Parent-Teacher Association will hold its annual spring meeting at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday at the Ferguson Central School.

To Discuss Student Guidance.

Dr. Gilbert Wrenn, professor of educational psychology in the University of Minnesota, will address a joint meeting of the St. Louis chapter of the Vocational Guidance Association and the St. Louis County School Superintendents' Association at 6 p. m. tomorrow at the Wilson Restaurant, 16 South Central avenue, Clayton. His subject will be "Guidance Problems in Secondary Education."

RSEY CITY JUDGE JAILS HAGUE CRITIC

ves Six Months to Man Who Spoke on Corner Without Permit.

By the Associated Press.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., April 23.—ames (Jeff) Burkitt, who since had been assailing Mayor ank Hague's administration, and ho returned here two months ago day from Baltimore announcing would "bring back free speech Jersey City," heard Judge Anony J. Botti sentence him to six onths in the County Penitentiary day.

He was charged with being disderly when police restrained him Saturday night from making a eet-corner speech without a per. Burkitt's attorney said he uld appeal immediately.

Burkitt staggered when sentence s imposed, fell back against the iling and shouted, "My God, I'll ."

As police walked up to lead him the detention room, at the conusion of a two-day hearing, Burtt shouted again: "Your Honor, protest being dragged."

Earlier in the day, he had told udge Botti, "If I live, I'll speak night at Bergen Square, permit r not."

Mayor Hague, to whom Burkitt ired in Florida two months ago, I am back in Jersey City to see it is still a part of the United tates," testified last night under a bpena which Burkitt served peronally.

Hague, vice-chairman of the Naional Democratic Committee, sat lent and smiling as Burkitt, who uring most of the hearing acted s his own attorney, asked question fter question. Hague replied only o questions about his name and potion, the Court having ruled the thers irrelevant.

Burkitt, in the drawl of his nae Mississippi, denied charges of e complaint that he used "loud, ffensive and indecent" language o the policemen, as four of them ad testified.

Samuel Rothbard, attorney for urkitt, told Judge Botti the police ent to the meeting to keep Burkitt om speaking, but had charged him ith disorderly conduct because ey knew Burkitt wanted to make test case of an ordinance prohibitg meetings without a permit.

BRIDGE LABOR ROW APPARENTLY SETTLED

Work on St. Charles and Other Projects Starts Tomorrow Under Compromise.

Labor troubles in St. Charles County, which resulted in widespread violence over a period of several months, shutdown of work on the $390,000 St. Charles bridge repair job and finally a strike of building workers on public construction in the St. Louis district, appeared to have been settled last night following a meeting attended by representatives of rival factions and other interested parties.

A compromise proposal was approved by representatives of the American Federation of Labor and the Independent Workers' Organization, under which all suspended work will be resumed tomorrow except the timber clearing project at the Alton Lake site, which probably will start a few days later, it was announced by Theodore Bruere Jr., attorney for the I W O, who attended the meeting.

The timber clearing project, planned by the Government for several thousand acres along the Mississippi River above Alton, in connection with the flooding of the area above the Alton dam, had been abandoned in February after repeated efforts of army engineers to proceed with the clearing had been frustrated by labor disputes. The Engineer Corps had announced that the area would be flooded May 1 with timber still standing.

As a result of yesterday afternoon's meeting, an Engineer Corps representative announced the flooding would be delayed, and timber clearing resumed provided Gov. Stark gave assurance the work would be free of further interference. It was understood the Governor previously had withheld such assurance, in view of the existing controversy. Dr. Raymond G. Cooper, physician, and one of a group of St. Charles citizens active in efforts to iron out the labor disputes, was delegated by the meeting to inform the Governor of the new situation and seek the guarantees sought by the Engineer Corps.

Under terms of the agreement Bruere said, the I W O is to release the Massman Construction Co. from its contract providing for employment of I W O members on the bridge, and A. F. of L. members are to be employed, except that "certain" I W O men will receive A. F. of L. permits for employment at common labor. The job, still in preliminary stage, will be resumed tomorrow with about 12 men at work. Little progress has been made since the work started in January, due to repeated shutdowns following A. F. of L. picketing. The I W O membership consists of non-union workers employed on the bridge and in the timber clearing project.

School Construction Jobs.

Work on four St. Charles school construction jobs, with A. F. of L. labor, which stopped last Monday after 200 I W O demonstrators attacked workmen and chased them from two of the jobs, will be resumed under the same conditions as before, under the agreement. The I W O group had complained that St. Louis skilled labor was being imported for the job, but union agents replied that the class of workers needed was not available in St. Charles.

It is expected that the timber clearing project, if resumed, will last 10 weeks and employ more than 400 men. Under the agreement only St. Charles County members of the I W O will be employed. There will be no change in the hourly rate of pay, 50 cents, which is fixed by law, but the Government spokesman indicated a more favorable weekly scale might be arranged, Dr. Cooper said. A. F. of L. unions had demanded an increase to the union rate for common labor, 67½ cents an hour.

A demonstration lecture on sound communication will be presented to the Electrical Board of Trade at its luncheon meeting Tuesday at Hotel Statler by Dr. J. O. Perrine of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

TRANSIT STRIKE IN COLUMBUS ENDED ON SEVENTH DAY

Terms of Agreement at Ohio Capital Withheld; Said to Renew Old Contract.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., April 23.—Members of the Amalgamated Association of Electric Railway and Motor Bus Employes approved today a proposal to end the local transportation strike, in its seventh day.

Officials of the Columbus & Southern Ohio Electric Co. said, however, that it would take from 12 to 14 hours to get trolley cars and busses ready to operate.

Details of the agreement were not disclosed, but it was reported that it provided for renewal of a working contract which expired at 12:01 a. m. April 16.

The striking union employes, who had asked for wage increases after withdrawing a demand for a closed shop, voted on the agreement after a five-hour joint conference between union representatives, utility officials and United States labor conciliators.

UNION REFUSES ELECTION ON GOODRICH WAGE CUT

Company Says Alternative Is Further Decentralization, With Loss of 5000 Jobs at Akron.

AKRON, O., April 23.—The B. F. Goodrich local of the United Rubber Workers of America voted down today a proposal that it hold an election to determine whether the members would accept wage cuts of 10 to 20 cents an hour demanded by the company as an alternative to further decentralization. The company had announced the decentralization would mean the loss of 5000 jobs here.

In a standing vote which union leaders said was participated in by 2000 of Goodrich's 8300 Akron factory workers, only three voted in opposition.

PLEA FOR POLITICAL TOLERANCE BY FARLEY

Business Cannot Fail to Co-operate With President and 'Retain People's Good Will.'

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 23.—In a nation-wide appeal for tolerance, Postmaster-General James A. Farley said tonight private business would have to admit that, "except for some of the reforms adopted by this administration, we would be faced with a condition that would make the present recession in business look like a pink tea party."

"This country was in for a house-cleaning one way or another," he said in an address prepared for delivery at a banquet celebrating the 195th birthday anniversary of Thomas Jefferson.

"It was coming from government or it was coming without government. No matter what the enemies of this administration may say, the troubles that afflict us now are far less ugly than those which menaced the United States in 1933."

Farley said President Roosevelt had issued at least 20 specific friendly invitations to private business to join forces with the New Deal program to revive business and stimulate employment, and he added:

"If business pouts and sulks and holds back, it may well know that it will not retain the good will and majority opinion of the American people. We are more than blind if we do not realize that the mind of the American people is made up. It is going places . . . and it will not allow any group of people to lead it back into those primitive days that are done and gone forever."

United States Senator Robert F. Wagner (Dem.), New York, defending the New Deal, declared that "the critic who merits a hearing must do better than call names."

"The frontiers of social responsibility have been enlarged in a manner which will endure," he said. "A great nation will not return to the day when the solution for unemployment was the bread line, when the answer to the distressed home owner was foreclosure, when finance was the product of the blue sky, when the wonders of electricity were denied to the bulk of our agricultural population, when the slums were no one's responsibility, when old age was not a blessing but a curse."

CLARENCE DARROW'S LIBRARY BEING SOLD

He Wanted It Dispersed at Low Prices, So People Might Benefit.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 23. — The late Clarence Darrow's personal library—some 2000 volumes—is being sold and dispersed, in keeping with the famous lawyer's wishes.

"His first idea," said A. Kroch, book dealer and friend of Darrow, "was to present the library to some university, but later he decided, with Mrs. Darrow, that he wanted the people to have his books, provided they could be sold at sufficiently low prices."

The library includes but little fiction, and that older works, especially Russian novels.

"The Russian literary expression appealed strongly to Darrow's nature," Kroch said. "He was particularly fond of Tolstoy and Turgenev."

Perhaps the most favored shelf was occupied by Sir James Frazer's monumental study in anthropology, "The Golden Bough," of which, Kroch related, Darrow said to him: "Seventy-five per cent of all my knowledge was gained from that work."

"He was a great student of Omar Khayyam," Kroch continued, "and read every book he could find dealing with the Persian poet. He owned a large number of books about Negroes, for he was deeply interested in their welfare. He was interested in anything pertaining to the Darwinian theory. Books on criminology, sex problems and the labor movement naturally had a vital place in his collection."

Books and pamphlets concerning prohibition were flanked by volumes of Havelock Ellis, Sigmund Freud, H. L. Mencken, David Hume, Samuel Butler, Karl Marx and Voltaire. William Jennings Bryan's "In His Image" rested between something by Emile Zola and a George Bernard Shaw play.

Darrow marked passages in many of his books. Marginal scrawls set off Goethe's remark, "Nur lumpe sind bescheiden" (only nobodies are ever modest). And this from Herbert Spencer: "It is a manifest fact that the popular man or writer is always one who is but little in advance of the mass, and consequently understandable by them; never the man who is far in advance of them and out of their sight. Appreciation of another implies some community of thought."

A deep impression apparently was made on Darrow by Leo Tolstoy's lament: "We can live only as long as we are drunk with life, and when we grow sober, cannot help seeing that all is deception and illusion, and a stupid illusion, too."

A good deal of Nietzsche was underlined. These from "Ecce Homo":

"Something that has failed should be honored all the more jealously, precisely because it has failed."

"All prejudices take their origin in the intestines. A sedentary life . . . is the real sin against the Holy Spirit."

"The skeptics—the only honorable types among that double-faced and sometimes quintuple-faced throng, the philosophers!"

"My life-task is to prepare for humanity one supreme moment in which it can come to its senses."

". . . All silent people are dyspeptic."

". . . If I wage war against Christianity, I feel justified in doing so, because in that quarter I have met with no fatal experiences and difficulties—the most earnest Christians have always been kindly disposed to me."

Presentation copies were plentiful, some the gifts of men who were violently opposed to Darrow's views but frankly expressed admiration for his courage and honesty. Others came from close friends associates, men he had helped.

GEN. PERSHING EATS WELL

Remains in Hotel While Son Starts on Wedding Tour.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Francis Pershing and his bride left tonight by plane for San Francisco on the first lap of their wedding journey around the world. Gen. John J. Pershing, father of the bridegroom, wartime commander of the American expeditionary forces, spent the day quietly in his hotel room.

"If I keep on eating the way I have since I have been in New York," Gen. Pershing said, "I'll put back all the flesh I lost during my illness."

Maj. J. J. Fraser of Omaha, Neb., was entertained by officers of the 138th Infantry, Missouri National Guard, at the Armory, Grand boulevard and Market street, last night on completiion of his official inspection of the regiment.

Maj. Fraser, whose inspection required three weeks, said he found the regiment in excellent shape and remarked the training of the organization had reached a high state of efficiency.

Fireman Hurt in Fall at Blaze.

Henry Ploeger, a fireman attached to Hook and Ladder Co. No. 21, suffered lacerations of the face and hands yesterday afternoon when he fell down a flight of steps while attempting to enter a smoke-filled basement of a house at 4226W Labadie avenue. Ploeger, who was blinded by the smoke, returned to duty after treatment at City Hospital. Damage to the house from fire caused by defective wiring was estimated at $25.

LARGE AUDIENCE AT "GRAND CONCERT"

Noted Singers Give First of Two Performances at Auditorium.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN.

An old-fashioned "grand concert" in the style made famous at the Metropolitain Opera House on Sunday evenings was given last night in the Municipal Auditorium by four artists who have been associated with St. Louis Opera. The artists were Giovanni Martinelli, tenor, Robert Weede, baritone, John Gurney, basso, and Maria Marceno, soprano. In addition Miss Rita de Leporte, formerly prima ballerina at the Metropolitain, together with a group of St. Louis dancers performed part of the ballet from "Lakme."

The concert was enthusiastically received by a large audience and all the singers were forced to sing encores.

Mr. Weede's two chief numbers were the Prologue from "Pagliacci" and the "Largo al Factotum" aria from "The Barber of Seville." His command of the requisite style for both numbers and his fresh and resonant voice gave an outstanding effectiveness to his contributions. Mr. Martinelli, unfortunately, had to fall back almost entirely on his style and his stage presence, for the voice was not there. Even so, he made the dramatic quality of Verdi's "Celeste Aida" and the aria "O Paradiso" from "L'Africaine" very strongly felt. And whereas he seemed to be producing his voice with difficulty his intonation was, as usual, impeccable.

John Gurney, who sang last season with the Municipal Opera and portrayed the role of King Marke in the December performance of "Tristan and Isolde," undertook the famous "Catalogue" aria from Mozart's "Don Giovanni" and Mephistopheles' Serenade from "Faust." Unlike Mr. Martinelli he had plenty of voice and of a superior quality but none of the style requisite to the wit of Mozart or the vivacity of Gounod.

Miss Marceno was very sweet and appealing in all her numbers. She attempted nothing that was beyond the possibilities of her lyric soprano and gave to what she did sing a sincere and appropriate interpretation. In addition to arias from "La Boheme" and "Tosca" she sang a duet from "La Boheme" with Mr. Martinelli and one from "Rigoletto" with Mr. Weede.

Miss Edith Gordon, pianist, accompanied all the singers and the ballet.

Another concert by the same singers will be given tomorrow evening.

DR. HILL ESTATE SUIT DEPOSITIONS TAKEN

Witnesses Give Conflicting Opinions on Whether He Was Married or Not.

Conflicting opinions as to whether Mrs. Minette Hill Coachman was the wife or the adopted daughter of Dr. William Preston Hill, retired St. Louis physician who died in 1931, were expressed by Florida witnesses in depositions filed in Circuit Court yesterday in her suit claiming dower right, or one-third interest, in real estate which he had sold.

The suit, directed against the Bushnell-Pommer Realty Co., involves properties at 3549½ to 3561½ Olive street, valued at $100,000 by her attorney, Harvey B. Cox. She has additional claims against others, involving other real estate of an estimated value of $400,000, according to Cox.

Mrs. Coachman, now the wife of Albert Coachman, 1914A Allen avenue, City Market Master at Soulard Market, contends Dr. Hill sold the properties as a single man without permitting her to join in the conveyances as his wife. The real estate company, taking the position it was an ultimate innocent purchaser for value, contends the physician represented Mrs. Hill as his adopted daughter and that if there had been a marriage it was not made public.

Cox has said he would prove the marriage took place in Jeffersonville, Ind., in 1913. At that time Mrs. Coachman was 18 years old and Dr. Hill was 55.

R. H. Crandall of Miami testified in the depositions, taken on behalf of both sides, that the Hills visited in Florida about 10 years ago, that he knew the plaintiff as Miss Minette Hill and "got the impression" she was Dr. Hill's daughter. In addressing the physician she used the word "Dad," he said. Coachman, he testified, stayed with the Hills in Florida.

Miss Daisy Aldridge, a notary public, testified Dr. Hill said he was a widower in acknowledging deeds to real estate. She added that Minette Hill signed acknowledgements as an unmarried woman. Another witness said, too, that she understood Minette Hill was Dr. Hill's daughter.

On the other hand, four witnesses testified they knew the plaintiff as the physician's wife. Frank E. Altman and G. L. Haddock said Dr. Hill told them she was his wife. A. F. Heisler, relating he had known the physician about 35 years, testified "he took it for granted" that Minette Hill was the wife. Mrs. Ida Altman said she knew the Hills as husband and wife.

Mrs. Coachman's suit, originally set for trial last Thursday, was continued when the real estate company filed affidavit for change of venue, alleging prejudice by Circuit Judge Eugene J. Sartorius. Prejudice of the court is a conventional allegation in applications for change of venue.

FRANKLIN MEDAL WINNERS FOR 1938 ARE ANNOUNCED

They Are Dr. William F. Durand, Stanford, and Dr. Charles A. Kraus, Brown.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, April 23.—Dr. William F. Durand of Stanford University and Dr. Charles A. Kraus of Brown University have been selected to receive the 1938 Franklin medal awards, the Franklin Institute announced today. The Franklin medal is awarded annually "to those workers in physical science or technology, without regard of country, whose efforts have done most to advance a knowledge of physical science or its application."

Dr. Durand, professor emeritus of mechanical engineering at Stanford, will receive the medal, the institute said, "in recognition of his notable achievement as pioneer in laboratory research and theory of aeronautics and of his contributions to the advancement of the theory and development of aircraft propellers."

The medal is being awarded to Dr. Kraus, professor of chemistry and director of research in chemistry at Brown University "in recognition of his valuable contributions to the knowledge of reactions in liquid ammonia, of the chemical behavior of metals and the properties of electrolytic solutions."

The awards will be made May 20, as part of a three-day celebration when the institute will be formally dedicated in honor of Benjamin Franklin.

FUNERAL OF YOUTH KILLED IN TRAIN AND AUTO CRASH

Services at 9 A. M. Tomorrow at St. Louis Cathedral for Forster Hoffmann; Private Burial.

Funeral services for Marquard Forster Hoffmann, 18 years old, who was killed Friday night when his automobile struck a slowly-moving freight train on the Rock Island Railroad spur track at Ladue road, Ladue, will be held at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning at the St. Louis Cathedral. Burial will be private.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Briggs A. Hoffmann, 4459 Lindell boulevard, he was a student in the Taylor School, private preparatory school for boys, in Clayton. Classes in the school will be dismissed to permit his fellow students to attend the funeral services.

The youth, driving west in Ladue, struck the side of a caboose, one of three cars which were being pushed across the highway. The crossing is not guarded by gates or signals, but members of the train crew said they were waving warning lanterns which Hoffmann disregarded. There have been other accidents at this and others of a series of tracks within the space of several hundred yards just west of the Clayton-Ladue boundary.

Mike Lombardo Accused of Careless Driving and Driving While License Was Suspended.

A. F. L. MEN PROMISED EAST SIDE W P A JOBS

Illinois Director Hints That Further Trouble Will Mean End of Projects.

Promises that A. F. of L. laborers eligible for relief would be certified for W P A employment within 48 hours after making application were made yesterday at a conference between C. E. Miner, Illinois W P A director, and representatives of the A. F. of L. Laborers' Union, Local 100, East St. Louis.

The meeting, attended by Fred G. Austin, East St. Louis W P A director and John Rogers, Township Relief Administrator, was held to discuss the union's demand for W P A jobs for its members and to avert further trouble on public work on the East Side. W P A street paving and drainage programs were carried on under heavy police guard Thursday and Friday after 500 A. F. of L. union men visited seven jobs Wednesday and persuaded about 550 laborers, many of them Negroes, to suspend operations.

Miner assured the union committee that 46 A. F. of L. laborers who had applied for relief since Wednesday would be assigned to jobs for which they are suited, probably tomorrow. Seventy-five members of Local 100 were certified for W P A work previously, and additional members are expected to apply this week. Sixty men, who had been rejected, will receive rehearings of their applications. The union has 400 members, of whom only 25 are reported to be steadily employed.

It was explained by Miner that part-time employment was no bar to W P A certification. One of the principal complaints of the union was that men employed several days a month on private work had been refused W P A jobs. The union had also protested that the pouring of concrete, work over which it claims jurisdiction, was being given to non-union W P A workers. The promise to assign union men to jobs at which they are experienced seemed to satisfy the union committee on that point. A union request that its members be paid a maximum of $60 a month, instead of $52, was not granted.

In presenting the union complaint, Jesse Blue, spokesman, declared, "Our men will not stand by and watch W P A workers do the jobs they have always done." He threatened that "unless something comes of this meeting, there will be pickets on the W P A jobs Monday, and someone may get hurt." In explanation of the last remark, Blue stated, "We are afraid of some of the W P A foremen, who carry guns."

Miner stated that he and his aids could not "go outside the rules" in granting union demands. "If there is any disturbance, we will conclude that East St. Louis does not want the W P A, and we will act accordingly," he asserted. Blue charged that W P A foremen had made "stump speeches against the union."

On Friday, Blue assured Police Commissioner A. P. Lauman there would be no violence in connection with the union protest, and it was expected the heavy guard would be withdrawn tomorrow. There are seven W P A jobs in and near East St. Louis.

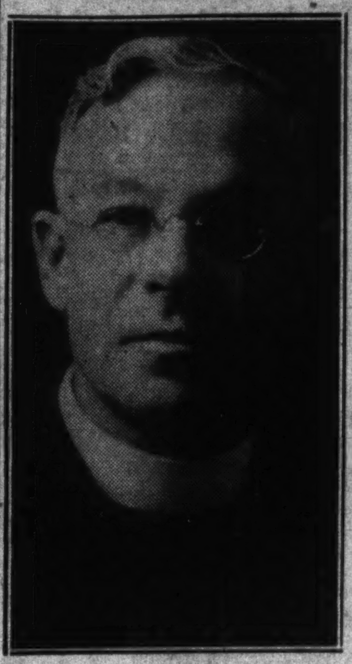
Priest Who Died



THE. REV. ALBERT MAYER

THE REV. ALBERT MAYER DIES AT PARISH HOUSE AT 72

Pastor of St. Andrew's Catholic Church 34 Years—Funeral Thursday Morning.

The Rev. Albert Mayer, pastor for 34 years of St. Andrew's Catholic Church, 301 Hoffmeister avenue, Lemay, died of a heart attack at his parish house yesterday. He was 72 years old.

Ordained in St. Louis in 1891, Father Mayer became assistant pastor at St. Francis de Sales Church, and later pastor of St. George's Church at Linn, Mo. He returned to St. Louis to organize the St. Andrew's parish and to erect the church. He was one of the founders of the Catholic Working Man's Society.

Surviving are two brothers, Charles C. Mayer and Adolph Mayer. Funeral services will be held Thursday at 10 a. m. at the church.

Post-Dispatch Lost Ads usually recover lost articles when the loss is advertised promptly.

ANNUAL POLICE CIRCUS TO OPEN TOMORROW

70 Acts, 33 Displays to Run 14 Afternoons and Evenings at Coliseum.

More than 45,000 tickets at $1 each have been sold for the annual police circus, for the benefit of the St. Louis Police Relief Association, which will open tomorrow at the Coliseum for a run of 14 days, through May 8. There will be a matinee performance each day at 2 o'clock and an evening performance at 8 o'clock.

The length of the run has been extended from the usual 10 days because it was necessary to turn away customers last year, when 250,000 persons attended.

There will be 70 acts and 33 displays in three rings and on two stages, 185 performers, including 40 clowns, 75 dogs, 25 horses, a troupe of elephants, and other animals. The police quartette will sing, as usual. Among the acts will be "The Great Fussner," an aerialist who works his way up a spiral balancing on a ball.

Other star performers will be Winifred Colleano, who does a double somersault on the flying trapeze, Frank K. Leonard's black and white stallions, Big Burma, a "seven-ton" elephant, Mills and Mills, high wire comedians, and Capt. La-Gard, who does a wire slide holding on by his teeth.

Each ticket admits two persons. Every policeman is expected to sell at least 10, and two policemen in each district have been assigned especially to selling in recent weeks.

Officers are instructed not to sell to disreputable persons or anyone who might think he is buying a favor, such as a motorist who has committed a traffic offense. They are also instructed not to sell advertisements to hand-book shops or other suspected gambling establishments. The usual large number of saloons and night clubs have contributed advertisements.

The bulky program has 392 pages, 32 more than last year, but advertising revenue was not expected to gross any more than in 1937 because there is more filler, most of it devoted to safety slogans.

The Relief Association profited $56,000 by the show last year after all expenses were paid. The money goes to widows and orphans of policemen and to retiring policemen.

All residents of orphan homes and eleemosynary institutions in St. Louis that are able to attend will be admitted free at specified matinees. Seven hundred pounds of candy donated by 10-cent stores and candy companies will be distributed among the orphans.

EX-SECRETARY ADMITS TAKING $16,000 OF SIMONE SIMON'S

Woman Tells Prosecutor She Bought Furs, Clothing, Jewelry and Furniture.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, April 23.—District Attorney Buron Fitts announced today he had obtained from Sandra Martin, former secretary to Simone Simon, a confession that she withdrew thousands of dollars from the bank account of the French actress.

The District Attorney said the 32-year-old woman admitted shortly after her arrest today that she had withdrawn "about $16,000" from the actress's account between June 12 and Aug. 15 of last year while Miss Simon was in Europe.

Fitts said Miss Martin told him she spent the money for furs, clothing and jewelry for herself and new furniture for her apartment.

"I don't know exactly how much money I withdrew," the District Attorney quoted her as saying.

LUTHERAN CONVENTION PLANS

Plans for the national convention of the Lutheran Laymen's League to be held here June 14 and 15, will be discussed at a meeting tomorrow at 8 p. m. at Hotel Jefferson.

The laymen's convention is one of two Lutheran meetings to be held here in June, the other being the conference of the Lutheran Synod of Missouri, June 15 to 25. The hundredth anniversary of the landing of the Saxon immigrants, who established the Lutheran Church in America, will be celebrated at both conferences.

Extension of the Delmar selective service bus line of the Public Service Co., to give through service from downtown St. Louis to Clayton, starting May 2 for a 90-day trial period, was announced yesterday by the company and Mayor Charles A. Shaw of Clayton.

The new arrangement calls for discontinuance of the Forsythe shuttle bus now running from Clayton to the loop in University City during the hours of the proposed service, 6:30 a. m. to 6:15 p. m., on week days.

During those hours, the Delmar selective service bus will follow the Forsythe bus route to Clayton, ending at the Courthouse. The Forsythe shuttle service will operate as heretofore in the evenings and on Sunday. Fare for the new service will be 10 cents without transfer privileges.

WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE ELECTED BY EDITORS

Famous Emporian Named President of American Society—Resolutions Adopted.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 23. — William Allen White, the small-town editor whose writings have brought laughter and tears to millions, was elected president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors today. Newspaper men from the largest cities joined in honoring the 70-year-old proprietor of the Emporia (Kan.) Gazette.

White has edited the Gazette since 1895. Honored with degrees from several universities, and the author of numerous books and magazine articles, he has spurned all offers to leave Emporia for metropolitan journalism.

The Society of Editors, at the final session of its annual convention today, also urged the American people to enlist in its fight to preserve freedom of the press and to oppose any attempt of the Government to enter the field of news distribution.

Other officers elected were: Donald J. Sterling, the Portland (Ore.) Journal, first vice-president; Tom Wallace, the Louisville (Ky.) Times, second vice-president; M. V. Atwood, the Gannett Newspapers, secretary; Dwight Marvin, the Troy (N. Y.) Record, treasurer; directors, Sterling, Marvin, Edson K. Bixby, the Springfie'' (Mo.) News-Leader; Casper S. Yost, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat; J. N. Heiskell, the Arkansas Gazette, Little Rock, and J. Roscoe Drummond, the Christian Science Monitor, Boston.

College Head on Freedom of Press.

At a luncheon meeting after the convention, William Alfred Eddy, president of Hobart College, told the editors he thanked God for the American press—"That we live in the only great nation on the face of the earth today where a citizen can read the truth about his world."

By a divided vote, the convention rejected a Resolutions Committee proposal to oppose the use of syndicated political columns. The committee had divided, three to two, in favor of the proposal.

Other resolutions which the convention adopted said in part:

"The public interest demands that all legitimate agencies of information and opinion be safeguarded, not alone against arbitrary repression, but against the short-sighted designs of those for whom present impatience to establish their social order outweighs fundamental principles.

"We earnestly admonish the people of the United States that there is a zone where laws and constitutions fail unless a free and vigilant press reinforces charters and statutes with the power of publicity.

"Key-Hole Camera" Assailed.

"The key-hole camera and the surreptitious picture, or the picture taken by what amounts to force, are intolerably objectionable, as trespass upon the right of privacy; a newspaper which publishes a fake or false picture affronts the intelligence of the public and impeaches its own intelligence, as well as its own good faith; a counterfeit description of a picture is a forgery against truth and a fraud against fact; the headline that perverts the fair import of an article or fudges on the facts as contained in the article is a deception and a betrayal of trust.

"Newspapers should hold as their peculiar possession the place they in the main enjoy as the cleanest printed medium of general public information and entertainments; they should not give undue and excessive publicity to embarrassing or humiliating personal misfortune or suffering; they should inflexibly abjure the unblushing merchandising of depravity and degeneracy."

SALES TAX COLLECTOR CHARGED WITH KEEPING BACK $3932

Ordered to Show Cause in Chicago Why He Should Not Turn Money Over to Bankruptcy Trustee.

CHICAGO, April 23.—United States District Judge John P. Barnes ordered Edmond F. La Voie today to show cause within five days why he should not turn over to the trustee of the McFadden Motor Sales, Inc., $3932 which he was accused of receiving from that concern when a State sales tax collector.

La Voie was acquitted recently in the Criminal Court on charges of illegally receiving money from the motor company in return for fixing its sales tax records.

The trustee in his petition asserted he had learned that La Voie had received $3932 from the company without proper authorization, and that it belonged to the estate of the bankrupt concern.

ROBERT S. SKIDMORE SUED FOR DIVORCE, WED SECRETLY

Wife Alleges He Drank to Excess and Remained Away From Home.

Mrs. Juanita G. Skidmore, who was married secretly in December, 1935, filed suit Friday to divorce Robert Stuart Skidmore. Their marriage, at Columbia, Ill., was not announced until June, 1936.

Charging general indignities, Mrs. Skidmore alleged her husband drank to excess, gambled, remained away from home without explanation and was cool and indifferent. They separated last August. Skidmore was expected to file an answer.

Mrs. Skidmore, who attended Webster College, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Rives of Ferguson. She asked that her maiden name be restored.

IRELAND TO ELECT HYDE BY ACCLAMATION

Protestant, Nominated for President, Expected to Further Union With Ulster.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, April 23.—Catholic Ireland's great Protestant harmonizer may have the chance of producing concord between his state and Protestant northern Ireland.

He is 78-year-old Dr. Douglas Hyde, who was nominated for President of Ireland by the nation's two leading political parties. It was expected he will be elected by acclamation May 4.

Of his nomination, Dr. Hyde had only this to say: "It is a very great honor—but I am so old."

But with the division of Ireland (called Eire in Gaelic) and northern Ireland (Ulster) an issue bigger than even, though the partition took place nearly two decades ago, many have been talking about what his selection might achieve.

There are 2,750,000 Catholics in Ireland, well over 90 per cent of the population, and only some 420,000 Catholics in Ulster, about one-seventh of the population.

Hyde has not talked publicly about the possibility of union—something the Anglo-Irish agreement to be signed Monday in London will not achieve—and it was too soon to predict one man could bring it about.

But there are many who recall that, crusading for revival of the Gaelic language, at the close of the last century, he succeeded in uniting Protestants and Catholics in his Gaelic Language League, which, he once said, was the "spiritual father of the Sinn Fein, and the Sinn Feni's progeny were the volunteers who forced England to make the treaty" which granted Ireland dominion status.

Hyde fought for the return of national pride fervently and eloquently. In his campaign he went to the United States, where he previously had lectured at Rutgers University, and collected $55,000 for the cause. He saw the Irish tongue rise from an almost dead language to be taught in every school in Ireland.

Now in Ireland and in England they are asking whether the hour has come for Hyde to unite Protestants and Catholics again.

Officially, Ulster was cold to the nomination of a Protestant chief of state in Ireland. Some commentators said it would do nothing to induce closer relations. However, the Catholic primate of all Ireland, Cardinal MacRory, was responsible for the suggestion a non-party leader be chosen "as an object lesson in unity." And Ulster Catholics have hailed the selection of Hyde.

When he was chosen, people remembered his answer many years ago when an interrupter at one of his Gaelic meetings cried "to hell with England."

"No, my friend," said Hyde soothingly, "to Heaven with Ireland."

CHILD BRIDE, 12, ORDERED RETURNED TO REFORMATORY

Delaware Judge Finds Girl Violated Her Parole; Says Marriage Is Illegal.

By the Associated Press.

GEORGETOWN, Del., April 23.—A 12-year-old girl who became a bride 11 days ago was separated today from her 37-year-old husband and sent to the State Industrial School for Girls.

Almira Mae McChesney, weeping, was taken immediately to the school at Claymont at the close of a hearing before Judge Earle E. Willey on a charge of having violated her parole.

Her husband, a fisherman, returned to the home in Lewes, where she cooked his meals and kept house before school authorities, investigating the girl's absence, discovered the marriage.

The Judge told the child: "I wish you could live with Samuel McChesney, but the law forbids the marriage of a girl your age. The minimum age for marriage in this State is 16 years."

The girl, who will be 13 next Saturday, was placed in the custody of the Court at the age of 9 when she was arrested for mutilating gravestones in a churchyard. She was paroled to the custody of her mother last March.

MAN SHOOTS WIFE, KILLS HER BROTHER, COMMITS SUICIDE

Sets Fire to Home and Dance Hall Before Ending His Life at Whalen Lake, Wis.

By the Associated Press.

SPOONER, Wis., April 23.—Al Bonde wounded his wife today, killed her brother who went to her rescue, and then took his own life, according to Sheriff R. H. Willis.

Mrs. Bonde, shot twice in the right side of the chest, was brought here in a serious condition from Bonde's home on Whalen Lake, 10 miles north of Spooner.

Mrs. Bonde said that when her husband started shooting at her, Willard Morse, her brother, rushed to her aid. Bonde fired, she told Willis, and Morse fell mortally wounded.

Bonde then set fire to his home and dance hall. The properties were destroyed. Neighbors attracted by the blaze and shots found Bonde dead.

Willis said jealousy apparently was the motive for the shooting.

CHILDREN'S AUTO FATALITY RATE LOWEST SINCE 1925

Only One Younger Than 15 Has Been Killed in St. Louis Traffic So Far This Year.

There has been but one automobile fatality of a child younger than 15 years of age so far this year, compared with seven for the same period last year and five for 1936, the St. Louis Safety Council announced yesterday. This is the lowest number of deaths for children of that age group since 1925.

Carl Barker, president of the council in commenting on the fact that no boy or girl under 15 has been killed this year when en route to school, said he believes the low accident frequency rate for that group proves the value of good instruction and supervision. The one child killed this year, Barker said, was a 4-year-old boy who was struck when crossing a street with his mother by an automobile which did not stop.

The juvenile deaths for the last 12 years for the period of Jan. 1 through April 23 follows: 1937, 7; 1936, 5; 1935, 2; 1934, 3; 1933, 6; 1932, 5; 1931, 9; 1930, 7; 1929, 6; 1928, 5; 1927, 6, and 1926, 12.

WASHINGTON, April 23. — The Loose-Wiles Biscuit Co. of Kansas City, Mo., has been served by the Federal Trade Commission with an order to cease and desist from selling and distributing to dealers candy or bakery products so packed and assembled that sales to the public may be made by means of a lottery, gaming device or gift enterprise.

The company's practices were held to constitute unfair competition in violation of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Field work in the observation of bird, reptile and animal life, wild-flowers, trees, and geological formations will be held under the supervision of William G. Hollister, an Eagle Scout, and a graduate of the University of Nebraska.

More than 800 boys are expected to attend the camp, which is sponsored annually by the St. Louis Boy Scout Council. Campmaster S. C. Reaves will be assisted by a staff of specialists in the various phases of scout training. Guy L. Short will be assistant campmaster and Lee Lane director of activities.

Preparations for the annual Boy Scout Camporee at Tilles Park May 20-22 have been begun with the appointment by the Council of camp chiefs and district campmasters to assist Col. H. D. McBride, St. Louis Scout commissioner, who will be in charge.

Wilson C. Mitchell will have supervision of the Cub division and E. B. Langenberg will direct senior Scout activities. F. W. Kelly, W. C. Berkemeyer, E. F. Richards and Harry C. Noe have been appointed assistant camp chiefs.

District campmasters include Willis Erhardt, Northwest District; C. B. Markman, North Star; T. H. Mize, Pioneer; H. F. Walz, South; R. E. Davis, Midland; Bruce L. Evans, West; J. B. Cushing, Central and Suburban, and P. H. Shull, Arrowhead and Daniel Boone Districts.

Scout units at the camporee this year will be judged on the basis of administration, campcraft, activity program and commissary, Col. H. D. McBride said.

Girl Scouts.

More than 500 volunteer Girl Scout leaders and officers, representing 34,000 girl members of the Scout movement, are expected to attend the fourteenth annual conference of the "Covered Wagon" region at Hotel Statler May 5-7. The region includes Missouri, Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa.

Nine national officers, including Mrs. Paul Rittenhouse, national Girl Scout director, and Miss Agnes Leahy, executive secretary of the personnel division, will address the delegates on recent trends in the scouting program of activities.

A special feature of the conference will be a musical pageant, depicting the international aspects of the Girl Scout movement, which will be presented Friday evening, May 6, at Beaumont High School. More than 4000 Girl Scouts of the St. Louis area will participate in the production entitled "These Things Shall Be."

Local officers at the meeting will include Mrs. Louis H. Burlingham, regional conference chairman; Mrs. Frank M. Mayfield, conference vice-chairman, and Mrs. Monroe C. Lewis, St. Louis Girl Scout commissioner.

Caledonian Society Memorial.

The annual memorial service of the Caledonian Society of St. Louis will be held this evening at 8 o'clock at the Southampton Presbyterian Church, 5353 Nottingham avenue. The Rev. Thomas Baxter, pastor of St. Paul Presbyterian Church, will speak on "The God of Your Fathers."

CARDINALS LOSE TO CUBS, 4-0, WILL BAT AGAINST DEAN TODAY

FRENCH, IN FINE FORM, SCATTERS FOUR HITS

Demaree Drives in Three Runs With Two Singles and Outfield Fly, Collins Bats in One With Triple.

By J. Roy Stockton
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

CHICAGO, April 23. — Larry French, left-handed, sore-armed problem pitcher of the Cubs' spring training trip, scattered four Cardinal hits over as many innings this afternoon and Dizzy Dean's new playmates squared their series with the Gas House Gang by taking the second game, 4 to 0.

Mickey Owen hit two singles, Enos Slaughter and Stuart Martin each connected for a double and that was the extent of the St. Louis attack against the left-handed star of Charley Grimm's pitching staff.

French had excellent control, walking only one man, and three of the four Redbird safeties were made after Larry had retired two batters.

Missed Opportunities.

Despite French's fine performance, the Cardinals had many opportunities, but each time they faltered. In the very first inning Gutteridge led with a grounder to Stanley Hack and reached second when the Cub third baseman threw into the Cardinal dug-out. Stuart Martin, trying to sacrifice, bunted straight to French and Gutteridge was caught in a run-up and retired. Stuart reached second on the play, but Slaughter and Pepper Martin were helpless as French cut the corners of the plate with well assorted curves.

Owen started the third inning with the first Cardinal hit, a single to center, and Si Johnson sacrificed, but Gutteridge struck out and Stuart Martin, trying to hold back his bat, tapped weakly to French to end that frame.

Two were out in the fifth when Owen shot a grounder past Jurges for his second hit and the second safety off French and Johnson quickly ended the inning by striking out.

After Gutteridge and Stuart Martin were retired in the sixth, Slaughter doubled to right-center and Pepper Martin drew a pass to make it the only inning in which the Cards had as many as two men on base. Johnny Mize, however, left the two men stranded by sending a fly to left for the third out.

Stainback, batting for Johnson, and Gutteridge had been retired in the eighth when Stuart Martin doubled to left-center, and in this mild crisis Demaree helped French by racing along the right field wall for a fine catch of Slaughter's drive.

Pitches Out of Jams.

Johnson pitched out of many jams to hold down the Cub scoring in the early innings and it was a close contest until the Bruins scored twice in the seventh. In the opening frame Hack's single, stolen base, a pass to Herman, a sacrifice and an intentional pass to Demaree filled the bases, but Johnson kept his curve low to Marty and the Cub hero of the first game

BOURBON KING BEATS 7 OTHER DERBY HORSES

By the Associated Press.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 23.—Bourbon King, Hal Price Headley's bay colt, flashed to prominence as a Kentucky Derby candidate today by a smashing victory in the $15,000 Chesapeake Stakes.

Before 20,000 surprised fans, the colt sped the mile and a sixteenth in 1:45 1-5, just a fifth of a second slower than the time made by War Admiral last year. War Admiral went on to win the Derby and become the 1937 three-year-old champion.

Bourbon King, neglected in the mutuels as popular support went to A. C. Compton's Sun Egret, paid $18.40, $6.70 and $4.50.

A length and a quarter behind the winner was B. F. Whitaker's Mythical King. Blind Eagle, owned by Mrs. Emil Denemark, was third. Both are Derby candidates.

Sun Egret, for the second consecutive Saturday, ran out of the money. He set the pace and led half-way round, but tired badly and finished fifth, three lengths back of Stormscud and six lengths behind Bourbon King. Sun Egret was just a little better than even-money favorite at $1.25 to $1.

Jockey Sunny Workman gave Bourbon King a perfectly judged ride. He broke sixth and moved up gradually to third at the half-way mark. Workman sent him to the lead nearing the stretch and he finished going away—without being hit by the whip.

Stormscud was the only starter not a Derby eligible. Mrs. Parker Corning's Thanksgiving was sixth; Brown Moth, owned by John Farrell Jr., was seventh and Whitaker's Crepe eighth.

SAN ROMANI IS MILE WINNER IN KANSAS RELAYS

By the Associated Press.

LAWRENCE, Kan., April 23.—Eight new records flashed from the gloomy setting of the sixteenth annual Kansas relays today, but missing from the list was a mile mark expected to be dug up by the spiked shoes of Glenn Cunningham, Archie San Romani, Don Lash or Gene Venzke.

Instead of breaking his own meet record of 4:12.7, the great Cunningham found himself suffering his first defeat in 22 starts, with San Romani breasting the tape [illegible] rather apathetic time of 4:23 [illegible]

The estimated 10,000 fans [illegible] sat beneath sullen skies gained some solace for the disappointment in the outcome of the mile [illegible] other performances.

Records toppled in the pole vault, high jump, 120-yard hurdles, the shuttle hurdle relay, university mile team race, university sprint med-

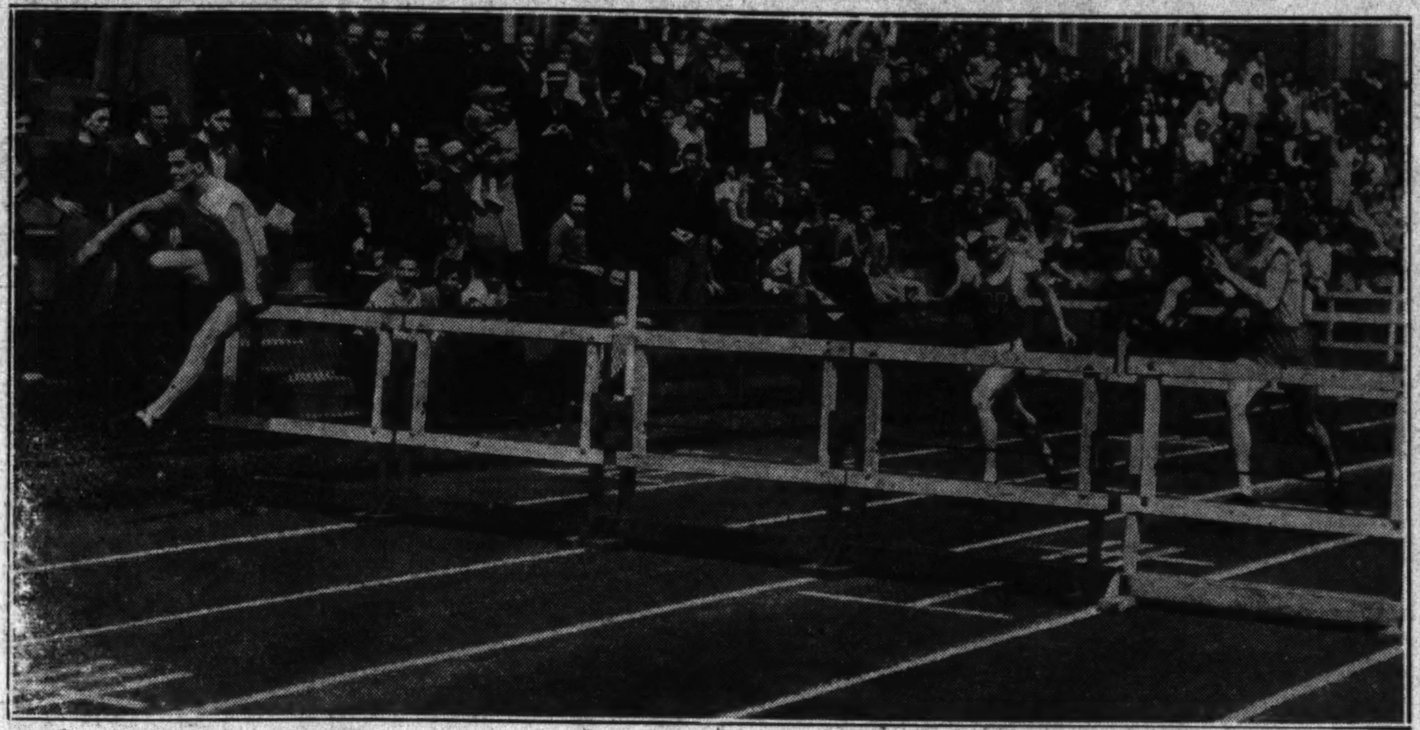
A Record Bettered, A Record Tied in High School Meet



Jimmy Johnson of Kirkwood, at extreme left, ran the 120-yard high hurdles in 15 seconds flat to set a new record for the district meet, at Maplewood, yesterday. Henry Schlesinger of University City, center, finished second and Jimmy Davis of McBride, third.

Ralph Blumberg of University City won both dashes. He is shown at the left, winning the 100 in the record-equalling time of 10.1 seconds. The second man was Soldofsky of Roosevelt, near the right side of the photograph, and the third finisher Gallo of Beaumont, next to Soldofsky.

ILLINOIS WINS FROM MICHIGAN, 14 TO 7, IN CONFERENCE GAME

By the Associated Press.

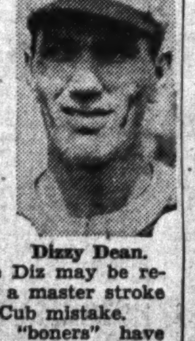
CHAMPAIGN, Ill., April 23.—The University of Illinois, defending champions in the 1938 Big Ten conference baseball race, swept its opening series with Michigan today by winning 14 to 7. A seven run assault in the first inning started off the Illini to their second successive victory, Jack Berner led the attack with three hits.

WRAY'S COLUMN

When Diz Faces the Redbirds.

IF THERE'S a winning game in Dizzy Dean's much debated arm it will come out today at Chicago, or as soon thereafter as he may be sent against his teammates of recent years, the Cardinals. Diz would almost give that dexter wing to humiliate Frankie Frisch and show up, as he might term it, the club officials.

And, from the opposite angle, there isn't much doubt that the Redbird players will give Dizzy the works in an effort to avenge what many of the veterans think was the shabby treatment he meted out to them and to the club management.



Dizzy Dean.

It will be an anxious afternoon for all concerned, but particularly for the Chicago Cubs, whose investment of $185,000 and three players in the deal for Ole Diz may be revealed as either a master stroke or just another Cub mistake.

Cub financial "boners" have been rather frequent and costly, in recent years, and not even a chicle bankroll can be stretched indefinitely.

He Gained His Point.

FANS EVERYWHERE are interested to learn whether Dean's arm will be at its peak this year or whether it was really impaired last season. Skepticism as to its ever having been sore exists among a large proportion of the fans. Physicians believe that much of Dean's trouble has been temperament and that his ailments will disappear now that he has attained his objective—that of freeing himself from his Cardinal connection.

If that turns out to be the case, the Cubs will surely carry on to high places for a Dizzy Dean at his best, can hardly fail to win 25 games or more, with support like the Cubs are able to give.

His value to Chicago is exceptional, although in the past, the Cubs beat Diz 17 times, whereas he was able to defeat them in only 13 games.

On the other hand Dizzy beat the Cubs' most feared rivals, the Giants, 21 times and lost only 15—all of which would make the Cubs appear to be a pennant cinch, with Dean pitching his strongest.

Until Dean has been thoroughly tested, however, the power of

McGonnigle Holds Culver Stockton, Billikens Win, 5-0

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CANTON, Mo., April 23.—St. Louis University's baseball team behind the steady pitching of Mel McGonnigle, gained its fifth victory of the season here this afternoon, defeating Culver Stockton College 5 to 0.

McGonnigle, a husky right-hander, was in full control all the way, scattering six hits and striking out 10 batters while his teammates fattened their batting averages on Al Egley, getting 10 bingles.

The Billikens took a one-run lead in the first inning on hits by Bill Ratican and George Hasser, added another in the third and three more in the following inning. Egley bore down too late, holding the Billikens to two safeties in the remaining innings.

University City Wins District Track Title in Both Divisions

By Reno Hahn.

University City won both divisions of the eleventh annual District high school track and field meet yesterday afternoon at Maplewood High School's field, easily taking the senior division by a wide margin and nosing out Roosevelt by one point in the junior class.

Only one record was set and one tied as the athletes found the previous marks too good to beat. About 500 spectators watched the meet held on a fast track with a slight favoring wind.

Third place in the 880-yard relay gave the Indians their one-point margin over Roosevelt, despite the latter team's triumph in that event.

As the rivals went into the last event for juniors University City had 21 points, Maplewood, 18½ and Roosevelt 17. The Rough Riders won their heat of the relay and also the final and gained five points. The Indians took third to the Rough Riders and also third in the final, getting two points, making the final score, University City 23, Roosevelt 22. Maplewood failed to place in the relay, but finished third with 18½ points.

University City scored 40 points in the senior division.

Jimmy Johnson of Kirkwood was the only record-breaker of the meet, lowering the senior 120-yard high hurdle mark from 15.4 seconds to 15 seconds. Joe Finch, University City, held the old mark.

Johnson ran a pretty race in setting the new mark. He started behind Henry Schlesinger of University City, took the lead after three hurdles and won by three yards.

Ralph Blumberg, University City, was the only double winner in the senior division, taking the 100 and 220-yard dashes. He tied the record in the 100, being timed in 10.1 seconds. The finish was very close, with Blumberg's margin about a yard and the other three to take places being so close the judges took 10 minutes to decide the next three positions.

Blumberg was timed in the 220-yard dash in 23.1 seconds, a half-

BROWNS BEAT WHITE SOX, 5-4; NEWSOM'S SECOND VICTORY

HURLER ALSO BATS IN THE WINNING RUN WITH SINGLE

Mazzera and Gerald Walker Hit Home Runs; Street's Men Collect Eleven Hits.

By W. J. McGoogan

Buck Newsom pitched and batted the Browns to a 5-to-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon, giving the Browns a record of two triumphs and three defeats and putting his club even with the Sox in the present set. It also was Newsom's second and complete winning effort of the season, as he defeated Cleveland opening day.

Not only did Newsom hold the Sox to six hits, but he drove in two runs with singles, the last coming in the eighth inning with McQuinn on third enabling George to count with the winning marker.

Previously Buck hit a single in the fourth inning to put the club a run ahead.

Newsom had plenty of speed and good control. He pitched a steady game, walking but three men. He retired the Sox in order in four innings and in another only three men faced him as one walked and was retired stealing.

Find Batting Eye.

The Browns came out of their hitting slump in fine style, too, smashing out eleven safe hits, including a home run for Mel Mazzera, young outfielder. Mel also had a single. Clift started his 1938 batting campaign with two singles after failing to hit safely in the four previous contests. McQuinn also had two singles and Heffner a pair.

Also the Browns played a splendid fielding game, not an error marking their efforts.

Ted Lyons, beginning his sixteenth season as a member of the White Sox, started for Chicago and retired in the eighth inning with the Sox leading, 4 to 3, so the defeat was charged to his reliever, Rigney.

Steinbacher got three of Chicago's six hits and one of his blows was a double. Gerald Walker hit a home run in the sixth with Steinbacher on base and put the Sox two runs ahead at the time.

The Browns were the first to score, counting a run in the second inning. Bell walked and Clift flied to Kreevich. Owen threw out Kress. McQuinn walked and Heffner came through with a safety to center, sending Bell over the plate.

Chicago Scores in Fourth.

It was not until the fourth inning that the Sox got their first hit off Newsom. That was a pop double to left field by Hayes. Kreevich grounded to Heffner; then Steinbacher came through with a single to right which scored Hayes.

The Browns forged ahead again in their half. But it took four singles to get the run. Clift started with a single and was doubled stealing as Kress fanned. Then McQuinn singled and Heffner beat out a slow roller down the third base line, McQuinn stopping at second. Newsom hit a solid single to left field and McQuinn came home.

Newsom retired Lyons and Hayes to start the Sox sixth; then he walked Kreevich. Steinbacher hit the left field fence with a line double and Kreevich scored. Walker banged his home run into the left field stands and rode home behind Steinbacher to put the Sox ahead, 4 to 2.

Newsom grounded to Berger in the seventh and Mazzera hit on top of the right field pavilion for a home run.

Winning Rally.

Rigney relieved Lyons in the eighth, after Thompson had batted for Ted, and Clift, first up, walked. Kress laid down a fine sacrifice. McQuinn hit a sharp single to left and Clift brought in the tying run. McQuinn took second on a wild pitch. Kuhel retired Heffner unassisted on a beautiful play.

Newsom shot a low liner to right center and it appeared for a moment that Kreevich had made a sensational catch, but the umpires ruled it a pickup and the Sox didn't squawk. McQuinn easily scored with what proved to be the winning run as Newsom mowed down the Sox in order in the ninth. He got Kuhel on a fly to Mazzera. McQuinn made a fine stop of Owen's smash and retired him unassisted. Then Rosenthal, batting for Berg-

WHITEHEAD AND WALKUP NAMED TO PITCH TODAY

JIM WALKUP is scheduled to pitch the final game of the series with the White Sox this afternoon. Game time is 2:30 o'clock. Boys and girls will not be admitted free. Whitehead will probably pitch for the White Sox.

Detroit calls for a three-game series, starting tomorrow. Cleveland comes in for two games, and then the Browns go on the road again.

Jim Weaver had a blister on a finger of his pitching hand the other day and is expected to be out for several days.

Gerald Walker, White Sox left fielder, flew here from Hattiesburg, Miss., in time for the game. He had returned home because of the death of his mother.

Joe Medwick, lumbago and all, watched the game. He said his back is still painful.

Clift got a single in the fourth inning, his first safety of the season. Previously he had been to bat 14 times without a hit.

Kress made a good stop of Hayes' smash behind second base in the sixth and threw him out.

Heffner turned a smart play in the seventh. Owen started with a single. Then Berger popped to Heffner, who dropped the ball purposely. He picked it up, threw to McQuinn, retiring Berger and Owen, dashing for second, was doubled, McQuin to Kress to McQuinn.

The attendance was announced 11,765, including 4085 paid, 4520 boys, 1284 girls and 2850 women. The 5804 children was the largest number of children ever to attend a Browns' game.

Joe Kuhel, White Sox first baseman, made a great glove-hand stop behind first base on Don Heffner's smash in the eighth and beat him to the bag. Kreevich followed with a diving stop of Newsom's low liner, but it was a pickup and went for a single.

RIZZO'S SLUGGING HELPS PIRATES WALLOP REDS, 6 TO 2

ROOKIE GETS TWO TRIPLES, SCORES TWICE

Pittsburgh Gains Fifth Victory of Season, Scoring Three Runs in First and Fifth Innings.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 23.—The Pittsburgh Pirates grabbed a tighter hold atop the National League today by pinning a 6 to 2 decision on the Cincinnati Reds. It was the fifth consecutive victory in the current campaign for the Bucs.

Johnny Rizzo, Pittsburgh's rookie left fielder, teed off a couple of 450-foot triples to the centerfield fence to spark three runs each in the first and fifth innings.

Lloyd and Paul Waner walked and came home on Rizzo's drive in the first. In the fifth Lloyd again walked and came home on Paul's double to right and "Big Poison" scored on Rizzo's second three-bagger.

Each time Arky Vaughan brought Rizzo home with long flies.

Blanton gave up seven hits and two runs but went the route for the Pirates.

A double by Bill Myers, followed by singles by Pinch Hitter Lee Gamble and Ival Goodman scored two Red runs in the eighth.

It was Pittsburgh's twentieth straight victory from the Reds in Forbes Field since August, 1936.

Big Ten Track Meet May 21.

The Big Ten track and field championships will be decided at Columbus, O., May 21.

TRICK DOUBLE PLAY: Two Out On Muffed Pop Fly

Don Heffner, the Browns' new second baseman, exhibited some of the smartness Gabby Street declares his team will show this season, when he engineered a clever double play in the seventh inning of yesterday's game at Sportsman's Park. Marvin Owen, leading off for the Chicago White Sox, singled. Then Boze Berger sent up a pop fly which Heffner purposely dropped when he saw Owen was not far off first base. Picking up the ball, Heffner threw to first, retiring Berger, and McQuinn's throw to Kress and the shortstop's relay to first resulted in a putout on Owen. Owen is shown trying to get back to first, with McQuinn waiting for him. Catcher Billy Sullivan also is on top of the play. Muddy Ruel is the Chicago coach and Ed Rommell the umpire.

that right arm must still be a question mark. If he turns in a tip-top game against the Cardinals in their first encounter, the Cubs can begin making their world series arrangements.

The Best Defense.

REMEMBER THE DAYS when they called boxing "the manly art of self-defense?" We have often wondered about that because if the boys were looking for the most efficient defense, they should have picked on some other physical science than boxing.

As a matter of fact, the expression probably was just a smoke screen to hide the hard fact that "boxing" really was "fighting," a game supposed to be beneath the dignity of all but plug-uglies. They do much the same thing today with horse racing which, they tell us, is "to improve the breed of thoroughbreds" when as everybody knows, it's just a plain old money grabbing idea.

If they really sought a defense, instead of boxing they should have taught our youth wrestling—the real stuff, not the acrobatics that now goes under the name. A wrestler could always beat a boxer. That fact was proved again last week when Wrestler Lee Wykoff took Fighter Harry Thomas in five three-minute rounds—and could have done it earlier, but for prohibitive regulations.

In every instance in which such bouts have been arranged, the fighter has been the victim. All St. Louis fans remember the case of King Levinsky, who faced Ray Steele here and lasted 40 seconds. Ed Lewis in his day easily downed boxers who opposed him.

The fighter practically has no chance to stop a wrestler from getting his hands on him. One dive for the legs and the bout is as good as over. Wykoff required 15 minutes because this dive was barred under rules agreed on in advance.

An Armstrong Pessimist.

"WHAT HAS HE ever done?" inquired Fight Promoter Larry Atkins, speaking of the boxer who was almost unanimously voted the outstanding fighter of the year, Henry Armstrong, Negro featherweight champion of the world.

"I look over the list of men he has beaten and I don't see any truly greats," continued Atkins. "The featherweight class was pretty punk with a fighter like Petey Sarron to top it—and Petey gave Armstrong lots of trouble for several rounds. The other featherweights don't count.

"The lightweights he has beaten were either second-raters or men who had gone back, like Wesley Ramey. You can't rank Venturi and that kind as top fighters. Billy Beauhuld was never a great fighter. Just why should they rank Armstrong as one of the all-time greats, even in the featherweight division, which produced Abe Attell, Johnny Kilbane, Terry McGovern and that kind?"

We bit—why should they? The answer was they shouldn't, because Armstrong has not had to fight the same type of opponents his predecessors faced.

About the Ross Fight.

"YOU'LL FIND out about Armstrong when he faces Barney Ross," Atkins went on. "Of course that's too big a jump for Armstrong. Also, Ross is class. He has fought real fighters who can hit, like McLarnin and Canzoneri. He is the cleverest fighter of the day. I can't give Armstrong much of a chance to beat him.

"Three titles? Say, even if he gets by Ross, which I can't see, he'll still have to fight Lou Ambers—and there's a pretty good lightweight. Ask Pedro Montanez. I won't be surprised if both champions defeat Armstrong. If there was a featherweight worth the name, Henry might even miss all three titles. It must be a pretty tight fit, that featherweight limit of 126 pounds."

Plenty of common sense in what Atkins has to say. Besides, if Armstrong is beginning to get arm-weary, it is not because he hasn't been overworked. This lad, no longer a spring chicken, has been campaigned severely for two years, and it would be no surprise if, with that perpetual motion style, he showed signs of "burning out."

It's all right to spend nature's surplus, and it's all wrong to draw upon its capital.

We Need Him.

THEY SEEM TO BE making quite a noise about our Donald Budge and Gene Mako, over in Australia, where the tennis pair spent many weeks in tennis exhibitions and tournaments.

It seems that expenses were sought by the Americans in a telegram sent from Australia to New Zealand, where Don and Gene were wanted for exhibition matches. The telegram, according to an article in "The Referee," one of Australia's leading sports publications, asked for £20 each for "expenses."

The incident was brought to the attention of the U. S. L. T. A. and nothing seems to have been done about it. In the light of the past, it is unlikely that any action will be taken. The U. S. L. T. A. needs Budge, and possibly Mako, to protect the Davis Cup, and also to produce big gate receipts, possible this year for the first time because of Budge's victory in the Davis Cup play last year.

The right or wrong of these matters is still being debated. As a rule, the men highest in the tennis scale seldom suffer any punishment.

Bill Tilden, who made a living out of tennis for the best 10 years out of his amateur life, always found an escape from the apparent intent of the rule which declares you're no longer an amateur if you capitalize your tennis reputation.

grounded into a double play.

In the third inning Herman walked, advanced to second on a wild pitch after two were out and scored on Demaree's single to center. French's single, Herman's double and Demaree's single added a run in the fifth and in the seventh the Bruins doubled their total when Hack singled, Herman sacrificed and Rip Collins, picking on a half-speed ball that was too good, tripled against the right field wall. Demaree's long fly to Slaughter scored Collins.

Krist pitched the eighth inning and turned back the Cubs in order.

Dean to Hurl Today.

Jerome Herman Dean will make his Chicago debut as a Cub tomorrow afternoon when he pitches against the Cardinals in the third and final game of the series. Manager Frisch said this afternoon that either Bob Weiland or Bill McGee would oppose the former ace of the Gas House Gang staff.

Dean and the Redbirds were disinclined to talk about the probable outcome of the first clash between the talkative pitcher and his former teammates. The Cardinals, however, are deeply interested in what they consider a real test of the Dean arm.

"We'll know a lot more about last year and what the Cubs can expect this season," one of the players said. "He's been talking about a sore arm for a long time, and we know he'll be bearing down against us."

"Diz won't last six innings against us," another player said. "Not with what he's been throwing to the hitters this spring. He can't get us out long with that junk."

"We're going to pin his ears back," Sam Breadon said. "I'm confident of that. I consider him a great pitcher, but I don't think he's in condition as yet. He hasn't worked hard enough. But if he wants to work hard, he can go down in history as one of the great pitchers of all time."

Sorry Medwick Won't Play.

Dizzy, in one of his few statements about his game with the Cards, said he was sorry Joe Medwick wasn't going to be in the line-up, as he knew how to stop Joe. If Dizzy does know that he could get plenty of attention from other pitchers in the league.

Dizzy has pitched about 25 innings this year, 19 in spring training games and six innings against the Reds at Cincinnati in his only league start. He was credited with that victory. After six frames, during which he yielded eight hits and two runs, he was removed for a pinch hitter, Manager Grimm explaining he did not want Dean to work too long in his first start.

While Dizzy has been strangely silent about his coming test against his old teammates, he has spoken freely about other things. He has bragged about the Cubs' trainer, the Cub uniforms, the Cub defense and the Cub attack. One day he said Bill McKechnie was the greatest manager in the business and the following afternoon he gave the palm to Grimm. In 1934 Frankie Frisch was tops.

While none of the Cardinals will discuss the possibility, it would not be surprising to some observers if the game developed evidence of hard feeling between Dean and several of the Cardinals. He has been quoted as saying he would knock down a few of his former comrades, and if he goes through with the plan, there may be attempted reprisals.

RED BIRD NOTES

CHICAGO, April 23.

PEPPER MARTIN, called to his Oklahoma City home on account of the illness of his young daughter, returned to the club this morning and Manager Frisch assigned him to center field.

The game attracted only 7770 cash customers, not much of a turnout in view of the ambitions of the Cubs.

Manager Grimm is considering benching Triplett and sending Augie Galan to left field for the final game with the Cardinals. If he makes the change Galan will bat first, with Hack dropping to sixth position.

The Cardinals announced that Morton Cooper, right-handed pitcher, had been released to Houston on option. He was with the Columbus team last season and with the Cardinals all this spring.

M'KINLEY BEATS BEAUMONT NINE; LEADS LEAGUE

McKinley spoiled Beaumont's perfect record and moved into first place in the City High School League baseball race by defeating the Blue Jackets, 5 to 0, in the feature game of yesterday's tripleheader at the Public Schools Stadium. The Goldbugs are unbeaten in two games.

Beaumont's defeat, its first in three starts, shoved the Jackets into a tie for second place with Cleveland, which trimmed Soldan, 7 to 1, in the morning game yesterday. Roosevelt broke a two-game losing streak and at the same time gained its first league victory by drubbing Blewett, 10 to 6, in the first afternoon game.

Matthew Mugavero of McKinley, a small right-handed pitcher, needed little batting support, for he limited Beaumont to three hits and held the Jackets hitless after the third inning. Only once was he in trouble. That was in the fifth, when a walk, error and hit batsman filled the bases with two out. There was no score, however, for Mugavero struck out Jack Roehlk, one of Beaumont's leading hitters.

Early Home Run.

McKinley scored in the first inning when Leftfielder Frank Stehlik hit a home run.

Cleveland and Roosevelt each took a leaf from the book of Joe McCarthy, exponent of the "one-big inning policy," for the South Side teams won their games by virtue of five-run uprisings in the sixth inning.

Cleveland, through Shortstop Walter Debaets' home run with Warren Stecher on, had a 2-1 lead at the sixth, but in that frame the South Siders fell on Joe Honhorst, Soldan righthander, knocked him out and continued their attack on his successor, Southpaw Al Olevich. Four hits, a walk and two errors produced Cleveland's five runs.

Rally Was Needed.

Whereas Cleveland's rally was not sorely needed, with John Eichelberger twirling three-hit ball, Roosevelt's big inning came in handy. After the Rough Riders had pounded Charley Zachritz, Blewett's No. 1 pitcher who was working in a relief role, for five runs and an 8-2 lead, Blewett countered with two runs, which drove Bob Denish from the box, and two more in the seventh. Relief Pitcher Bob Osterholt stopped Blewett in the last inning, however, by fanning Zachritz for the third out, leaving two base-runners stranded.

Roosevelt's first three runs, oddly enough, all were home runs. Bob Dockery, Blewett starter, threw home run balls to Bob Stevens in the third and Benish and Chris Fehr in succession in the fourth.

Idle yesterday, Central marked time in fourth place with one victory and one defeat.

PRINCIPIA COLLEGE BEATS CONCORDIA, 3-1

Aided by Concordia Seminary's six errors, Principia College's baseball team defeated the Seminarians, 3 to 1, yesterday afternoon at Concordia.

Although Pitcher Richard Jesse of Concordia allowed only four hits, walks and lapses in the field hurt his cause. In the fourth inning Principia counted twice, Pitcher Spaulding and Larson scoring.

Tuffli counted Principia's third run in the seventh frame.

Concordia's lone tally came in the fifth when Hieber scored on Wertman's single.

Today's Odds Against Cards

Two sets of odds on today's game between the Cardinals and Cubs, depending on whether Dizzy Dean pitches for Chicago, were announced by St. Louis betting commissioner Jimmy Carroll last night. If Dean pitches the price against the Cubs is 2 to 5 and against the Cardinals 9 to 5. Without Dean it is 1 to 2 against the Cubs and 3 to 2 against the Cardinals.

Two Shoots Scheduled.

Two shoots are scheduled to take place today in the St. Louis vicinity. The trapshooters will compete in the Illinois-Missouri League shoot scheduled at Gillespie, Ill., while the skeet marksmen will vie at the annual Bonne Terre (Mo.) Gun Club event.

WES FERRELL IS 7 TO 4 WINNER OVER YANKEES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Wes Ferrell pitched himself into a spot in the ninth inning today and then pitched himself right out again to save a 7 to 4 victory for the Washington Senators over the Yankees before a crowd of 24,949 in Yankee Stadium here this afternoon.

Washington led 4-2 after the first three innings at the expense of Lefty Gomez and finally belted him out in the seventh with their game-winning rally. The Yanks tied it up in the sixth, but Ferrell survived to win his second game of the season.

The Yanks tallied two runs in the sixth without a hit, and the Senators scored the two winning tallies in the seventh on just one hit.

In the ninth, Ferrell loaded the bases on three walks, and then got Bill Dickey on a long fly, which Jonathan Stone took with his back against the right-field barrier for the third out.

Top Hat.

A horse named Opera Hat won at Jamaica the other day. There was very little play on him, however, as it was generally thought he would fold up.

ON Opera Hat I bet a "V,"
The bacon home to fetch,
Though everybody thought that he Would fold up in the stretch.

On the Job.

Seems as though the Browns haven't got the old hoodoo scotched yet. They lost their opening home game to the White Sox in the thirteenth inning.

He who hesitates is lost—
Coddled eggs, a flag may cost.

"Whitcombe Wins $5000 Golf Tourney."

Indicating that if he keeps it up Whitcombe will soon be leading the life of Riley.

A crowd of 54,500 saw the Tigers lose the opening home game to the Indians, 4-3. Their grief was somewhat assuaged by Lynwood Rowe, who allowed but one hit in five innings. Indicating that the Schoolboy isn't going to flunk again.

Somebody presented Gabby Street with a big basket of roses before the game Friday, which is generally considered the forerunner of defeat. They'll do it every time.

Not that we begrudge the old Sarge—beg pardon, the Colonel—his basket of flowers. But if he pulls the Browns up into first division, we'll gladly slip him an orchid.

Judging by their recent performances against the Cards in St. Louis, there is nothing to indicate that the Waner boys, known to the trade as Big and Little Poison, have lost any of their virulence.

Paul Dean says it is Dizzy's legs, not his arm, that is bothering him. —News item.

ALTHOUGH he cost a lot of dough,
It seems the upshot of it is Between his legs, his arm and toe—
There is no health in poor Ol' Diz.
Be that, however, as it may,
His vocal chords are still okay.

The old home of John D. Rockefeller in Cleveland is being torn down to make room for a parking lot. It seems to us that a de luxe filling station on the site of the old homestead would be an appropriate monument to the memory of the man who started the whole thing.

THE slogan of the late John D.,
Unlike the later G. O. P.,
Was not a chicken for every pot
But a filling station on every lot.

A strawberry is not a berry—but a tomato is.—Believe It Or Not.
Wrong again. It's a stromberry.

A strawberry by any other name tastes just as sweet in a shortcake.

REDBIRDS lost the first three straight,
Weak on pitching, strong at plate.
Ducky Medwick not so spry,
And old Dizzy up in Chi.
With the Gas House Gang intact,
Winning games will be a fact.

WASHINGTON U. LOSES PAIR TO ILLINOIS NINE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., April 23.—Washington University's baseball team lost both games of a double-header today to Illinois College. The score of the first game was 9 to 4 and of the second 2 to 1.

In the first game, Gerst and Shobe, Washington pitchers, were slapped for an even dozen hits while Amidei, pitching for Illinois, scattered nine Washington safeties so cleverly that the Bears were able to count in only one inning—the seventh.

The second game was hard-fought all the way, each team getting but four hits. Huey was the Washington hurler and was opposed by Lambert and Leach. Illinois College scored single runs in the first and second frames, Washington getting its lone tally in the second.

FIGHTING FOX WINS A DERBY 'PREP,' NEDAYR IS BEATEN

A BAD START HANDICAPS KILMER COLT

Off in a Tangle, Nedayr Makes Up Ground, Finishes Third— Gallant Fox's Brother Romps.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Fighting Fox, William Woodward's chief hope for his third Kentucky Derby victory, breezed to an easy triumph in his first start of the year at Jamaica today, but the fleet Merry Lassie from Mrs. H. C. Phipps' Wheatley Stable spoiled the debut of W. S. Kilmer's Nedayr, also rated high for the May 7 race at Churchill Downs.

The Fox, full brother of the famous Gallant Fox, had little opposition as he stepped away from seven other three-year-olds in a six-furlong allowance race. Nedayr, winner of the 1937 Pimlico Futurity, found the six furlongs of the $3500 Stuyvesant Handicap too short and wound up third. He was a half-length back of E. W. Duffy's Steel Knight, which trailed Merry Lassie by eight lengths.

Jimmy Stout, veteran New Jersey jockey, was up on the two winners, both of which are trained by James Fitzsimmons. Both broke from the barrier in front and remained there all the way but Merry Lassie, which quit in her previous race, was clocked in 1:11 flat while the Fox needed 1:12 3-5 to cover the three-quarters.

Fighting Fox, never out of the money in five starts last year and a 1 to 4 favorite to win today, never was forced to give his best, however. He pulled away from J. W. Schiffer's Play Gold and John Hay Whitney's Gentle Savage early in the race. Carrying top weight of 122 pounds, he continued to widen his advantage until at the finish he had five lengths over Play Gold, an outsider. Gentle Savage, a Preakness eligible, was another half-length back.

Although beaten with 126 pounds in the saddle, Nedayr gave evidence of developing into a real threat for the Derby when the distance is more than a mile. The son of Neddie was away in a tangle and when he did find racing room, he closed gamely.

But there was no catching Merry Lassie, sprint queen of the two-year-old fillies last year, and 2 to 1 favorite.

Myron Selznick's Can't Wait, conqueror of Fighting Fox last year, and Traffic Light from Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Brookmeade Stable, completed the Derby contingent in the field. They finished fifth and sixth, respectively, after Can't Wait broke with the trailers.

BURKE SHORTENS THE DERBY PRICE AGAINST TEST RACE WINNERS

The ease with which Fighting Fox won his six furlongs test at Jamaica yesterday increased his backing in Charley Burke's Kentucky Derby future book and resulted in a reduction in his price to 5 to 1.

Other late changes yesterday were: Stagehand down to 2½; Bourbon King, which was 30, now 15; Bull Lea, which was 20, now 8; Dauber, formerly 12, now 6 to 1; Gang Plank down to 60; Gov. Chandler 25, and Anaflame, which was 400, now 100.

On the other hand, the price against Menow has gone up to 10 from 7; on Mountain Ridge up to 30 from 15; against The Chief, 20 from 10, and against Sun Egret 30 from 15.

Burke lists 29 of the original 103 entries as "doubtful" starters and five as definitely "out."

FIGHTING FOX NOW 6-1 IN CARROLL'S DERBY FUTURE BOOK

Chief revision in Jimmy Carroll's future book prices on the Kentucky Derby after yesterday's races were the dropping of Fighting Fox, Bull Lea, Dauber, Stands Alone and Steel Knight. The Fox is now 6, Bull Lea 7, Dauber 7, Stands Alone and Steel Knight 60 each. The latter two were over 100 to 1.

Menow and Nedayr went up to 12 and Tiger up to 15 to 1.

MOUNTAIN RIDGE AND DICKERVILLE FADE FROM DERBY PICTURE

By the Associated Press.

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 23.—Shandon Farm's Dickerville virtually eliminated himself from Kentucky Derby consideration by finishing last, for the second time during the current Keenland meeting, in the Elmdorf Purse today, and Milky Way's Mountain Ridge showed little to warrant enthusiasm in finishing fifth in the Ben Ali Handicap.

Dickerville never was a serious factor in a field of 10, although heavily backed. Mountain Ridge, substituting for Tiger as Milky Way's Derby reliance, did show early foot, but failed to carry his speed beyond three-quarters.

Everglade's Consuello won the Elmdorf, covering the three-quarters in 1:12 4-5 to reward at $12.40 for $2, with Beach Ensemble second and Marching Feet third.

Main Man, at $4 for $2, was much the best in the Ben Ali to beat Old Nassau and Galsun. The Respess colt's mile in 1:38 2-5 indicated he was in the same great shape which witnessed his track-record performances at River Downs last year.

NAVY VARSITY CREW DEFEATS COLUMBIA U.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Navy's powerful varsity crew drove down the stretch to win by a length and a half over Columbia and complete a three-race sweep for the Middies, on the Harlem today. The Tars' freshmen and junior varsity eights won previous races.

The Tars' junior varsity scored the most impressive win of the meeting, trimming the Light Blue by almost five lengths in 7:41 1-5 for the same distance, with Columbia timed in 7:54 4-5.

A freshman boat that was remarkably smooth scored Navy's first victory. After a dog fight in the first quarter mile, the Light Blue fell behind and lost by two and a half lengths. Navy was timed in 7:41 2-5 for the race and Columbia finished in 7:49.

Sande's Pair And Co-Sport In Fast Trials

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 23.—Co-Sport turned in the fastest Derby workout of the season today, but it stood just long enough for Stagehand and The Chief to get out on the track.

Bert Friend's bay gelding definitely put himself in the Derby picture by his workout mile of 1:41 3-5, despite the fact that the Maxwell Howard pair that Earl Sande is training worked head and head to clip off a mile in a fifth of a second better. Co-Sport worked during the forenoon and Sande's pair in the afternoon.

Stagehand and The Chief were clocked at the quarter in :26, three-eighths in :39, the half in :51 2-5, the five-eighths in 1:03 4-5 and the three-quarters in 1:17.

Then Sande, who was reported to have told Jockey Jack Westrope he wanted a mile in 1:42, waved him on. Westrope, on Stagehand, and Harry Woods, an exercise boy, on The Chief, finished the mile and then galloped out an eighth more in 1:55.

The two colts' time for the three-quarters was a bit slow, but turfmen were impressed by the fact that they raced the last quarter of the mile in :25 2-5, and recalled that Col. E. R. Bradley, winner of four Derby races, once said any horse that could run the last quarter of a mile in :25 was good enough to win a Kentucky Derby.

Co-Sport covered the first quarter in :25 1-5 and the half in :48 3-5, then lagged to 1:15 1-5 for the three-quarters and came fast to round out the mile in 1:41 3-5. He galloped out the mile and an eighth in 1:56 3-5.

The slowness with which Tiger's heel bruise was coming around led horsemen to believe the colt was out and that Mrs. Ethel V. Mars would have to depend on Mountain Ridge for her chances in the Derby. H. M. Woolf's Lawrin was galloped two miles today, putting an end to reports he had gone lame.

Indiana's 2-Mile Relay Team Sets A New Record

By the Associated Press.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., April 23.

INDIANA UNIVERSITY'S two-mile relay team hung up a new national collegiate record of 7 minutes, 38.1 seconds in a quadrangular track and field meet here today.

The Crimson quartet-Smith, Deckard, Miller and Trutt—bettered by 3.9 seconds the mark set by Georgetown University in 1925.

Michigan was second and Notre Dame third. Ohio State finished last.

Michigan won the meet with 67 2-3 points, largely through the efforts of Bill Watson's first places in the broad jump and shot put and four second places in the relays. Notre Dame scored 48 points; Indiana 44 2-3 and Ohio State 37 2-3.

SAN ROMANI IS KANSAS RELAYS MILE WINNER

ley, half-mile college relay and the junior college sprint relay.

In only one record-breaking event did a stout breeze which whipped down the track early in the afternoon appear a factor. Fred Wolcott, Rice Institute's sensational sophomore, was whisked along to a :14.2 performance in the 120-yard hurdles, but it was announced the mark would stand. The old record os :14.5 set by Sam Allen of Oklahoma Baptist in 1935.

Six of the eight records were set by athletes from Oklahoma or Texas, with Colorado and California each contributing one new mark. Gilbert Cruter, lanky Colorado Negro, leaped to a new top of 6 feet 7 9-16 inches, and the Riverside (Cal.) Junior College quartet sprinted to a record of 1:26.7 in the half-mile college relay.

Burly Beefus Bryan of the University of Texas hit a new ceiling of 13 feet 11¾ inches in the pole vault, replacing the mark of 13 feet 9¾ inches set by Tom Warne of Northwestern in 1930.

Runs "100" in 9.6 Seconds.

Claude Jeffery, Riverside (Cal.) Junior College ace, was whisked by a potent wind to :09.6 century, the time tying the meet record without starting blocks.

The best mile time of the day was turned in by John Munski, University of Missouri sophomore. Running anchor in the university distance medley relay, he was clocked unofficially in 4:15.5. He took the baton about a yard behind, and finished with a 100-yard gap between him and his nearest rival.

The weather, the track and the date all conspired to wreck any hopes of spectacular time in the special mile race.

The day was chill and gloomy, the track churned by countless spikes in earlier races, and the date, between the indoor and outdoor season, found the four stars not in the best of condition.

JOHNSON WILL RETURN TO RIDE AT FAIRMOUNT

Willie Lee Johnson, riding champion of the Fairmont Park race meet last fall, will return here for the spring meeting, which begins May 30 and continues through July 4, it was announced yesterday by track officials.

The announcement was made following a communication from Richard Leigh, racing secretary, who is now at Aurora, stating that he had received word from Otis Clelland, trainer for the horses of Mrs. R. J. Murphy, that he would be at the Collinsville track with 16 horses, now at Louisville, and that Johnson would be here to ride for the stable.

Johnson became a great favorite with the patrons at Fairmount last fall and before the meeting was over the fans began betting on Johnson, rather than on the horses.

During the winter, Johnson, who ranked second to J. Adams among the jockeys in 1937, rode with success at New Orleans, but did not fare so well in California. His most recent riding was done at Agua Caliente.

Rolla Takes 11 Firsts in Track Meet With Drury

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ROLLA, Mo., April 23.—Sweeping 11 firsts out of 15 events, the Missouri Miners overwhelmed Drury College in their track and field meet here this afternoon, winning, 95 to 36. The Miners also swept the golf competition, 11 to 1.

George Fort, ace miler, broke a 32-year-old school record in the mile when he traveled the distance in 4:38.2. The old mark of 4:40 was set by H. G. Boyer in 1906.

Feiker of Drury was the only double winner of the afternoon. He took the shotput with a toss of 41 feet 6 inches and then threw the discus 125 feet 4 inches.

Otis Taylor and Harley Ladd, the Miners' dash men, split the 100 and 220 yard dashes, with Taylor stepping the century in :10.4.

MAROON OWNER STUDIES HOCKEY SITUATION HERE

Tommy Gorman, president of the Montreal Maroon Hockey Club of the National League, left the city last night after conferences with J. D. P. Hamilton Jr., director of the Arena; Ed Steffen, president of the Flyers, and other Flyer directors, in which the local hockey situation was gone over.

There has been talk of moving the Maroons from Montreal for some two seasons because of lack of attendance. The other Montreal team, the Canadiens, is holding up very well, but the Maroons have fallen off, although they have been out of the playoffs only once in four seasons.

Gorman said it had not been definitely decided to make a move as yet and won't be until the National League meeting to be held some time within the next month or two. He said that if it were decided to come into St. Louis, no deal would be made which would not be acceptable to Flyer officials.

Steffen remarked that he thought it would cost a lot of money to bring a big league team here now and doubted that the city was ready for it.

More developments likely will follow between now and June 1, but for the present no definite proposition has been made by either side.

Sparta Goes Into Soccer Final At New York With 3-Goal Lead

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Chicago's husky Sparta soccer team, accompanied by a large delegation of fans led by Joe Triner, president of the United States Football Association and chairman of the Illinois Boxing Commission, arrived here this evening for its second clash of the home-and-home series for the soccer championship of the United States.

The deciding match will be staged at Starlight Park, the Bronx, with Brooklyn's St. Mary's Celtics furnishing the opposition.

The invaders gained a three-goal advantage in the opening game of the series at Chicago last Sunday and if they are successful in warding off the attack of the Celts tomorrow the Windy City will be honored with its first national soccer title in the entire 25 years of competition. Total goals win the series.

With the prediction of fair weather the Bronx enclosure is expected to be filled to capacity long before the kick-off. U. S. F. A. officials expect that more than 7000 fans will squeeze into the field on which St. Louis teams have engaged in two national cup finals.

President Triner will kick off the ball to start the game at 3 o'clock. He will be flanked by two former heavyweight boxing champions, Jack Dempsey and Jimmy Braddock, who will be guests of the Illinois commissioner when he sets the ball in motion.

Disqualification in Mile Gives Meet To Granite City

Granite City High School Seniors nosed out East St. Louis by half a point in a triangular track meet yesterday afternoon at Granite City, and it was a disqualification in the mile run that cost East St. Louis the victory.

Granite City scored 45½ points, East St. Louis 45, and the other team entered, Collinsville, counted 31½.

Tom Ganey of East St. Louis crossed the mile finish line first but was ruled out later when it was learned one of his teammates in the race, Edwin Simpson, acted as a pacemaker on the final circuit of the track after he had been lapped by the leaders. Harris of Granite City, who finished second, was ruled the victor and this eventually proved a deciding factor.

In the junior division East St. Louis won with 76 points. Collinsville scored 21 points and Granite City 16.

RADIATOR EMBLEMS AND NAMEPLATES of more than 500 makes of American and European automobiles, many of which no longer are made, have have been collected by Frank Walker, head of Pontiac's courtesy department. Among them are the Dagmar car emblem with 25 figures of animals and other patterns worked out in five colors of enamel on a disc slightly more than two inches in diameter; the wild goose in flight design of the Wills-St. Claire, the hat in the ring of the Rickenbacker, the cameo design of the Diana, and the golden bronze basrelief of Sir Galahad that was on the Yellow Knight. "At first," Walker says, "auto nameplates were only continuations of the number plates on buggies and carriages. They were small squares of sheet brass on which were stamped the name of the manufacturer and perhaps a number and model. There is some speculation as to which American car first had a badge or nameplate attached to the core or shell of its radiator. The Leach Grizzly Bear, the Apperson Jack Rabbit and the Duryea Triangle all have claims to priority.

JIMMIE LYNCH, WHO SPECializes in stunting with automobiles, and his crew of assistants will put stock Dodge sedans through a series of spectacular feats at 3 o'clock this afternoon at West Side Park, on Rosedale in rear of Delmar Station. Lynch and his assistants will perform their stunts under the sponsorship of the Dodge Dealers' Association of St. Louis and the Commanders' Conference of the American Legion. The feature stunts will include crash-rolling a sedan, jumping a sedan over a two-ton truck which will be parked 20 feet from the end of a runway, a crash against a firewall and several other feats.

A DE LUXE MODEL OF THE Hudson "112", the Hudson Motor Car Co.'s car in the lowest price field, is being shipped from the factory in Detroit for display locally as an addition to the regular "112" line. It has the 83-horsepower, six-cylinder engine of the regular model, and comes in three-passenger coupe, brougham, touring brougham with trunk, sedan, touring sedan with trunk, convertible coupe and convertible brougham. A new treatment of the front compartment features a wide band of stainless steel for the walnut finish of the instrument panel, harmonizing coloring for steering wheel, horn button, steering post and window mouldings. Seats and seat backs are upholstered in quality luster boucle cloth and the door panels and side walls are in plain weave boucle. A wide range of colors includes several new ones introduced for this spring.

PLAIN HARD WORK IS THE auto industry's best weapon in setting recovery in motion, Harry G. Moock, vice-president in charge of sales for the Plymouth Motor Corporation, told a meeting of the Plymouth Salesmen's League at a meeting here Monday. He asserted that a revolutionary change in methods of salesmanship had come, especially affecting automobile selling. "The auto salesman," he said, "must forget all his storybook notions about high-pressure salesmanship, and must adapt himself to the new conditions. Nearly every car bought this spring will be selected by a veteran motorist, who has driven one or more makes of cars. He wants facts, comparative facts, about a particular car, not merely a lot of sales talk. This means that the salesman has got to get down to facts and learn everything there is to be known about the particular car he is selling. He must realize that the 1938 model motorist buys the car of his choice. He doesn't want it sold to him. The salesman's new job is to make it easy for the motorist to buy."

ADVANCE REGISTRATIONS indicate that several thousand dealers will be in Detroit Tuesday for the opening session of the annual convention of the National Automobile Dealers' convention. Interest is expected to center Tuesday in the Trade Practice Conference to be held under the auspices of the Federal Trade Commission to consider adopting rules of fair trade competition for the industry. The proposed rules were drafted by the N A D A in collaboration with the Commission. There is much interest also in the address to be made by Congressman Gardner R. Withrow on the investigation of automobile manufacturer-dealer relations authorized by Congress. Other matters to be discussed will include the effects of state licensing laws in Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska and Ohio and local license ordinances in Texas; regulatory legislation to improve businessa standards and curb unfair practices; the trend toward closed territories; procedure by local dealer groups to establish fair used car allowances and promote confidence in used car merchandising and indirect price cutting on new cars. A highlight will be the banquet Wednesday night, marking the twenty-fifth anniversary of the N A D A, at which Alfred P. Sloan, chairman of the board of General Motors, will speak on "The Dealer, the Manufacturer and the Consumer."

TO MAKE SURE THAT HEADlights are safe, and to make night driving easy and minimize accidents, car owners should have them tested at least twice a year, according to H. H. Dowdy, director of service for De Soto. "Testing," he says, "should include replacement of worn-out bulbs, adjustment of bulb focus, cleaning and polishing of reflectors and lenses and checking of wiring, switches and connections. A driver should always use his meeting beams when another car approaches to avoid glare for the other driver. He also should never over-drive his headlights."

INDUSTRIAL MOTION PICTURES are being produced with a skill that rivals that of the Hollywood studios. Two examples of such pictures which the magazine, "Variety," recently recomemnded to the attention of Hollywood producers are being shown by Plymouth dealers. One is the latest Plymouth safety film, "The Chance to Lose." The other is a travelogue of Laredo-Mexico City highway which is titled "Rolling Down to Mexico." The first was selected as "the most effective motion picture on safety" by a reviewing committee whose members included Dr. Miller McClintock of the Harvard University Traffic Bureau; Norman Damon of the Automotive Safety Foundation, Burton W. Marsh of the A. A. A., and Hawley Simpson of the Institute of Traffic Engineers. B. E. Hutchinson, chairman of the board of the Plymouth Motor Corporation, recently accepted a plaque, a symbol of the award, at the annual safety awards ceremony in New York.

Elliott Roosevelt, second son of the President, is now a station owner through the purchase by his wife for $57,000 of KFJZ, a 100-watt station at Fort Worth, Tex. The Roosevelts make their home on a ranch near Fort Worth, and under the Texas community property law a half interest in the station belongs to Roosevelt, who is president of Hearst Radio, Inc., which operates 10 stations. All but one of these stations, of which four are in San Antonio, Waco, Austin and Oklahoma City, are to be sold by the Hearst interests. It is expected that young Roosevelt will become associated with whatever interests buy the stations.

Addresses by President Roosevelt and others to the annual conference of the American Red Cross will be broadcast at 1:30 Monday afternoon, May 2.

SALE OF CHIROPRACTIC SCHOOL IN NORMANDY IS AGREED ON

Association to Raise Money for Purchase; Hugh B. Logan to Remain as Head.

A plan for sale of the chiropractic school operated by Hugh B. Logan at 7701 Florissant road, Normandy, to an association of chiropractors was announced yesterday by Joseph H. Sewing, chairman of a committee for the association.

Logan is to remain as head of the school and is to turn over to it the "basic technique" method of treatment which he originated. In payment for the school he will receive about $35,000, the amount of his investment in it.

Sewing said it was planned to raise money for the purchase by soliciting contributions from chiropractors who use the "basic technique" method.

★ Of the 3 leading lowest-priced cars, Plymouth is nearly 7" longer than one; more than 10" longer than the other.

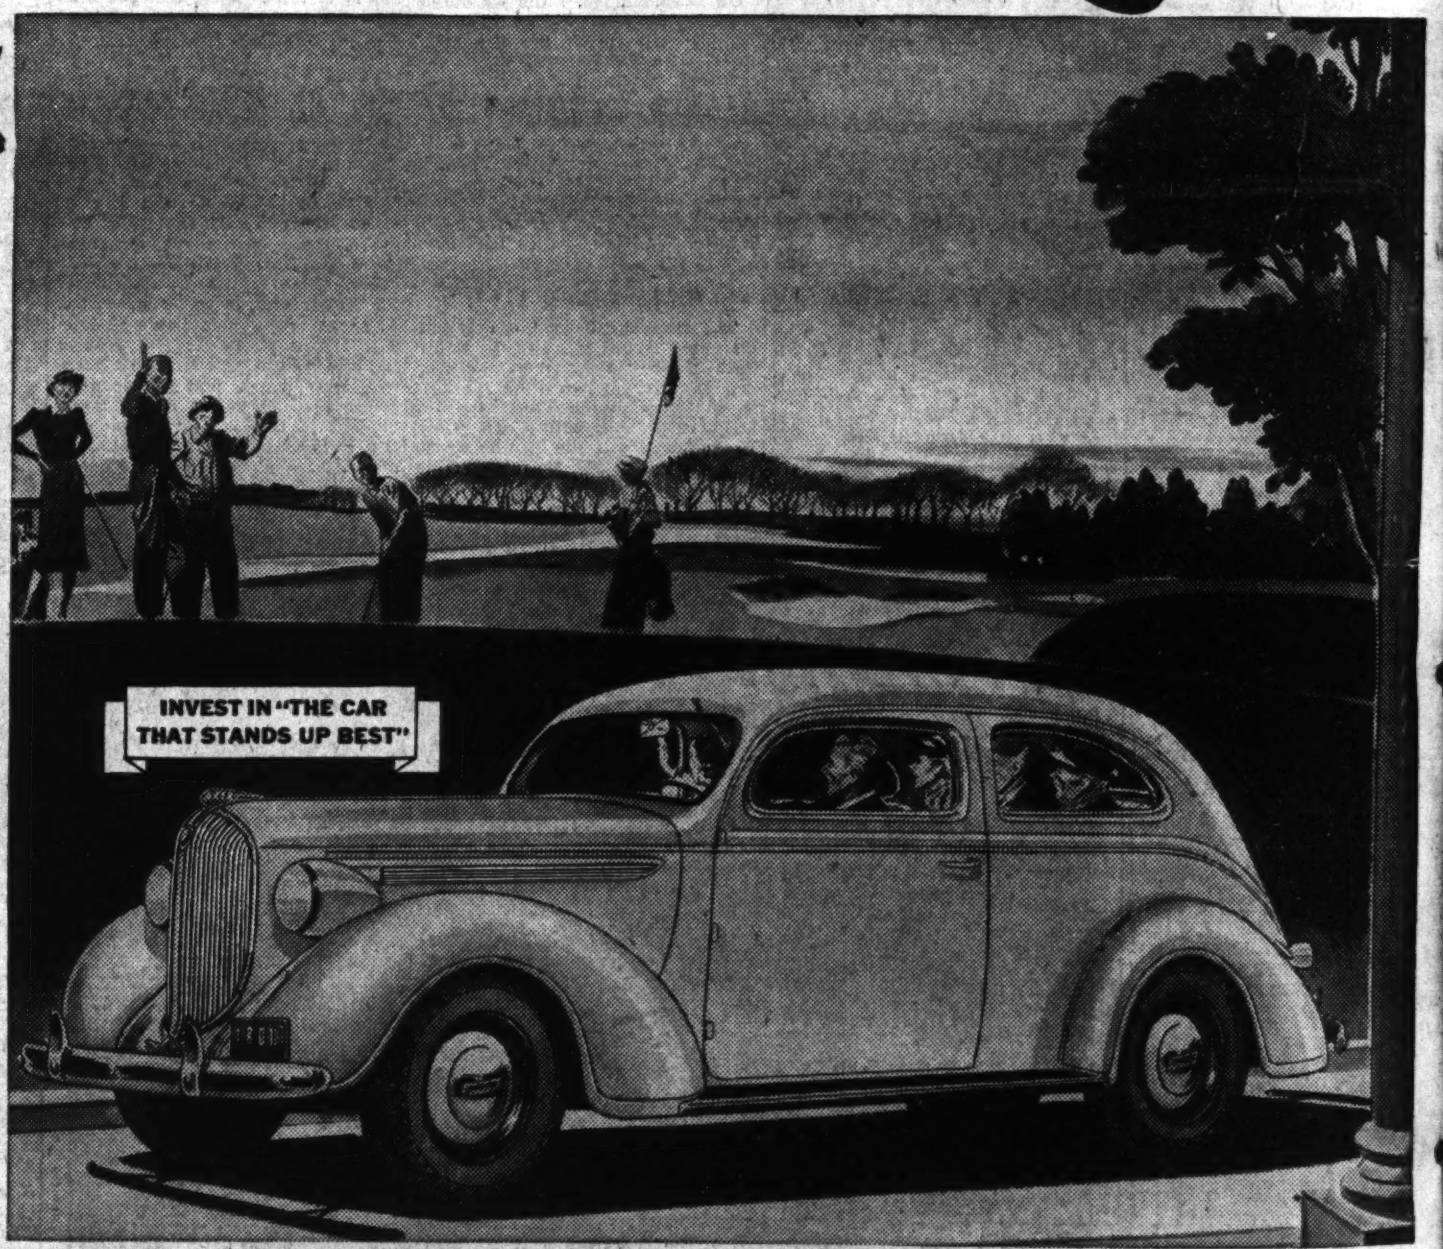
★ Plymouth owners report 18 to 24 miles on gas... record savings on oil, tires and on every item of upkeep.



INVEST IN "THE CAR THAT STANDS UP BEST"

IT'S an exciting experience to drive this great Plymouth "Roadking." Its new ride is the sensation of the low-price field.

You'll be delighted with its new faster steering, new easier handling. And no other lowest-priced car offers the luxurious riding comfort of "live" rubber body mountings, airplane-type shock-absorbers, new scientific sound-proofing, Floating Power engine mountings, "chair-high" seats.

Finer engineering is also the key to Plymouth's big savings and longer life—a Hypoid rear axle, instead of the old spiral bevel type ...pistons with four rings, instead of three... a silent, chain-driven camshaft, instead of gear-driven.

And, for safety, Plymouth has an all-steel body (completely rust-proofed), a Safety Styled interior and safe, double-action hydraulic brakes—with the handbrake an entirely separate system.

FOUR RESIDENCES, FAMILY GROUP, FOR GEYER ROAD TRACT

Mrs. H. A. Wolken and Three Daughters and Sons-in-Law to Erect Homes on 10-Acre Site.

By BERRY MOORE.

A 10-acre tract on the west side of Geyer road, about three-quarters of a mile south of the Clayton road, has been purchased by Joseph H. Schenk, secretary of William-McRee and Co., mortgage bankers, on behalf of a family group with interesting building plans.

The buyers composing the group are Mrs. H. A. Wolken, and her daughters and sons-in-law—Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Ottenad, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Geist, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Schenk. Schenk has taken title to the tract which is now being surveyed for division among the members of the group.

The entire tract is to be given over to four residences, designed especially for the individual members of the group. The houses will be diverse in design, attractively arranged and on a scale commensurate with the high standard set for this stretch of Geyer road.

Roadway Along South Line.

Plans contemplate construction along the south line of the property of a concrete road which will be available alike for the four resident owners. Forming an integral part of an unique layout, the roadway will extend for the entire length of the tract, which is rectangular in shape, with a frontage of 400 feet on Geyer, by a depth of 1200 feet more or less. Landscape work will supplement the natural beauty of the area.

The transaction was handled by G. Gordon Baxter, of W. B. Shelp & Co., in connection with Williams-McRee and Co. No mention of the sale price was made. Negotiations were on cash basis. The land was owned by R. G. Kurtz, who has occupied it for a number of years as an evergreen nursery.

The tract is on a high elevation, with a comprehensive view. It is directly opposite the pretentious residence of Christopher H. Muckerman, standing on a 26-acre tract on the east side of Geyer road.

Approximately 28 residences have been erected on this section of Geyer during the last three years, including 13 in Countryside, a development on the west side of the road, about a mile south of Clayton road, being handled by W. B. Shelp & Co.

Prize Acquisition.

Noteworthy as a prize acquisition, the Fairfax Construction Co., headed by Arnold H. Maremont recently purchased a 70-acre tract on the west side of Geyer, just south of Countryside, with ambitious development plans.

Negotiations are said to be pro-

FUND SOUGHT FOR INSPECTION OF LUMBER IN NEW HOMES
The Wood Products Institute of Greater St. Louis, ... is attempting to raise a fund for systematic inspection of wood used in building construction in the city and county.
HIGHLIGHTS OF REPRINT FROM POST-DISPATCH OF APRIL 13, 1938
Estimating that the wood in half the recently constructed residences was improperly aged, the spokesman asserted the resulting shrinkage had caused extensive damage in cracked plaster, warped flooring and expanding joints. The condition was caused by direct purchases by builders from small mills which were unable to let their products season, he declared, adding that the immediate saving was between $50 and $100 for each house.
In the program planned by the institute, inspectors would grade the lumber on all construction jobs, informing persons financing the work on which green wood was found that the material would produce unsatisfactory results.

16,933 FAMILIES INDICATED AS READY TO BUILD HERE

Survey by Chamber of Commerce Shows Large Potential Demand for Homes.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Indications that American cities probably have a vast market for new homes which has not been fully exploited were seen today in a report made available to the Federal Home Loan Bank Board by the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce.

An intensive survey of the St. Louis market by Henry O. Whiteside, the chamber's director of research, showed that apparently there were at least 16,933 families in the Missouri metropolis ready to make down payments of $15,967,000 to finance homes. Officials found nothing to indicate that a similar demand does not exist in other cities, because the St. Louis real estate market presented no outstanding peculiarities.

Whiteside, in concluding his survey, advanced no reasons why this potential market had not been more thoroughly exploited, but asked pointedly: "Is there a salesman in the (real estate) industry?"

Based on Questionnaire.

The St. Louis survey was based on a questionnaire mailed out to several thousand persons believed to constitute a "cross-section" of St. Louis' population. After single

TAYLOR-PINE CORNER PROPERTY IN DEAL

Office Building to Be Erected on the East Side of Taylor.

A deal was concluded yesterday involving the property at the northeast corner of West Pine boulevard and Taylor avenue, owned by the S. Harper Reller estate. The site has a frontage on West Pine of 100 feet and on Taylor avenue of 213 feet.

The corner portion of the site, with a frontage of 100 feet on West Pine, and 130 feet on Taylor, was acquired by Laurance T. Van Valkenburgh. It is occupied by an apartment building with a total of 19 rooms.

The rear part of the site, with 83 feet on Taylor and a width, or depth of 100 feet, was purchased by Dr. Samuel B. Grant as a site for a modern office building for his exclusive occupancy.

The corner building was formerly the residence of the late J. V. S. Barrett, before it was converted into an apartment building.

RESIDENTIAL CONSTRUCTION SHOWS NOTEWORTHY INCREASE

NEW YORK, April 23.—Residential building has improved substantially during the last month after allowance for normal seasonal factors.

The Associated Press index of residential construction, adjusted for seasonal and building material cost changes, has jumped from 41.8 per cent of the 1929-30 average at the end of February—the low for the current recession—to 46.2 in the latest period.

This 10 per cent increase, one of the sharpest in recent years, is judged by analysts to have resulted mainly from the efforts being made by the administration to stimulate home construction, although favorable weather is also a consideration.

Mortgage money has been made available at more reasonable cost to the borrower. To stimulate bank participation in such a program, the Government has agreed to guarantee up to 90 per cent of certain loans.

Another factor said to have helped stem the downward sweep of building operations is the fact rents have fallen relatively little from last year's peak. A survey by the National Industrial Conference Board recently indicated rents had dipped only 3 per cent from the high.

WEBSTER PARK RESIDENCE ACQUIRED BY LLOYD L. TOWER

The residence of Mrs. Theodore S. Blair at 115 Glen road, Webster Park, has been acquired by Lloyd L. Tower, plant manager for the Doane Carton Co., a subsidiary of the Gaylord Container Co. The house has eight rooms and three porches. It is air-conditioned and is equipped with an automatic heating plant. The lot comprises an acre of ground.

The Trembly-Wilson Real Estate & Loan Co. and Mary Potter Love, Inc., jointly handled the transaction.

Home Building Increase in March.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Dwelling house construction initiated in March totaled $55,761,221, 71 per cent more than in February but 37 per cent under that of the corresponding month last year, the Labor Department announced today. Permits for all types of construction totaled $121,011,809, an increase of 19 per cent over the February figure.

persons and those paying less than $15 per month in rent were eliminated some 1700 answers were left for examination. They were believed to represent 1.2 per cent of all St. Louis residents paying $15 rent, or more.

Of these 1700 renters, 406 stated that they preferred to own their own homes and were able to make a down payment to do so. Thus Whiteside estimated that on the basis of their replies, 33,866 persons in St. Louis were willing and financially prepared to build homes. But, to make the estimate most conservative, he reduced the number by 50 per cent, or to 16,933 families.

"The average down payment indicated in our survey," Whiteside's report said, "was $946. Applying this average to the 16,933, it is estimated that there is $15,987,000 available for down payments toward home construction.

"On the basis of the amount of home construction that has been going on in the past few years, this appears to be a very high figure. It is my belief, however, that the money is available and the market is only awaiting the proper stimulus."

Dividing the would-be home owners into financial groups, Whiteside found that they were prepared to make down payments as follows:

Percentage of replies	Possible down payment.
24 per cent	Less than $500
29 per cent	$500
47 per cent	More than $500

Of the third group, 22 per cent were prepared to pay down more than $1500 each.

Of the group of 406 who desired to buy homes and could make down payments, 343 indicated the amount they were prepared to pay monthly in liquidating the balance of their investment. The amounts were:

Percentage of replies	Monthly payment
15 per cent	Less than $30
30 per cent	$30 to $40
17 per cent	$40 to $45
38 per cent	More than $45

Of the fourth group, five per cent replied they could pay $75 or more per month.

Ready to finance these St. Louis citizens and others throughout the nation who are willing and able to build homes is the far-flung chain of savings and loan associations and other thrift and home financing institutions which are members of the Federal Home Loan Bank System. Last year they provided approximately 40 per cent of the country's institutional financing of small home building and purchase.

H O L C MARCH SALES SHOW LARGE INCREASE

Score Gain of 76 Per Cent Over Those of February Following Unbroken Rise Monthly Since June, 1937.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—A 76 per cent gain in sales of residential properties was scored in March over February by the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, according to an announcement yesterday. Preliminary figures indicate that some 1700 houses were sold in March as compared with 964 in the previous month. This brought cumulative sales to 9246.

Increased offerings by the HOLC and greater selling efforts by real estate brokers who handle the properties are responsible for the increase, said Col. Harold Lee, deputy general manager in charge of property management.

"Following the unbroken rise in monthly sales since June, 1937, the total jumped in February to 964 sales, despite adverse seasonal factors. At the end of February, total sales numbered 7546, amounting to $27,502,612. Four hundred and sixty-two sales were for cash. The average sale over the country was about $3640, prices ranging from $1000 to $20,000."

Col. Lee also reported an improvement in the rental status of HOLC properties. Of the 62,353 dwelling units available for rent at the end of February, 86.5 per cent were occupied by tenants. A total of 96 per cent of all rent bills had been paid by Feb. 28. This compares with 93.3 per cent in January. February rental receipts were $1,379,066.

gressing for several plots in Georgian Acres, a development at the southeast corner of Clayton and Geyer road. Five houses have already been completed in this development, which was placed on the market two years ago through Duke-Young, Inc. Comprising approximately 23 acres, this tract is situated just north of the Muckerman residence. It was formerly owned by Chase Ulman, a real estate operator, who had acquired it in a deal engineered by the Henry R. Weisels Co.

Municipal improvements of Geyer road include county water and electric mains, which were installed several years ago in the early stages of its development.

To Set Standard.

Kramer J. Weissenborn of the Weissenborn Coal Co. recently acquired the Hemp farm of 100 acres, lying on the east and west sides of Baxter road, about an eighth of a mile south of the Clayton road, at the instance of W. B. Shelp & Co. He is said to have plans for the erection of a residence for his own occupancy, which will set a high standard for the development of the tract, which is to be divided in five and 10 acre plots.

The B. H. Stoltmann Co., Edward L. Bakewell, Cornet & Zeibig, Inc., and A. T. & Whitelaw Terry, among other agents, report renewed interest in acreages available for country estates planned on a pretentious scale.

Negotiations have been concluded involving several apartment buildings on behalf of persons with large idle funds. These include a recently completed multi-family structure in Moorlands Addition, which has been the magnet of both speculators and investors. Publication in this instance is withheld pending arrangements for the paying off of the building loan, underwritten by the Anderson-Stocke-Buermann Real Estate Co. The purchaser is an undisclosed client of the Dimmitt-Rickhoff-Bayer Real Estate Co., which is handling the transactions.

WORK ON ADDITION TO MASONIC HOME WELL UNDER WAY

Nine-Story Being Erected on Enright Avenue West of Union by Institution for Women.

The nine-story building being erected on the south side of Enright avenue, west of Union boulevard, for women, as an addition to the Masonic Home on Delmar boulevrd, is well under way, with the steel framework completed. It is being erected from plans and specifications by William B. Ittner, Inc., architects. It will be known as the New Ladies Building.

The building will be 134 feet 8 inches long with a depth of 45 feet 5 inches and a total height of 100 feet 6 inches from the sidewalk. There will be nine stories above the ground floor. The main diningroom on the first floor will project 32 feet from the main building with a frontage of 87 feet. Designed as a promenade, its roof will be equipped with garden furniture.

Architectural Style.

The architectural style is Colonial of the Georgian type, with interesting brick work as a feature. Bedford stone will be used at the entrances and for wall copings, keystones and trim. The frieze of the main cornice will be of brick of a lighter tone that that of the main building. The base is brick of a darker shade.

The main entrance portico will be approached by flights of circular steps from Enright avenue.

The first floor will contain a loggia with vaulted ceiling, extending across the front, paneled with oak to a height of 7 feet 6 inches. This loggia will provide easy access to the main diningroom, which will open to the south, with large windows extending to the floor, and with a low wainscot of birch panels with plaster panels above. The ceiling will be treated with ornamental plaster and acoustical tile. The dining room will have a capacity of 250 persons.

The reception room and elevator lobby will be located on the east side with stairways at both ends of the building. The kitchen, with its adjoining store rooms on the west side, will extend into the present "I" building which will be remodeled to suit. Ample cold store coolers, mechanically refrigerated, will be provided in kitchen and basement.

The floors, two to eight inclusive, each will contain 15 single bed rooms, a living room and a solarium and the necessary toilet and service rooms, including clothes and trash chutes.

The toilet rooms will be separated from the bath rooms. Both will be fitted with marble partitions and covered with tile floors and wainscots.

The ninth floor will contain 12 bed rooms, with private bath between rooms ensuite, and to two living rooms.

Sewing Room Space.

The ground floor will include a sewing room for institutional work, trunk storage space, a laundry, a men's recreation room, kitchen storage, help's toilet and rest rooms, a transformer room, refrigeration, ventilation, and pumping machinery. The basement of the present "I" building is to be remodeled to suit these needs. The kitchen will be arranged in the most approved manner with all modern conveniences. Receiving room and service elevator will be located on Enright avenue with garbage disposal room on the court.

The cubical content of the building will be 800,000 cubic feet.

The plan provides for a capacity of 105 women with twelve additional rooms on the ninth floor.

The building will be of fireproof skeleton construction carried on concrete foundations. The exterior walls will be of brick with stone or terra cotta trim. The interior partitions will be of hollow tile, with the floors and base of terrazzo. The walls throughout the building will be plastered. Interior doors and woodwork will be of birch veneered, with metal frames.

Elevator and stair enclosures will have metal doors. All window sills will be tile, elevator of the automatic push button collective control type:

The heating and ventilating apparatus is of the direct vacuum steam type with radiation for all bedrooms and corridors. Dining room and toilets will have heating system with ventilating units. The present central power plant will furnish steam.

The building will be equipped with a complete intercommunicating telephone system.

SALESMEN WANTED

ATTENTION—MEN WHO ARE UNEMPLOYED.

In and around St. Louis are men that are complaining about work being hard to find. Some of these men actually want work, others are not looking for work, or want something that is easy to do for a mere existence. To the men looking for a chance to prove their ability with possibilities of earning a good consistent living for themselves and their families we can present a splendid opportunity.

In our previous announcements we have repeatedly made the statement that we are not interested in men who are merely concerned with the limitations of a small income. However, we will go a long way in helping a man to a lucrative and permanent future if that man is big enough and willing enough to realize that he must pay the price and prove his worth to us by actual and conscientious hard work.

In order to assure that no man will remain in a rut because of a stipulated income used as a harness over him, we pay our men on a profit sharing basis, giving them a chance to receive in dollars and cents what they actually earn. This business is both modern and mutual. No investment is required from any man qualifying. We finance everything.

Our requirements are: Good references and neat appearance. To you who are reading this ad, is your future worth two hours' interview with our factory representative? Where he can outline what we consider a real opportunity to you?

This ad gives no honest, industrious man an excuse for being out of work. We are not interested in ad seekers or floaters. Apply in person Monday from 9:15 a. m. to 1:15 p. m. at Suite 512, Paul Brown Bldg., 9th and Olive sts., St. Louis. This is a special interview and may mean the turning point of your life regardless of your present occupation.

This is not an ordinary ad, but this is not an ordinary selling job. We firmly believe this represents one of the outstanding opportunities of the decade in specialty sales work.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

DRAMA WOMEN'S SUNDAY MAGAZINE RADIO

PART FIVE ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, APRIL 24, 1938. PAGES 1—8G

THIS NEW YORK

By LUCIUS BEEBE

NEW YORK, April 23.

SOCIAL feuds in Manhattan flare and abate with the harmless frequency of heat lightning on the summer horizon, but there is a honey of what can only be called Hatfield-McCoy proportions getting under way at the moment between Miss Elsa Maxwell and one of the most extravagantly pretentious of the international hostesses, at which all the town is determined to have ringside seats, with the betting heavily favoring the acidulous Miss Maxwell, who is as quick on the verbal draw as the next woman.

ELSA MAXWELL

Not since the great Palm Beach feud in the middle '20s, between the Edward Huttons and the Manvilles, a contest of elegances which was finally brought to a conclusion when the Manvilles won everything on the table by arranging for a special train to go from Grand Central to a funeral at Woodlawn, a distance of eight miles, has there been such an alarming vendetta. The diner and winer of the more available Continental celebrities, whose millions derive from something less than a thousand miles from Cleveland, feels that Miss Maxwell did her an injustice in some recent magazine articles in which it was recorded that quite a number of her high-toned guests of title laughed heartily at their hostess once they had departed her lavish parties.

—O—O—

● THERE IS A SCHOOL OF THOUGHT which subscribes to the belief that Miss Maxwell did her something less than justice by refraining from discussing in detail the curious taste which characterized these gobble and gallop festivals, and which were described by eye witnesses as being just a thought on the lace curtain side. Anyhow, the "international hostess," as she likes to be described, has risen nobly to the occasion by sending to several friends of Miss Maxwell, who were mutual acquaintances in pre-feud days, itemized bills for social services abroad —introductions to what amounted to royalty, entertainment and, in one case, the payment of a tuition charge at an expensive French finishing school. It somehow doesn't seem wise on her part, for, whatever may be said of Miss Maxwell, she loves a fight and fears nobody, and all of what Dick Berlin now calls "cosmopolitan society" is in the benches, cheering on the side of the heavier artillery, which is La Maxwell's.

—O—O—

What the films have, heaven alone knows for what reason, missed is the Waldorf's gain in the person of its resident, built-in, hot-and-cold-running Sert Room photographer, Howard Cagle. Cagle's business of the moment is photographing stylish folk in the more polite postures of merrymaking, in the hope that Eve Brown or some other society editor will see fit to run them, but he has a past compounded of adventure and glamour that would turn that Errol Flynn green with envy. Cagle was born in China, of American parents, but at an early age was removed to the open ranges of the West, where he learned to ride and handle firearms at approximately the time he learned to talk. Ten years ago, at the age of 19, he found himself in the Marine Corps, looking across the sights of a Maxim rifle for Sandinistas in the Nicaraguan jungles. For his pains he received a bayonet wound in the leg and a soft-nosed Mauser slug in the belly, because he picked a soft wood tree to stand behind during a skirmish. He almost died of malaria and blackwater fever, and acquired a pleasing habit of drinking straight Jamaica rum and practicing the cultivated Marine profanity which Captain Thomason only hints at in those "Saturday Evening Post" stories.

—O—O—

● CAGLE SUBSEQUENTLY tried working on a paper in the Middle West, but what the snakes and fever and Sandinista machetes couldn't do to his nerves the Middle West did, and he ran screaming to New York and professional photography. Now, immaculately tailcoated, he flashes photo floods at the right people at the Waldorf. Women are fascinated by a flock of tiny scars around his eyes, souvenirs of an amphibian crack-up in the Caribbean which killed everyone else in the plane and left him with a conviction that the flying machine isn't here to stay. He himself, off duty, is fascinated by bottles of blackrum, recalling what a thirst he was once able to work up when he was three days without water in a small boat, dismasted by a hurricane and adrift in the Gulf Stream. He is crazy about flowers and likes to wear unusual ones, such as anemones, with his evening clothes, and he is amused by the contrast furnished by his present occupation and his somewhat violent past. Whether he can act, deponent knoweth not, but that was never any real problem on the screen and the film company that eventually snatches him will have a find on its hands.

—O—O—

ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT, vexed by the repercussions of his exquisite affectation of not receiving the reporters now that he is (tee-hee) an actor, states in "Variety" that when he was drama editor of the old "World" he never ran an interview. . . . What were those Sunday features, year after year, written by Frank Sullivan, Howard Barnes and Allison Smith, almost entirely composed of direct quotes from theater celebrities? . . . Unattached women on the town have discovered a highly effective medium of approach to strange but solvent-looking gentlemen in the form of pet dogs. . . . Nothing is so provocative of elevator conversations with strangers as a mutt on a leash . . . The least visible of Manhattan celebrities nowadays is the once ubiquitous and something less than subdued Peter Arno . . . Only at infrequent intervals does he now burst on the affrighted gaze of the inmates at 21 or Jack Bleeck's with screams and roars and an inclination to put the town to the torch. . . Quite a posse of distinguished eatalls including Jeanne Owen, the Howard Taylors (Myra Kingsley) and Frank Sullivan are making safari these evenings to Third Avenue and the Chambord, an establishment reported to have a canard a la presse above the average of the town's pressed ducks and a house specialty of frogs' legs Provencl . . . Patrons like to watch the chefs through the plate glass which separates the restaurant from the kitchens . . . Old-time patrons of the Restaurant Cyrano will discover Louis Berti, its proprietor, now maitre d'hotel at the Boston Statler.

HERE COMES THE BRIDE---1938 MODEL

She Faces Countless Duties of Preparation Before Facing Her Fiance at the Altar

By DOROTHY COLEMAN

$200.

ALL sentimentality and cynicism aside, there is probably no sound sweeter to the ears of even the most modern young woman than the opening strains of the wedding march from "Lohengrin" when she is the bride and the right man awaits her at the altar. For all but the hardest-boiled, probably no word in our language summons up more romantic images than the two-syllable substantive, "wedding," either in retrospect or anticipation. Sometimes in retrospect the images inspire the greater pleasure since they can then be separated from the anxiety over the arrangements which is bound to accompany the simplest ceremony. To lessen that anxiety by a detailed discussion of the preparations for, and procedure of, a correct wedding, no matter how formal or informal, is the purpose of this article.

Since even the simplest arrangements take time, the wise bride will allow herself plenty of that—when the bridegroom, who generally has no conception of what is involved, can be made to co-operate by setting an approximate wedding date as far ahead as possible. After the wedding date is agreed upon, the next step is to decide on the type of ceremony. This is largely up to the bride, since it is she—or her family—who bears the expense. A wedding that costs $25,000 may be no more impressive than one which, including the bride's linen and personal trosseau, entails a budget of $500, and it is often not in as good taste.

Whatever you do, don't put on a show out of keeping with the position which your family occupies in the community. Don't deplete the family coffers by a show that sets all the assembly wondering who's footing the bills. The fashionable procedure in St. Louis is to marry in church and meet guests afterward at a large reception at home or a club. But deviations from this procedure are many—all equally correct. The bride's preferences are always the first consideration: this is her day. If you are to be married in church, speak for it immediately and engage the clergyman to perform the ceremony. Make sure the organist is available if you want him. Reserve the club or hotel for the reception, if necessary. Remember how many other June brides will be seeking the same accommodations, and get these arrangements out of the way as early as possible.

I SAY "June brides." The same advice holds for brides in any other month of the year. There was a time when June was the traditional month for weddings, but now they are as fashionable one season as another, and as numerous, except during Lent. Nor is one day of the week any more fashionable than another, although a Protestant ceremony on Sunday is rare. In this city, most stylish Protestant weddings are held at 5, 5:30, 8 or 8:30 p. m., or at high noon. Catholics are usually married early in the day.

The chances are that a young woman who has been engaged for several months or longer, even though her intentions have not been publicly announced—the chances are that she has already assembled some of the linens and other household appointments which comprise a hope chest. The day has passed when young girls began marking towels, hemming tablecloths, embroidering pillowslips against their marriage, when they were scarcely big enough to thread a needle. There are too many short-cuts now to a well-stocked linen closet and the demands on it not great in an apartment with only one bedroom. However, the bride who is marrying a man of wealth, with intentions of establishing a large home immediately, must take into consideration the supplies that will necessitate when she plans her linen trousseau.

The purchase of your own personal trousseau can be deferred until the styles for the season in which you are being married have been set, and until your intended husband gives you a clue as to where you will go on your wedding trip. This information is not always easy to extract. Just be patient. A personal trousseau may be as simple or as elaborate as your purse, inclinations, your fiance's tastes, and the type of life you will lead—on a Wyoming ranch or in London's diplomatic circles—dictate. It is customary for a bride to provide herself with a wardrobe which will carry her through an entire year, so that her new husband will be temporarily spared the expense of clothes. In this city, if you are planning to operate on a budget after marriage, by all means buy clothes in colors that will not soil quickly, or of fabrics that can be laundered. Cleaning comes high. Many brides invite close friends and relatives to their home a few days before the wedding to see her linens and wardrobe. This function is called a trousseau tea and is in perfect propriety.

The most important article of wearing apparel to any bride is the gown in which she is to be married. Though she may prefer to wear a traveling suit or an afternoon ensemble with a hat, custom has established that she may wear white and a veil for any type of wedding at any hour of the day at any season. In our climate, a June bride who elects satin or moire over a mousseline or chiffon may let herself in for an unnecessary amount of grief at the hands of the weather man. Few wedding dresses are dead white; they are ivory, or ice blue or oyster colored. A white wedding gown, since it is traditionally associated with maidenhood, should be conservative in design, with long sleeves (or gloves below short ones)—and a modest decolletage. Veils of tulle are now fashionable but if you possess family lace by all means use it, either on your veil or for the chaplet from which it hangs. Some brides choose to wear also a face veil—or modesty veil, as it is sometimes called—which has its origin back in the practices of antiquity, when unmarried women did not customarily appear in public. Many young women who must economize now choose their wedding gowns with a view to having them altered later for afternoon or evening wear. If you are not sentimental and don't hope some day that your daughters and granddaughters will wear your wedding dress, yellowed with the years, this is a sensible plan.

Consistency is the keystone of any truly lovely wedding. The gowns of the bridesmaids must correspond in style and fabric to that of the bride although they generally are in colors different from hers. In most cases, unless it be an all-white wedding, the maid or matron of honor wears a color that differs slightly from that of the other attendants. If you are buying dresses readymade, it is wise to rely on the recommendations of salespersons who know from experience what fabrics will best weather a sudden squall at a garden ceremony, which colors show up most effectively in a candle-lit cathedral, and so on.

Above all, a bride should be kind to the personal attributes and the purses of the young women whom she asks to attend her. Bear in mind that a lavendar organdy bouffante frock may look too cute on your pint-sized cousin, but be simply ruinous on the lanky red-head who is coming down from Racine to take part. Also bear in mind what flowers are available at the season and how they will harmonize with the gowns. You select and pay for your bridesmaids' bouquets unless the bridegroom insists, which occurs in only isolated cases. At formal afternoon weddings, bridal attendants wear hats. In Catholic and Episcopal churches, women always cover their heads. The costuming of flower girls and ring-bearers—who fortunately for the peace of mind of other, participants, parents, and guests are rapidly becoming obsolete—is a special problem, to be worked out with patience.

In addition to choosing her trousseau, her wedding gown, the dresses of her attendants, the busy bride will want to have something to say about other arrangements—the style of the invitations, the decorations for the ceremony and reception, refreshments, pre-wedding parties, what her mother wears, and innumerable other details.

WHILE the bride is bothering her pretty head over all these matters, an exhilarating occupation which should never be permitted to grow unduly fatiguing, what has the bridegroom been up to? The chances are, nothing constructive. He probably hasn't even written his old roommate to ask him to stand by as best man on June 15 at 5 p. m. He hasn't been to his tailor about the proper outfit. He hasn't the ghost of an idea where to take his bride on a wedding trip, much less where to go for a license. He can't supply any addresses for college pals to whom he orders announcements sent. He can't decide whether he wants a check from Aunt Agatha, or that mahogany desk he's had his eye on since he was a kid, even though it's too big to fit any apartment. In fact, his contribution to date has been practically nil.

Perhaps under pressure, he has taken his bride to the jeweler to select the ring, and has accompanied her to the florist to decide about her bouquet, for which he pays. He may also have dragged around with her looking for an apartment, a job which many young couples undertake before they are married, in order that they may move right in on their return from a wedding trip. All any bride can expect from her future husband at this stage of the game is an unwavering smile and some co-operation in getting to the right place at the right time in the right clothes for pre-wedding parties. These, in spite of all solemn promises, crowd the last days before the wedding, leaving bride and bridegroom in a state of near-collapse for the actual ceremony.

Whatever else the bridegroom neglects, he and his family must assist in the drawing up of lists of guests to be invited to the ceremony and reception and of other acquaintances to whom only announcements are sent. They can also undertake to address, stamp and mail their share of the cards, if they will. That is detailed work which takes a level head and infinite pains. Any emergency is likely to occur, though not perhaps as serious as the one which descended on one prominent St. Louis family. After hours of addressing, stamping, sealing, checking and rechecking, the bride's mother entrusted the stack of invitations to a maid to mail as she went out in the afternoon. It was a rainy day, which may have contributed to her nervousness. As she approached the mail box on the corner, the pile buckled in her trembling hands and about half the envelopes slid into the gutter and right on down the sewer. The situation might have been saved with replacements if she had not unthinkingly posted the rest of the invitations. By the time she returned in the evening to report the mishap they had long since cleared the postoffice, so that there was no way of determining which invitations were delivered and which were coursing through the sewers to the Mississippi.

Wedding invitations are customarily sent out three weeks in advance. They may go even to out-of-town friends who almost certainly cannot attend. An invitation is always a greater compliment than a mere announcement. Few brides who have a long invitation list also send announcements. If these are used, however, they are mailed immediately after the ceremony, a duty which should be delegated to a responsible member of the wedding party.

Once the invitations are out, the days until the wedding move fast, with a myriad of details still to be attended to. Brides and their mothers ought to keep lists of chores, check over it daily, and get out of the way all that can be done before the last minute. Have arrangements

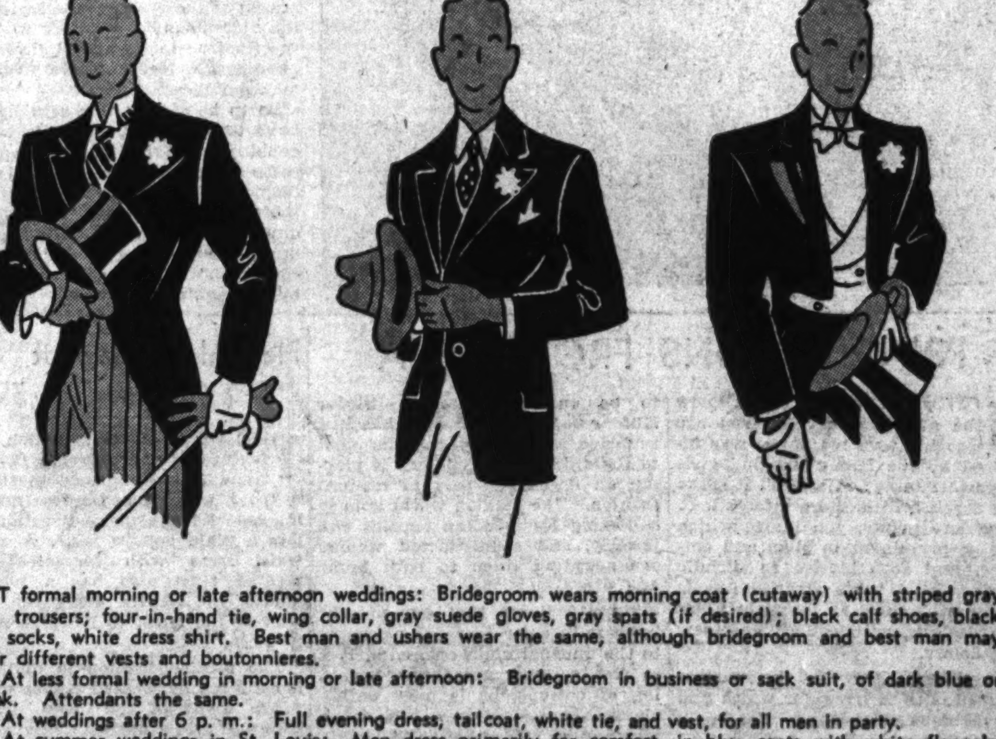
MEN'S DRESS FOR WEDDINGS



AT formal morning or late afternoon weddings: Bridegroom wears morning coat (cutaway) with striped gray trousers; four-in-hand tie, wing collar, gray suede gloves, gray spats (if desired); black calf shoes, black silk socks, white dress shirt. Best man and ushers wear the same, although bridegroom and best man may wear different vests and boutonnieres.

At less formal wedding in morning or late afternoon: Bridegroom in business or sack suit, of dark blue or black. Attendants the same.

At weddings after 6 p. m.: Full evening dress, tailcoat, white tie, and vest, for all men in party.

At summer weddings in St. Louis: Men dress primarily for comfort, in blue coats with white flannels, or white linen suits, but all alike, down to and including their shoes.

MY OPINION

by

Martha Carr

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I READ your answer to "Disgusted Wife." You always seem resentful to the "other man." I once met a man and we fell in love, but we had a silly quarrel and I, foolishly, married another man for spite. All during my married life, my former sweetheart kept away. We spoke and that was all. But I soon found out I couldn't stand playing the role of wife when I was not in love with my husband. So, before I left my husband or told anyone of my plans, this other man saw me at a party and told me he just couldn't keep still any longer; that he had to tell me he still loved me and always had. I didn't tell him of my plans; I got my divorce quietly and he saw it in the paper and came at once and begged me to marry him.

We are now married and very happy, we have a lovely baby daughter; and we are both thankful that Fate brought us together again.

What about this, Mrs. Carr? A VERY HAPPY WIFE.

Yes, I am against the "other man" and also the "other woman" (so-called). And I believe every thinking person who values the standards of morals of marriage is "against" those whose feeling of obligation to these standards is so slight that they sacrifice their loyalty and their oath to a mere whim of "spite." You have made no mention of your duty toward the one you cheated; and evidently the fine-grained sense of responsibility was left out. If we had more women whose ideas of marriage were as unbalanced, we would have a shiftless ideal for young men and young women to grow up to.

—o—o—

● I WANT TO TELL YOU of a courageous little family which has never had any idea of asking for outside help although they have ever so little of this world's goods. The oldest child tries to help his mother, a widow, by selling magazines after school hours. However, going on foot is slow work and hard on soles; so I have been wondering if it might be possible to secure a "bike" for him. He longs for this so earnestly.

If I could hear of someone who had a bicycle not in use, I would be ever so glad to supply new parts if necessary and put it in A1 condition for this lad.

The mother also could use a washing machine. FRIENDLY.

—o—o—

My Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM WRITING YOU AGAIN to thank you for helping me and my family. You will never know how much you did, not only by helping me to get clothes, but by giving me a chance to meet and make friends with so many nice people.

Martha, I want to let you know just what I did with the money. We were out of food and fuel and I bought some of both with it.

And now I will always be reading the paper and your column to see if sometime I can be any help to you or others who write in saying they are in need. GRATEFUL.

—o—o—

My dear Mrs. Carr:

● I HAVE A TERRIBLE PROBLEM. My daughter is 18 years old and has accepted several dates with a man, who would never come to her home to get her; but would meet her at a certain place and time. We told our daughter she should have him come to the house to get her as her parents wanted to meet him. But his answer is that he works late and is too busy to accept invitations. I have now been informed that my daughter is in a tragic condition—and the name this man gave is not his; nor does she know where he lives.

One night when he met her we had him watched; and his automobile number was secured. We, her parents, took this to a lawyer. We find the man is 45 years old and very wealthy. What can we do?

A WORRIED MOTHER.

One can hardly understand the reasoning of parents who allow their daughters to go out, even a first time, with any boy or man who refuses to come to the home and first meet the parents before taking the girl out at all. Certainly it is a most dangerous, slipshod way of looking out for a daughter. This girl of yours is still a minor (in legal questions) though she is of marriageable age in Missouri.

You should take this farther—to the Domestic Relations Court or the Board of Children's Guardians, so that the man of such a lack of character may not become a menace to more young girls.

—o—o—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

● OFTEN I READ in your column that some young man or woman likes singing and I would advise them, if they want to keep in practice, to join a chorus like ours. We sing both German and English; the women on Thursday night and the men Friday night at 8 o'clock, at the German House.

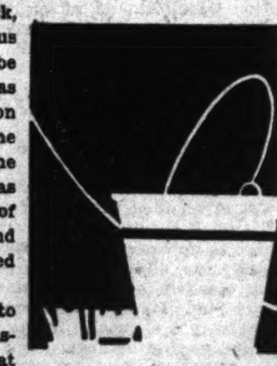
These singers will meet a very nice crowd of people, young and old, and we give twice a year a big concert and sing on different occasions in and outside the city! We have a very competent director. Visitors are welcome. C. L.

—o—o—

My dear Mrs. Carr:

If you find room in your column, I would appreciate you putting this letter in it, in answer to "Another Mother" who is so unhappy because of the passing away of her child. Thank you.

To the mother who seems to think that because her little girl was so interested in Jesus her death was brought about prematurely, I would like to write a few words. First let me ask a question: Did Jesus teach a doctrine of death, horrible, black, terrifying, and limited? Indeed not! Jesus taught life and the happiness that can be ours if we follow in His footsteps. Love was the thing that Jesus tried to impress upon the people's minds and, "Ye must become as little children before ye can enter the Kingdom of God," is as true today as it was then. We often see religious pictures of Jesus in the midst of little children and their beautiful faces turned to Him filled with love for the Christ.



Little children, before they are taught to use only their five senses, retain the wisdom which is implanted into their minds at birth—that is why it is natural for them to become so enthusiastic when told about God and the Christ child. As they grow older they are taught to regard only the things that the physical senses can comprehend; thereby the mirror of the soul becomes clouded with false ideas and they lose that wonderful contact with the Kingdom of God.

Just as children are often taught that there is a bogey man in the closet and they live in dread fear of that untruth, so it is with many adults who live in fear of the bogey man which is called "Death." Such persons need re-education and the falsehoods of death eliminated from their minds. Jesus spoke of Life Everlasting, and we would find that to be truth, if we would study and learn the message the Master left us.

THE WORLD AS WOMEN SEE IT

THAT CHATTER OF STYLE WRITERS

Some of It Just Doesn't Make Sense to One Reader, and, for That Matter, Neither Do Fashions

By Virginia Irwin

IF you were to ask me the difference between buckram and mousseline de soie, you'd get a pretty vague answer. I don't know anything about materials, trimmings, lines, silhouettes, Directoire and other influences, interpretations, inspirations, or style trends. In fact I do well to be able to explain the difference between a peplum and a gusset, but I do know that the chatter of style writers gives me the ague.

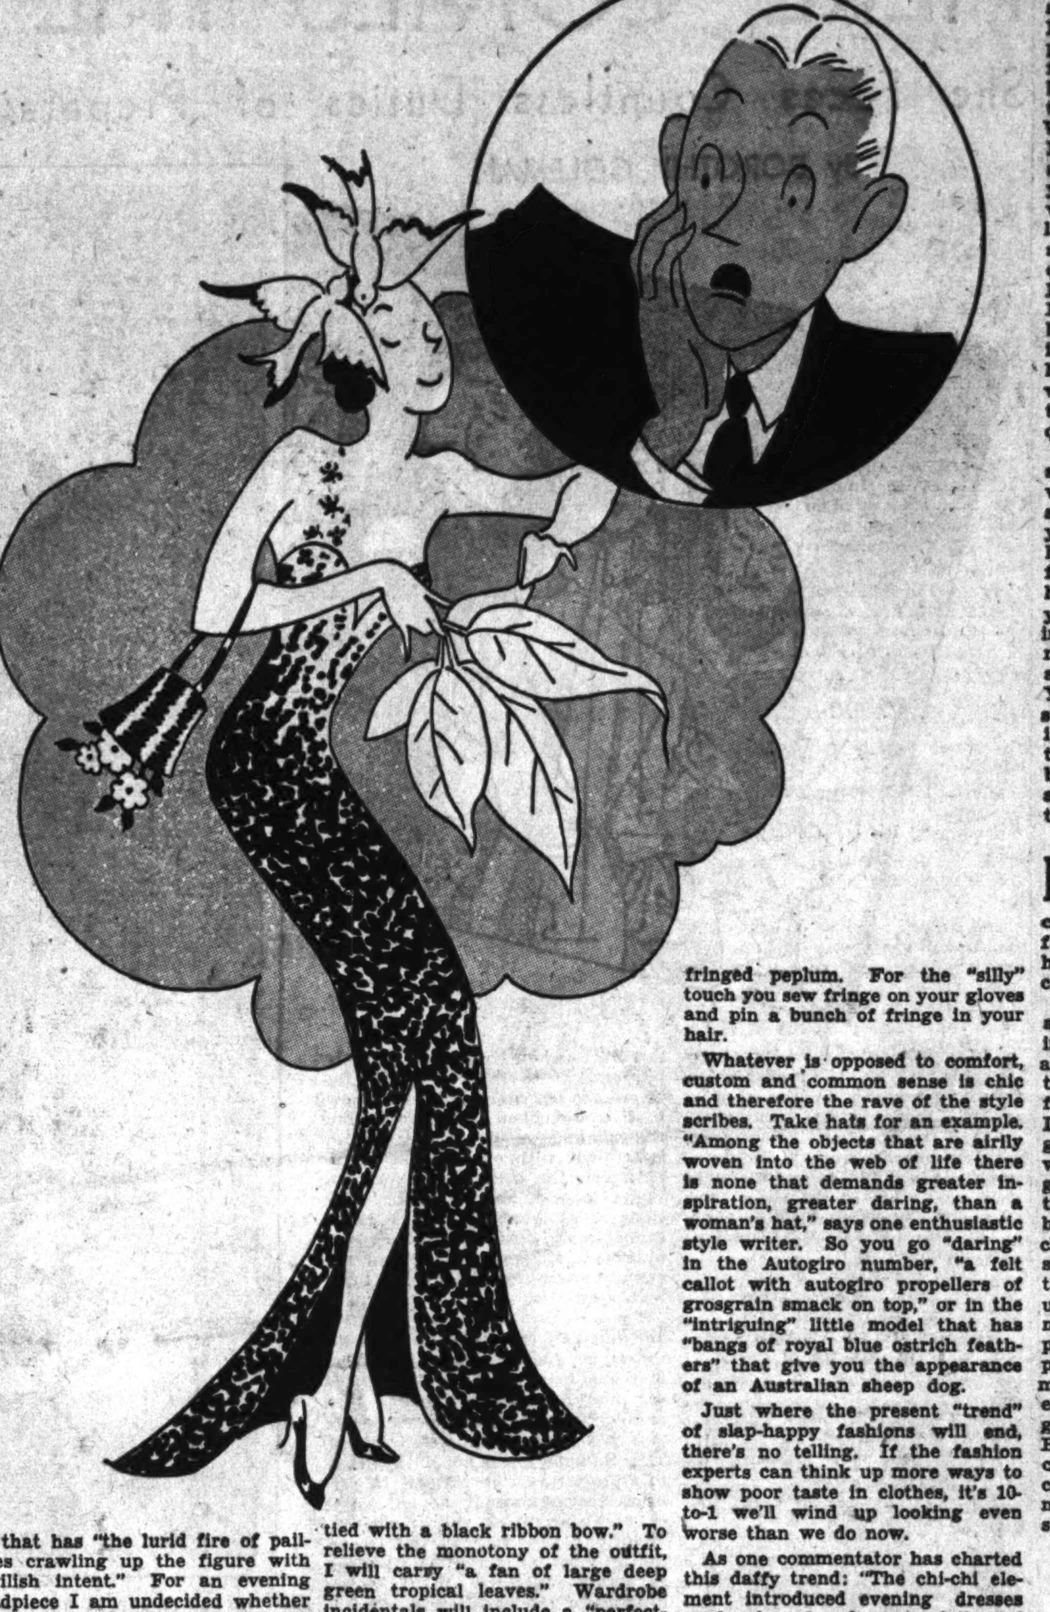
For instance, this description of a little imported number taken from Harper's Bazaar: "A new silhouette pure as a classic urn, molded tight over the poitrine, pale flesh-pink crepe, cut very low with a blazing jewel at the point of decolletage. In short a glorified nightgown clinging to the figure, but cut with such skill that it is a grande toilette."

Or this from Vogue: "Schiaparelli's collection is filled with shocks. Here's her shocking decolletage, her famous shocking-pink broadcloth, and her shockingly long train."

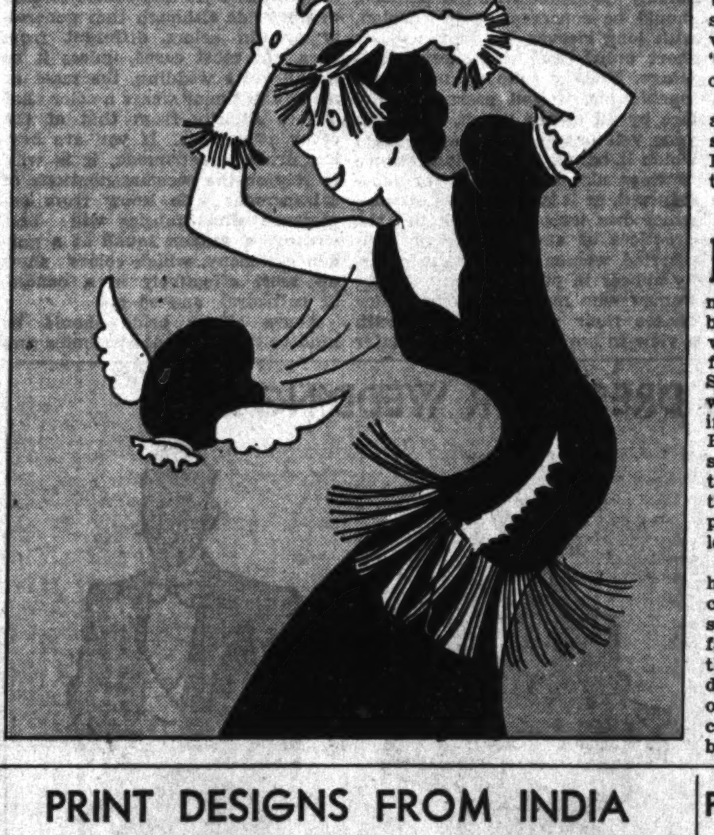
In my abysmal ignorance I haven't yet figured out whether the "classic urn silhouette, glorified nightgown" number was meant to wear dancing or to bed—that "blazing jewel at the point of the decolletage" is what makes it a tough question for me to decide. I keep thinking, what if that jewel business came loose in the night. It would be like sleeping on a hunk of gravel. And similar thoughts torture me when I consider the matter of the "shockingly long train." Just how many yards of goods must be trailing from the stern to make a train "shocking."

But maybe that's how the fashion scribes figure on piquing curiosity. They know that if they simply described some little number as made out of an old burlap bag cut on the bias, nobody would get very excited. But what woman could resist a gown that is "dramatic but discreet," that fits "desperately at the waistline" and yet manages to be one of the "tenderest" confections of the couturiers? Top this with an "amusing" hat inspired by an autogiro, the Aurora Borealis, or a Chinese pagoda, and you've got a nightmare that makes you an example of how the well-dressed woman will look this spring.

—o-o—



MY own spring wardrobe has been planned with the help of ideas taken from Vogue and Harper's. The shoes will be "repercussions from the famous T-strap: A forked T-strap on a new sandal that streaks way way up and fastens high about the angle." The dress will be a "sensuous Directoire siluhouette, white crepe, fuid, box-pleated, profoundly simple." The hat will be an inspiration from the Bushongo of Africa, a "primitive thing" that looks like a meat-grinder with a bunch of hamburger oozing out of the top in worm-like threads. For evening I have chosen a "sinful" number from Mainbocher, that has "the lurid fire of paillettes crawling up the figure with devilish intent." For an evening headpiece I am undecided whether to pin a couple of stuffed pigeons in my hair or wear "a cluster of blue paillette birds poised with verve on the top of the head and tied with a black ribbon bow." To relieve the monotony of the outfit, I will carry "a fan of large deep green tropical leaves." Wardrobe incidentals will include a "perfectly serious hat from Schiaparelli" modeled after an old carpet slipper, a casual coat with a "black fox collar with pink orbs and a shocking pink hair ribbon," a pair of "absurd gloves with colored fingers," a "confetti-strewn jacket," a "flower-pot evening bag," a "Watteau veil of stiffened horsehair, sprinkled with paillettes, topped with a flourish of ostrich," and "three different antelope bags on one gold chain."



If I'm not "amusing" and chic as all get out when I get done up for spring, I'm going to sue Vogue and Harper's for obtaining my subscription under false pretenses.

—o-o—

BEING attractive is out of the question—in fact, it's out of style these days. As one commentator observed: "The entire business of women's fashions is a whimsical racket. Skirts rise and fall; bosoms recede and protude; Schiaparelli does amusing things with buttons; and in Italy someone invents a new fabric made of milk. But it seems that this particular season witnesses the apotheosis of the ridiculous in women's styles—the final perfect polished flower of phoniness. Never have women looked sillier."

So to be stylish this season, you have to look silly, and how better could you do it than by copying some of the outfits suggested in the fashion magazines? For instance, there's Chanel's "come-hither black dinner dress of crepe with a perilously low neck and sleeves that come off." This outfit is held up by a sequin halter and has a fringed peplum. For the "silly" touch you sew fringe on your gloves and pin a bunch of fringe in your hair.

Whatever is opposed to comfort, custom and common sense is chic and therefore the rave of the style scribes. Take hats for an example. "Among the objects that are airily woven into the web of life there is none that demands greater inspiration, greater daring, than a woman's hat," says one enthusiastic style writer. So you go "daring" in the Autogiro number, "a felt callot with autogiro propellers of grosgrain smack on top," or in the "intriguing" little model that has "bangs of royal blue ostrich feathers" that give you the appearance of an Australian sheep dog.

Just where the present "trend" of slap-happy fashions will end, there's no telling. If the fashion experts can think up more ways to show poor taste in clothes, it's 10-to-1 we'll wind up looking even worse than we do now.

As one commentator has charted this daffy trend: "The chi-chi element introduced evening dresses made of wool and sports clothes of satin. They made it smart to wear emeralds and pearls with beach apparel. Last winter, the most fashionable thing to do with your coat was not to put it on, but to wear it slung over your shoulders. All over New York, you saw women tripping around in this silly fashion, for all the world as if they'd just broken both arms and couldn't get their coats on over the bandages. What matter if they froze to death? It was chic; it was amusing. It was also chic and amusing to carry your hat in your hand instead of wearing it on your head. (Like the lady in New York society who owns a tiara so heavy that she takes it off and carries it around at parties. I suppose that shows she's got it. I've got some extra underwear, too, but I don't feel that I have to prove it by carrying it around in my hand.) In this way, by shocking women with the unexpected, the esthetes made their first definite conquest of the fashion empire."

Rebelling at the trend that has sacrificed femininity to chic, one voice in the fashion wilderness observes: "Because most women look youngest and prettiest with their hair in soft waves around their faces, it is now smart to wear your hair pulled severely up on top of your head, letting your ears wave in the breeze and exposing your neckline in back—usually the least attractive part of a woman's head. You are permitted a few stiff, scultpured curls for ornament, into which you stick birds, imitation hands cut off at the wrists, bunches of grapes, or practically anything else you can find around the house."

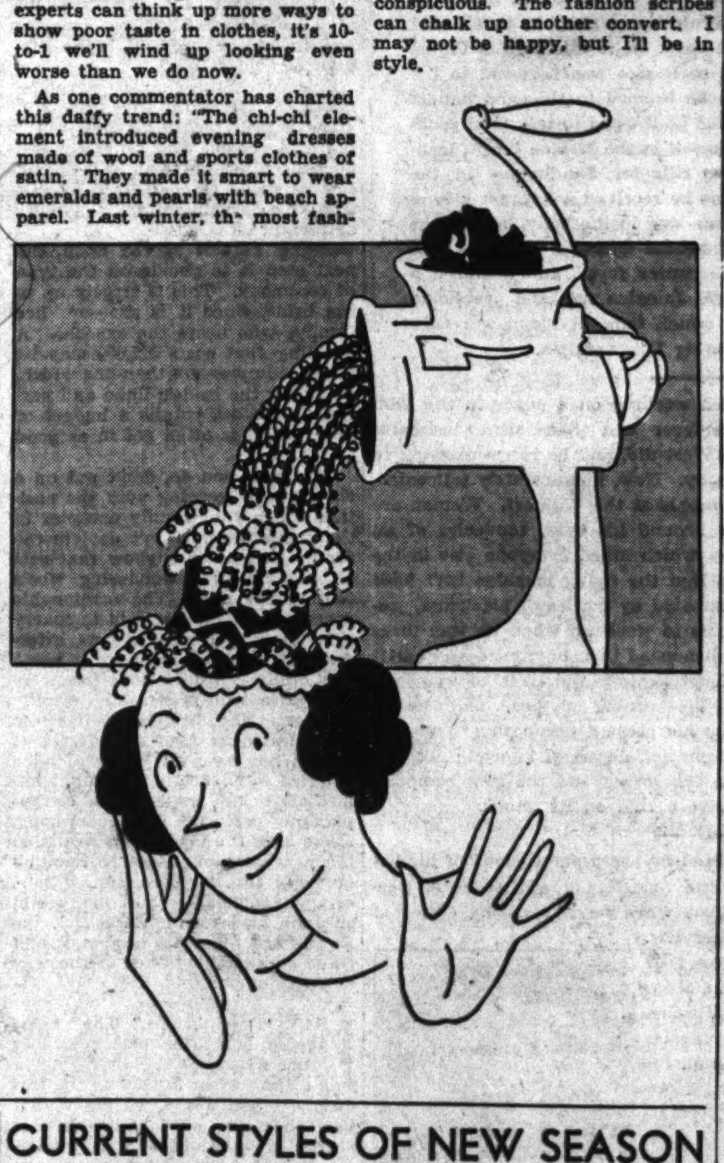
BUT that's the stuff on which the style writers go to town and you end up believing that you're decidedly "country" unless you go in for stuffed pigeons pinned in your hair and other nonsensical "accents."

Personally I can't get excited about such things as pigeons nesting in my hair, "witty" buttons that are miniature "feet with curling toes," or pastel clothespins clamped for no reason at all on a hat brim. I haven't the figure to wear a gown that fits "desperately" at the waistline, and I'm not the type to go in for "tender" little creations that for all their naivete manage to be definitely—"but definitely!"—chic. In fact, I look like homemade sin in just about everything but a tailored suit. But at last I've given up and given out, bought a hat modeled after a meat grinder, a pocketbook inspired by a flower pot, and a dress that goes "dramatic" in trimming with "red wooden lips" that take the place of the good old-fashioned round buttons. Being sensible was making me too conspicuous. The fashion scribes can chalk up another convert. I may not be happy, but I'll be in style.



PRINT DESIGNS FROM INDIA

HOW would you feel if you knew the afternoon dirndle you are wearing to a tea dance was inspired by the Hindu dancing girls of far-off India? Wouldn't it make the frock a little more interesting? Bayadere prints, you know, which are so prominent in silks and cottons, and so effective in dirndle frocks, have those strange scrolls and motifs so often found in Eastern designs, with equally fascinating colors.

Bayadere silks are the narrow striped ones of irregular width and harmonious blending. Not only dresses, but jackets, boleros and girdles make smart use of them, as well as summer bags.

It is significant that interest in the fabrics and art of India seem to be on the increase. Sirdar Kumar Jag-Jit Singh, who has just returned after a four-months' visit to India, finds that country is playing an important part in modern fashion. The fashion world is busy collecting East Indian textiles and jewelry, and sophisticated women are adapting them to both home and dress.

Singh believes that our present interest in color leads us naturally to the unusual multi-colored stripes in fine cottons and silks. Speaking of cottons, he is most enthusiastic about a finely woven cotton which is so attractive as to glorify a most important summer frock.

For beach and sports wear, we are due to see many patterns in Mat Ganga hand-blocked prints.

Pleated Vogue Not Confined to Skirts

THE vogue of pleats which is a feature of the current fashion trend is not confined to skirts. A frock which has its own matching bolero has a pleated section below a plain square yoke. A skirtwaist dress with an all-around pleated skirt also has a pleated blouse, the sleeves being the only part of the frock to be left severely plain.

The pleated fashion in millinery is reflected by pleated sashes which adorn many of the new broad-brimmed straw models and also the fabric hats which have wide pleated brims. A straw crown often is used with the fabric brim and looks most effective when of a contrasting color.

CURRENT STYLES OF NEW SEASON

SIGNIFICANT of the new styles are the ensembles of pastel-colored woollen fabrics, with decorative details in baroque pattern. Great scrolls flourish over jackets—black on yellow, for example. Or a biscuit woollen may be appliqued in shrimp pink and blue.

The chin strap, which has been adopted by young and old alike, regardless of age or signs of dotage, was introduced for women almost two years ago.

The corseted mode expresses itself in girdles with jacket dresses. Some are made of wide patent leather, and others in contrasting fabrics with vest points, or in bands draped like cummerbunds.

Boleros are interchangeable and reversible, and are adapted for both day and evening, according to the fineness and richness of the fabric. Now we are beginning to see them in fine Swiss embroidered organdies and eyelet batiste, as well as ruched net.

One of the loveliest boleros for evening is made of ombré silk nasturtiums. Another is in pink ostrich.

Ostrich tipped hats, mostly white and black effects, are darlings of the millinery mode, especially for dinner wear.

Black ottoman silk dinner suits are ultra-smart.

Fun Spots in The Clouds Are Opening Soon

New Yorkers Go to Roof Gardens for Their Summer Jollity.

By Alice Hughes

NEW YORK, April 23.

IT'S hard to believe, but within 10 days most of our rooftop places of evening fun will be open for the summer season. New Yorkers in gala mood and caught in town during the hot months go to the roofs for their jollity, for if there's any breeze going in the stone wilderness of Manhattan, it will be found on the summits of our big hotels.

And they are charming places, too, with the finest of dance music for those who defy the heat. On May 5, for instance, the Hotel Pierre Roof will open, and that's 40 floors above Fifth avenue. Emil Coleman's soothing orchestra will perform, and my favorite Castilian dance team, Medrano and Donna, will represent Terpsichore. I saw them first at the Miami Biltmore a few winters back, and now I'm one of their regular fans.

Vincent Astor's St. Regis Roof will open the portals the following evening, with Joseph Rines and his elegant band playing the tunes. Astor's spot will even sport a ballet this summer. This establishment was called "The Viennese Roof" last year, but I imagine it will be renamed.

Of course, Rockfeller's gorgeous Rainbow Room will continue to do its heady stuff during the summer. About Memorial day it will suddenly go informal, and men and women in daytime clothes will pass muster with the austere and ornamental maitre d'hotel. All of which is a blessing for the boys—how they hate to be strapped up in a boiled shirt in July. Mine simply won't—if he's not welcome in white linen, he'll simply stay away!

So if you come to see us in the next few months, don't worry about fancy dress! Even our flossiest spots unbend during summer—with the result that people seem to have more fun. Except, perhaps, the girls who have magnificent new evening dresses they want to flaunt. And they can flaunt if they like!

THE LOCAL white Russian colony celebrated its Easter, according to the Orthodox calendar, with great fasting followed by much feasting. Their ceremonies are long, varied and colorful, and some of them involve too much vodka and brandy for one who is practically teetotal. But it's a great feast, and they celebrate it greatly.

—o-o—

ALL WOMEN are shoe-crazy, but the ones who really have to watch their foot-health are the dancers. Take Doris Humphrey, who dances often with Charles Wiedman. Doris works on the stage in her bare pinkies, but she spends an appalling amount on the correct street shoes. She buys only shoes that support her ankles and insteps and permit her toes to lie straight. And she tells me that not since her school days has she worn a heel more than two inches high! That's giving all for art! . . .

—o-o—

EASTER SAW one very big and happy reunion here! The seven Ogilvie Sisters, of hair fame, all got together here in town for the holiday—the first time they've all rallied in five years. Georgina came back from France, and so did Miss Beth. Dr. Gladys hurried home from Florida, and Miss Jessica from a nationwide tour. Add sisters Anne, Clara and Mabel and we had all seven under one roof. They gave oone nice big party for their friends here, too . . .

—o-o—

ANNA CASE MACKAY, wife of the Postal Telegraph tycoon, has turned writer of popular songs! The former Metropolitan diva has just sold two numbers—one a jazzy item called "Hippa-Hoo," the other a ballad, "Just an Old-Fashioned Picture." And so the famous singer of "The Star-Spangled Banner" adds to her other affairs a career as a tune-writer . . .

—o-o—

I HEAR that Paul Draper, our favorite tap-dancer, has a girl friend named Estrella Elizagas, who was Estelle Carroll when she lived over the river in Brooklyn. But what's a name, where love's concerned?

—o-o—

THE WORDS of a king may have a quick and definite effect on store promotions. Not long ago George VI said he was glad ostrich feathers are coming back into fashion. Sure enough, the other day an avenue store opened a window filled with trim little white hats decked with the white plumes. Other milliners are getting ostrich-conscious. And probably the King's words had plenty to do with it!

Velvet Neckbands

Those old-fashioned neckbands that dowagers wore some years ago are now being indorsed by the debutantes as well as the matrons. A flattering type that is designed for wear with picturesque evening frocks is made of narrow velvet ribbon and has a pendant attached.

OUR BRAIN-CONSCIOUS AMERICA

Public Seems to Be Going Crazy Trying to Find Out Its I. Q., Says George Jean Nathan; He Submits His Own "Popular Delusion Test."

By GEORGE JEAN NATHAN

IT seems that the American public is going crazy trying to find out what its I. Q. is. It is difficult to discover a newspaper or magazine that hasn't somewhere in it a list of questions designed to let the reader determine for himself whether he is a cerebral brother to Socrates or just a Dummkopf. But exactly how one can arrive at one's intelligence quotient with most of the questions asked is pretty hard to figure out. As for myself, I confess that if the ability to answer nine-tenths of them constitutes a true indication of one's mental eminence, I am beyond all doubt and challenge the nation's supreme nit-wit.

Here are a few of the typical aforesaid questions culled from a variety of gazettes:

1. How wide are the Straits of Magellan?

2. Who originated the phrase, "Go chase yourself"?

3. When was Cecil B. DeMille born?

4. What is the population of New Zealand?

5. What color was Gloria Swanson's hair originally?

6. Who is the mayor of Macon, Ga.?

The game, however, takes manifold forms. One way of definitely testing your intelligence, it seems, is the ability to decipher the name of a celebrated Swedish movie star from the tangled letters GRTEA GRABO. If you can do that, it is a sure bet that Hegel and Kant had nothing on you.

Another way is to pick out the correct answers to a series of such problems as these:

Thomas Hart Benton, Freddie Bartholomew.

2—The Bessemer process is a process generally associated with one of the following three:

Manufacture of lollipops, knitting of socks, making of steel.

3—The largest city in America is:

Newark, N. J., Pike's Corners, Mass., New York City.

4—Which of the following is not situated in China:

Toledo, O., Zanesville, O., Shanghai, Pittsburgh, Pa.?

5—Five of these aren't the name of a part of your eye:

Medulla oblongata, kidney, liver, elbow, appendix, iris.

A new and still further deductive test goes something like this:

1—Henry likes to sleep until noon, is unambitious, detests work of all kinds, inherited a million dollars from his grandmother, and is completely paralyzed. He is offered several jobs. Would Henry:

(a) Accept one as letter carrier paying him $6 a week and demanding that he work from 6 a. m. to 9 p. m.?

(b) Accept one as professional cross-country runner paying $10 a week?

(c) Accept one walking dogs from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. at $3 a week?

2—Lucille is a cold beauty who has utterly no use for men and hates the sight of them; she also intensely dislikes any form of athletics; and she is happiest when baking rich pastries. Would she marry:

(a) A golf fiend?
(b) A tennis fiend?
(c) A dyspeptic?

There are hundreds of other such questionnaires and I now take the liberty of adding still another by way of contributing to the national intellectual agony. It at least has the virtue of making some sense and providing a somewhat sharper test of your IQ than most of the others. Let's call it the Popular Delusions Test. This is the idea:

There are many things that almost everyone believes and that are not true. If you are one of the rare ones who doesn't believe them, give yourself a gold medal for each No. If you do believe them, go out after each question and kick yourself smartly in the pants. Here are some sample delusions, together with the truth about them:

Question. Do you, like almost everybody else, believe that only great art can survive?

Answer. It's the bunk. A lot of inferior art has survived and does survive pretty handsomely. For example: Mother Goose, Uncle Tom's Cabin, Charley's Aunt, Home Sweet Home, Peck's Bad Boy, Rosa Bonheur's The Horse Fair, 'Twas the Night Before Christmas, Black Beauty, Dracula, etc., etc.

Q. Do you, like almost everybody else, believe that there is a town named Springfield in every state in the Union?

A. It's the bunk. There are Springfields in only 26 of the states.

Q. Do you, like almost every other nut, believe that an actress who devotes most of her life to bad plays can never hope to achieve critical fame and great eminence?

A. It's the bunk. Marie Tempest has played in not more than one or two even fairly reputable plays during her entire career. Sarah Bernhardt played in more junk than you can shake a stick at. And the great Duse appeared in four doses of claptrap for every respectable play she offered.

Q. Do you, like almost everyone else, believe that infant prodigies seldom grow up to amount to anything?

A. It's the bunk. Verdi composed a symphony at 15. Mozart wrote compositions at 4 that are still in existence, at 9 he published six sonatas and his symphonies were played in England, and at 11 he conducted his own concerts in Vienna. Fritz Kreisler won a gold medal at 10 at the Vienna Conservatory and two years later won the Prix de Rome. Beethoven began showing things at 5 and got going quite strong at 11½. Josef Hofmann made a successful debut at the Metropolitan when he was 9.

Q. Do you, like most other sardine-heads, believe that twins always look much alike?

A. It's the bunk. Frequently they do not in the least resemble each other. As an illustrative example, there are my good friends, Charles G. Shaw and Frank Shaw of New York, the former a painter and the latter in real estate. Though twins, they look no more alike than Anthony Eden and Haile Selassie.

Q. Do you, like 99 out of every 100 persons, believe that Samuel Clemens was the original and one and only Mark Twain?

A. It's the bunk. The original Mark Twain was the amusing Isaiah Sellers, who wrote for the New Orleans Picayune back in 1836 and whose prior claim to the pseudonym Clemens freely admitted.

Q. Speaking of writers' pseudonyms, are you one of the many fowl who believe that when women adopt them they always take men's names, whereas men never take women's names?

A. It's the bunk. Felicia Hemans called herself Clara Balfour, Elizabeth of Rumania called herself Carmen Sylvia, Eva M. Mackay's pen name was Marie Corelli, Mrs. Hungerford called herself The Duchess, Emily C. Judson took the name of Fanny Forrester, Mrs. McFall became Sarah Grand, Anna B. Warner dubbed herself Amy Lothrop, Harriet M. Lathrop became Margaret Sidney, Sarah Lippincott called herself Grace Greenwood, and so on. There are dozens of similar instances. On the other hand, F. M. Witcher called himself Widow Bedott, William Sharp was known as Fiona Macleod, Benjamin P. Shillaber called himself Mrs. Partington and H. L. Mencken and George Jean Nathan once wrote essays and stories for the old Smart Set magazine under the names of Countess de Greville and the Baroness Hilda von Engelbert.

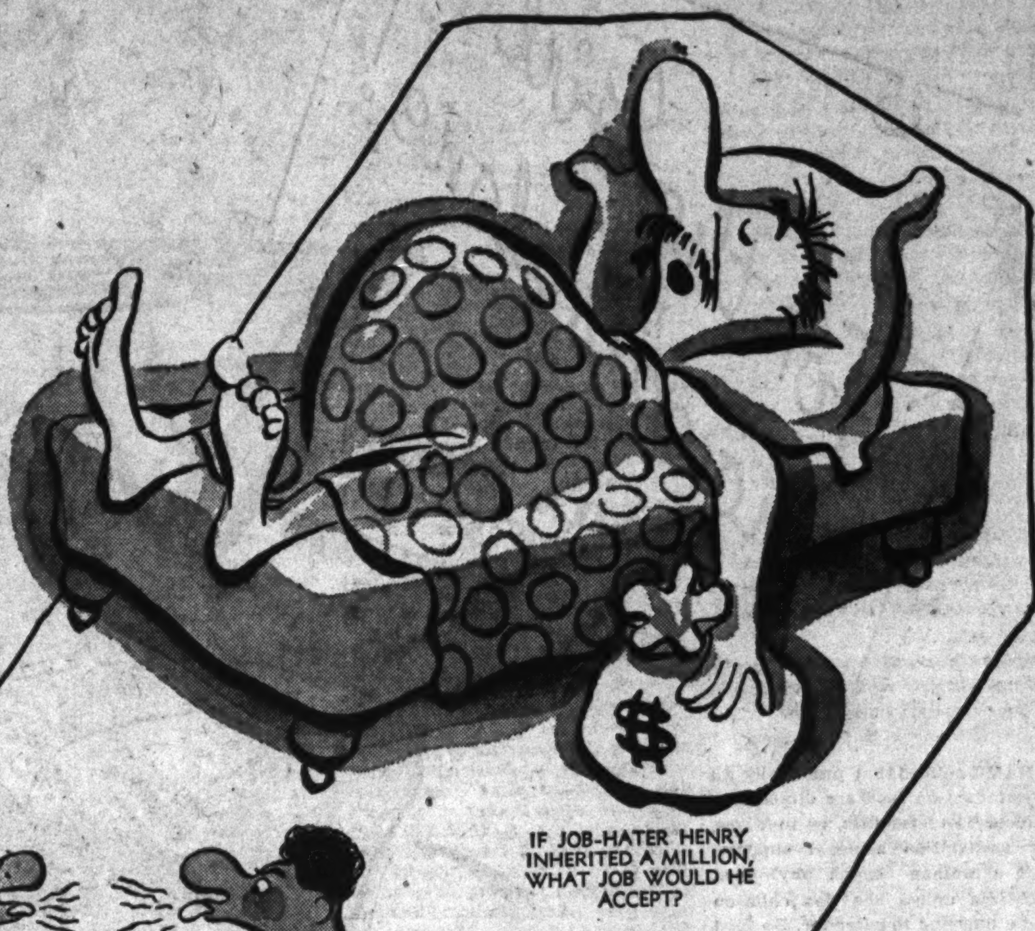
Q. Do you, like countless others, believe that you can hear sounds out of doors much clearer on cold, dry winter days than on hot summer days?

A. It's the bunk. Sound travels quicker through hot air than through cold air.

—o-o—

Q. Are you one of the marbleheads who believe that actors and actresses generally change their names to something very fancy?

A. It's the bunk. In 320 names of the better-known players, you will find a great preponderance of such Christian names as Maude, Mary, Lena, Clara, Alice, Fanny, May, Emma, Ruth, Bessie, Betty, Jane, Dorothy, Jessie, Louise, Gertrude, Elsie, Grace, Mabel, Lulu, Alma, Ann, Martha, Frieda, Edna, Maria, Katharine, Bertha, Myrtle, Madge, Julia, Ada, Florence, Rose, Effie, Maggie and Sophie. Also a whole carload of actors named Oscar, George, Fred, John, Jack, James, Jacob, Harry, Arthur, Eddie, Henry, Leon, Maurice, Ralph, Frank, Charles, Ludwig, Albert, Tom, Joe, David and Emil. And a large plenty of such surnames as Anderson, Bates, Brady, Burke, Cantor, Clark, Connolly, Daniels, Fields, Gahagan, Gaul, Gleason, Gordon, Gottschalk, Hay, Hayes, Hopper, Robinson, Sears, Skinner, Smith, Jones, Stone, Thomas, Tucker, Walker, Weber, Watson, Wood, Young, Jackson, McIntyre, Mitchell, Green, Moore, Peters, O'Brien, O'Malley, Sullivan and Kelly.



IF JOB-HATER HENRY INHERITED A MILLION, WHAT JOB WOULD HE ACCEPT?

DOES SOUND TRAVEL MORE RAPIDLY THROUGH HOT AIR? COLD AIR?

LUCILLE IS A COLD BEAUTY. WHOM SHOULD SHE MARRY?

DO INFANT PRODIGIES USUALLY GROW UP TO AMOUNT TO SOME-THING?

DO YOU BELIEVE THAT TWINS ALWAYS LOOK VERY MUCH ALIKE?

Attention Is Centering on Summer Garb

Off-White, as Substitute for White, Will Be Popular Shade.

A FEW warm days are sufficient to make St. Louis women forget about their spring wardrobes and turn their attention to summer cottons, pastel sheers and casual summer sports costumes. While predictions as to popular shades and materials sometimes prove difficult, there are sufficient trends in evidence at this early date to indicate certain preferences.

Fashion interest in summer shades centers around off-white as a substitute for white. The 1938 version has a creamy cast which follows the spring vogue of beige, toast, chamois, wheat and all of the other variations of light tan. Natural linen tone also is appearing extensively, especially in the peasant linen and knitted fabrics. Interest in these off-white shades extends to accessories as well as dresses. Footwear, for example, is being featured extensively in natural and toast colored fabrics often combined with a dark or a high shade. The decorative hue usually repeats a tone appearing on the costume.

—o-o—

CREAMY TINTS, whether used for a complete ensemble or for accents, represent the more conservative style emphasis of the summer season. Many new pastels that border on the gay are being introduced, especially for dresses and suits that are of the spectator sports type. Pink, aquamarine, rose and various light blue shades are destined to be leaders with novelty pastels taken from the tint of ices and ice creams of increasing fashion importance. Raspberry ice, strawberry ice, pistachio and mint are colors that will be seen repeatedly.

Since white seems to have lost some of its usual popularity as the basis of summer costumes, it is not surprising to note that it is appearing as an accent of bright shades. Many of the new summer handbags, for example, show white trimming on color and there is a vogue of white decorations on vived toned summer frocks.

—o-o—

ANOTHER SUMMER TREND that is equally as impressive as that of the color chart concerns the use of several fabrics together. Printed silks are allied with piques and linens to create some of the most interesting two-piece dresses. Often the blouse or jacket is made of the cotton while the pleated skirt is of a printed silk. Little taffeta jackets and those of corded silks are worn with printed cotton skirts as a reversal of the theme and there are many knitted meshes used for dresses that are trimmed elaborately with silk or synthetic crepe and the stiff ribbed materials.

Printed fabrics were less in vogue during the early months of this year than they have been for many months but they have made up for the loss of prestige as the spring season has advanced. Now it looks as though every woman prefers printed to a solid colored costume and that the summer will bring even a greater demand for the patterned fabrics for all occasions.

Sheer Frocks

Sheer frocks that depend upon shirring for their decoration look as flattering for daytime as they do for evening. Navy blue is the popular choice for daytime wear, while vivid pink is smart for evening. One navy frock that illustrates the vogue has a shirred blouse and a shirred redingote that ties at the waistline. A stunning evening dress with shirred bodice adds a little jacket that is waistline length.

Velvet Ribbon as Dress Trimming

THE designers are making the most of the vogue for old-fashioned dress trimmings, one of their favorites being velvet ribbon. They introduce embroidered beading on juvenile and women's dresses as an excuse to use the ribbon and introduce it in many other ways on attractive costumes.

Wide girdles that are made of velvet ribbon in flower or jewel tones are the most striking features of many sheer cotton evening dresses. These girdles emphasize the quaint aspect of the frocks which are cut with round necks, short sleeves and skirts that are very wide at the hemline. One interesting frock shown in a recent fashion show was made of black net and had a girdle of pink velvet ribbon. This girdle was pointed at top and bottom in the manner of a 1900 corset and was boned to wasp-like proportions. Frills trimmed the neckline and hem of the dress where pink velvet ribbons were beaded through the net. A mass of matching pink flowers piled on a high coiffure completed a picturesque ensemble.

Velvet ribbon bows trim other evening dresses and look especially demure against the background of organdie or mousseline. One black organza frock seen recently employed black velvet ribbon bows to hold pink ribbons in place around the edge of the very wide skirt. Similar bows were noted at intervals around the hemline of a black crepe frock, these bows catching up the fabric into loops and creating a scalloped line.

Multicolored Veil

Wear a multicolored veil with your navy sailor and see how much more versitable this spring hat becomes. If three tones are combined in the mesh, then three different sets of accessories are possible to complement a navy tailleur. Red, yellow and green are the vivid alliances.

Suit Decorations

Much elaboration in the form of surface decoration is a distinctive feature of little suits created for late spring wear in town. Sheer materials of wool or synthetic threads introduce applique borders, embroidered designs of soutache braid or medallion trimming of silk cord. One striking suit that illustrates the trend has silk cord with fringed ends outlining wide jacket pockets.

Dressy Frocks for Afternoons

WITH so much emphasis on ensembles, suits and dressmaker coats in the spring fashion picture, it is only natural to overlook the new afternoon frocks. But comes a time in the life of every one of us when bridge, club meetings and afternoon teas send us scurrying to the wardrobe in search of a dress that has that little something extra dressy in its composition.

Two such dresses are here described. The styles are particularly pretty and wearable — simple lines, tailored lapels, becoming necklines—all the best-liked details in dresses made in afternoon fabrics.

One frock in sheer black crepe has a slip-top under its bodice of shirred and pleated net. You'll love it with a small pillbox or little sailor hat enveloped in black net. The other dress is made entirely of rows and rows of Val lace and linen embroidered net. There is a backing of cotton which provides firmness, and the model sketched is powder blue. A large navy hat with flowers matching your lapel flowers is our suggestion for something very smart and flattering.

Of course, these frocks in afternoon fabrics are shown in many spring colors, but the sheers with net trimmings are smartest of all in all black, with flower corsages for color accent. Embroidered linens and cottons, however, are practical and very smart in the string beige and tan shades.

LET ME SUGGEST

Josephine Walter

WHOEVER originally made the famous remark that "Travel is so broadening" may not have been a master of expression but he at least appreciated the fact that different scenes and strange environments do open the eyes and mind to unknown and unsuspected beauties. Yes, dear readers, I am still harping on my trip to South Carolina and Virginia and mulling over in my own mind many of the interesting and unusual things I saw. So I am going to tell you about some of the things that stand out—some trivial and some important but all, I think, things with some point of interest to homemakers.

But before I go further I want to mention one little item that would probably come under the head of "husband training" rather than interior decoration. It is intended as a helpful hint to those wives who might be taking some such trip at some time and would like to pause, occasionally, when they see an intriguing "Antiques" sign hanging up at the side of the road or on a little log cabin by the wayside. By all means get the male member of the party interested in some type of collecting even if it's pictures of Gen. Lee or colonial fire buckets with no possible place in the house to put them. You have no idea the antique shops I have gotten into, even as much as 10 miles off the road, by suggesting that the master might find an Early American whisky bottle to add to his collection.

—o-o—

Most people, I'm sure, would feel that anything in the late Mr. Vanderbilt's house, Biltmore, couldn't possibly provide any decorative notes for their own modest little home, and yet even a cat can look at a King and anyone could not only look at, but duplicate the color scheme of the hall in this house. It was really very stunning, the walls being painted a deep Pompeiian red as a background for some very rare bas reliefs. Now, of course, the decoration would be way beyond the reach of most of us, but even a small hall, painted this deep red tone and decorated either with a series of pictures of Greek figures or a wall paper border with some architectural interest would be unusual and attractive.

—o-o—

● WE THINK our houses are perfection when it comes to mechanical equipment, but from some of the gadgets I saw, our early forebears had an idea or two on this subject themselves. We have always been taught of their industry and "early to rise" qualities, but from one little item I saw, at least some of them appreciated the joys of sleeping late. One house had the bedrooms equipped with a long cord reaching from the bed to the bolt on the door so that when the servant knocked discreetly to come in and light the fires, a lazy-head had merely to reach up, pull the cord and unlatch the door, turn over on the other side and go back to sleep.

—o-o—

Another gadget I saw might not be approved by modern psychologists, but it would get a vote from many a harrassed mother. It was a cradle, equipped with a wind-up device whereby the baby was gently rocked to and fro without benefit of human hands. And anyone who doesn't think that cradle has it all over our modern stream-lined affairs has never heard the dulcet tones of a baby's wail at 5 in the morning.

—o-o—

● AT KENMORE, which was the home of George Washington's sister in Fredericksburg, and incidentally one of the most beautiful houses I have ever seen, there was a framed piece of quilting for a bedspread which gave me some insight into the generous and co-operative spirit of our "foremothers." The inscription accompanying the quilt stated that it was the work of the three wives of Capt. Thomas Hamond of Charles Town. It was begun in 1792 by Mary Lewis Tapscott, continued by the second wife, Mildred Gregory Washington between 1797 and 1801 and finished by the third wife, Nancy Newton Collins, in 1835. It's consoling to know that Capt. Hamond finally got his quilt, even if he had to wait 43 years and wear out three wives in the attempt.

BY SEEING the home that Washington spent much time in and where both his mother and sister lived, gives one as much insight into his background and environment as could the reading of many histories. His sister must have had many theories on child rearing, just as the modern mother does today for one room in her house was furnished completely for the comfort of the little ones, even to a miniature four-poster bed. But to insure the children not being softened by such luxuries, she hung a series of prints on the wall telling in grim detail the story of the prodigal son. But Mamma Washington saw to it that she had gay little bows on the swag valances of her lavendery toile curtains.

Personally, of all the houses I saw, the Carter house at Yorktown seemed to me most beautiful of all. I haven't the space now to describe it but the old kitchen, furnished with early American pieces, would suit most of us today as a place in which to live.

For the Girl who eats alone!

By SHEILA HIBBEN
NOTED AUTHORITY ON FINE FOODS

A DINNER DECENTLY ARRANGED IN A TRAY . . . A SWELL POWDERED NOSE . . . ROUGE AND THE RIGHT LIPSTICK ARE BIG HELPS.

I HAVE noticed that practically all printings on food are directed to mothers of families, or to wives, the assumption being, I suppose, that a woman hasn't any food problems unless she has children and a husband to cater for. No food experts ever seem to care how the girl who lives by herself is fed, or even to notice whether she is fed at all.

Maybe it's that the food writers assume that the girl on her own is so well provided with beaux who take her out to dinner that cooking presents no problem to her, and that all she has got to worry about is an occasional egg for breakfast, or maybe once in a while a cup of tea. This lack of interest in the eating habits of the Live Aloner is all the stranger since so many reams and reams of copy are turned out about what she wears—how she can make her own dresses, trim her own hats, knit her own cardigans—all explained to her down to the last stitch or purl. Nobody, though (or at least nobody in print) seems to take the trouble to give her a little instruction about what she cooks and eats.

Well, if the girl on her own could speak up, she would tell the food writers (what they ought to know already) that movie dates with her young man are a lot more frequent than invitations from him to dinner, and that often as not she is driven to the drug store for supper because, being busy at the office all day, there has been no time to plan a meal, and, moreover, that she never gets any suggestions about catering for one in family.

As a matter of fact, meal-planning for one is much more of a job than making menus for six—and this in spite of what mothers will tell you. It is the problem of left-overs that is so appalling to the all-alone cook-business-girl, and indeed she might well think twice before complicating her life by taking on a leg of lamb or a roast of beef, unless she has the sort of passion for either of these meats that will survive a solid week of them, which of course she hasn't. Nobody has. Even a chicken can present difficulties if the girl hates dark meat, or doesn't like white meat; and buying a whole shad seems like signing up for a future that is nothing but shad dinners all the way to eternity.

What this girl needs to know about is a little thin slice of veal pounded into a scallopine, and to learn what to do with a couple of lamb's kidneys, or with one sweetbread; and to remember that a guest can do wonders towards disposing of a chicken; and that salmon can be bought by the slice, and flounder by the fillet, and that if there is any asparagus left over from tonight's bunch, it can be made into a fine soup or a finer omelet tomorrow.

Just two more tips to the girl alone. Let her get her butcher, or fish dealer in the habit of delivering, so that she won't have to shop dead tired on her way home from the office. If possible have the deliveries arrive before she leaves in the morning—lots of dishes can be half prepared while waiting for the breakfast coffee to perc.

The other word of wisdom I would impart to the girl who lives alone, is to dine by herself with a certain amount of elegance. A dinner decently arranged on a tray, and eaten in the living room, seated in a comfortable chair, and a swell powdered nose, and the right lipstick does a great deal to make that meal enjoyable.

GRILL EN BROCHETTE

One loin lamb chop.
Two chicken livers.
Two mushrooms.
One and one-half tablespoons melted butter.
One-half teaspoon finely chopped chives.
One-half teaspoon finely-chopped parsley.
Tabasco.
Salt and pepper.

First buy a clump of chives, plant it in a pot, and keep it on the window sill; snip off an inch or so as you need it for seasoning. It will last all through the spring, and you will find it a rare investment.

When buying the chop, choose a thick loin, and have the butcher take out the bone, cut off the tail, and cut the tender part into three pieces—the tenderloin will form one morsel, and the meat on the other side of the bone should be cut into two other pieces. Rub with salt and pepper and brown along with the chicken livers and peeled whole mushrooms (also rubbed with salt and pepper) in a little butter. When well browned, skewer all onto a butcher's long skewer (he will make you a present of as many skewers as you need) arranging a mushroom on each end, and alternating the livers with the pieces of lamb. Let the finely-chopped chives and parsley stand in the melted butter for five minutes, add tabasco and a few grains of salt, and pour over the skewered meat, which has been placed on a hot plate. If you serve with this dish a salad made of a sliced tomato, and follow it with a dessert bought at a good bakery, you will have an extremely good dinner with very little trouble.

MINCED SCALLOPS (for 1)

One-quarter pound scallops.
One teaspoon lemon juice.
One tablespoon shortening.
One slice onion (chopped).
One slice green pepper (chopped).
Three mushrooms.
Two teaspoons flour.
One-third cup canned tomatoes.
One-quarter teaspoon chopped parsley.
Breadcrumbs.
Melted butter.
Salt and pepper.

Rinse scallops in cold water, and drop them into two cupfuls of boiling water to which have been added one-half teaspoonful salt and lemon juice. Let boil until edges begin to split (about one minute). Drain, reserving one-fourth teaspoonful of the water in which the scallops have been cooked. Melt one tablespoonful of shortening in a saucepan, add chopped onion and green pepper, and the mushrooms which have been peeled and sliced. Saute over a low fire until the vegetables are tender, then add flour, and when well blended, pour in one-fourth cup of the water in which scallops have been cooked, finely-chopped tomatoes, and parsley, and season with salt and pepper. Let cook slowly for five minutes. Add scallops cut in small pieces, and turn mixture into an extra-sized ramekin, or into a scallop shell. Sprinkle with breadcrumbs, moisten with melted butter, and brown in a hot oven (400 degrees F.). Serve with rice. In buying the mushrooms, buy one-fourth pound, and use the remainder next day for a mushroom omelet, or make into a cup of mushroom soup.

Rector Writes Of 50-Year-Old Cooking Recipe

Tells How Minced Clams on Toast Was Served by His Father.

By George Rector

THE other day a letter came which brought up pleasant memories. I got quite a kick reading it, so I thought it would be a good idea to let my readers in on it, too.

"Dear Sir: In the middle of the '80s I often had minced clams on toast at Charles Rector's, where I was greeted with his smiles, though we never met. About two years ago I found the dish on the menu at a hotel and felt glad at the prospect of having this dish again. It came. The clams were minced and the bread was toasted and that was all. The brown sauce of Rector's was missing. If this dish is in a book by you, please let me know and I shall order a copy.

Yours very truly,
"J. J. Kerrigan, M. D.
"Michigan City, Ind."

Dear Doctor: Now let's see—the middle '80s—my goodness, that goes back a little over half a century and that's a long time to remember a certain dish that you enjoyed in my father's restaurant! The recipe which I am going to give you is before me now. It appeared in a little booklet with ever so many of my father's specialties. This little booklet was published just about 50 years ago and was given to our patrons as a souvenir. The recipe goes like this:

"Open two dozen little neck clams and chop tolerably fine, using care to save all the liquor. Put into a pan with half an ounce of butter and season with red pepper and Worcestershire sauce. Stew for a few minutes and thicken with cream sauce. Serve on toast."

This recipe is too brief, and I think it best to explain it more clearly. The clam juice or liquor should be used right down to the last drop. While the clams are cooking, put a cover on the pan. The cream sauce is rich, it is made with cream and not milk. A little more than a cupful of cream sauce is sufficient. The sauce should be the right consistency, not too thick or too thin. A tablespoon of Worcestershire and the clam juice mixed in with the cream will produce a sort of brownish sauce. The toast is freshly made and that's always important.

And there you are, Doctor. I've not only tried to describe this delicacy "blow by blow," but have just finished cooking and eating minced clams on toast myself. It's a swell dish. I hope we will both be enjoying the clams 50 years from now.

—o-o—

IN this little Rector booklet is a recipe for oysters en brochette that sounds awfully good. Here it is:

"String six oysters on each metal skewer, using four skewers, and between each two oysters place a slice of bacon cut in edible size pieces. Place the oysters in a shallow buttered pan under the broiler flame or in the oven. Pour a little melted butter over the oysters and while they are cooking, do a little basting. Season lightly with pepper. When the edges of the oysters curl up, you will know they are cooked. Do not wait for the bacon to become crisp, because the oysters will be overcooked."

A sauce goes with this dish and is made with the oyster liquor as the base. Put the oyster liquor in a pan with a teaspoon of very finely chopped onions, one tablespoon of butter and one teaspoon of finely chopped parsley. Season the sauce with one teaspoon of Harvey's sauce. When the onions are cooked, add one cup of rich cream sauce and mix well. When the oysters are served pour this sauce over them.

Perhaps right here, I had better tell you about that rich cream sauce. It is made by first melting one tablespoon of butter to which is added one tablespoon of flour. Stir well. Add one cup of tepid cream and cook over low heat, stirring all the time. The sauce will thicken and when it is the proper consistency, let it come once to a boil. There should be no lumps in the sauce because of the constant stirring. Season all white sauces with cayenne pepper and, of course, salt.

Here's another way to prepare a very tasty crabmeat dish: After picking over a pound of crabmeat to remove those little bones or bits of shell, heat one cup of cream sauce, but if the cream sauce is too thick, thin it with a little milk or cream. Dissolve one tablespoon of curry powder with a little milk and stir it thoroughly in the cream sauce. Then add the crabmeat, mixing it gently, so as not to break the crab flakes. Now transfer the crabmeat to a flat au gratin dish or a shallow heat-proof platter. Build the crabmeat to about an inch thick, then sprinkle the top with freshly grated Parmesan or Swiss cheese. Dot with butter and place under broiler until it takes on a nice golden brown.

—o-o—

NOW, I might add right here that if fresh crabmeat is not obtainable, don't let that deny you this dish because canned crabmeat can be used with particularly the same results. What I want to sell you is the idea of using curry powder for flavoring certain dishes.

I have already given you in this column a standard recipe for French dressing; now comes one for mayonnaise:

Four egg yolks.
Three cups olive oil.
Three-fourths cup vinegar.
One teaspoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon cayenne pepper.
One teaspoon dry mustard.

Put into a fairly large chilled bowl four egg yolks, add the seasonings and mix well. Now the rest of the procedure is one of mixing, beating and more mixing, by first adding slowly a little oil, then a little vinegar and so on until the oil and vinegar are all used.

Did you ever try horseradish in mayonnaise? It's wonderful. Just add one tablespoon of freshly grated horseradish to one-half cup of mayonnaise. Mix well and then fold in one-half cup of whipped cream. This goes well with a meat salad.

Mayonnaise Figaro is another delicious combination. All you have to do is chop finely one tablespoon of chives and add them to one-half cup of mayonnaise, along with two tablespoons of tomato sauce, and mix well.

English Sauce For Cold Cuts

SIMPSON'S, that famous restaurant on the Strand in London, serves with cold cuts or game a sauce that I will never forget. The chef's name was Wille, a big, fine-looking Englishman, who prepared the sauce before me out in the kitchen. Here are the ingredients. It is called Cumberland sauce:

Three tablespoons red currant jelly.
Three tablespoons port wine.
Two tablespoons orange juice.
One tablespoon lemon juice.
One teaspoon mixed English mustard.
One teaspoon paprika.
One-half teaspoon ground ginger.
Three tablespoons orange rind (finely shredded).

Melt the jelly over a slow fire until liquid and let it cool. Now add the port wine, orange juice, lemon juice, mustard, paprika, ground ginger and the orange rind. Mix well. Before adding the very thinly sliced orange rind, blanch it in boiling water for a few minutes and drain. By the way, before you cut the rind, remove the white part. This sauce should be served, not exactly cold, let's say room temperature. Bring on the cold cuts, James! G. R.

Creamed Oyster Loaf

One loaf bread.
One-fourth cup butter.
One can (six ounces) shrimp.
One and one-half dozen oysters.
One and one-fourth cups heavy cream.
One and one-fourth cups milk.
One-eighth teaspoon curry.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon paprika.
Two tablespoons flour.
Four hard-cooked eggs.

Remove crusts from top and sides of bread. Cut in 12 sections almost through to lower crust, making one cut lengthwise down center. Spread with butter and toast in moderate oven (325 degrees F.) until golden brown. Clean and dice shrimp. Pick over oysters, discarding bits of shell. Heat cream, milk and seasonings with shrimp for 15 minutes. Mix flour to a smooth paste with a little cold milk and add to milk and simmer five minutes longer, or until slightly thickened. Add oysters and chopped eggs. Remove from heat, let stand covered five minutes, then pour over toasted loaf. Approximate yield, six portions.

Mental State May Bring on Skin Disorder

Physician Says Emotions Play Great Part in Skin Diseases and Changes.

By
Logan Clendening, M. D.

SKIN diseases are so evident and real that it seems impossible that the mental state could have anything to do with them, and yet emotions play a great part in skin diseases and also skin changes.

The psyche, through the influence of the sympathetic nervous system, produces such common phenomena as blushing, pallor and sweating and it is possible, therefor, that it could actually produce a skin disease.

Many cases of hives are reported as due to mental influences. Kaposi, the great Vienna skin specialist, had as a patient, an emotional author who broke out with red wheals on the skin whenever he saw a lobster painted on canvas. Just how often he experienced the sensation of seeing a lobster painted on canvas I do not know, but if he didn't see any more than I do, he didn't have wheals very often.

—o-o—

ANOTHER SUCH INSTANCE is that of a girl who had hives after eating oysters, and who ever afterwards had an attack of hives whenever she saw anyone else eating oysters.

A famous dermatologist, named Kriebach, had a patient over whom he exercised magical control. He would say, "Tomorrow you will have a red spot on the calf of your right leg," and tomorrow the complaisant patient would have it.

Fear brings on skin diseases in some cases. A storekeeper, following a hold-up and a beating, developed a generalized eruption and itching all over the body. He was cured when he went to the hospital, but as soon as he returned to the store—that is to say, the scene of the crime, the eruption returned. He was only cured when he sold his business and opened a store in a different place.

—o-o—

A 21-YEAR-OLD GIRL was struck by a horse's hoof on the forehead and a skin eruption developed there which persisted long after there was any reason to suppose it was due to the injury. It was finally healed by psychotherapy.

People have learned to do strange things with their skin. For instance, they can learn to sweat in localized places. I have heard of a man who could sweat on the tip of his nose and no place else, at will.

The question of whether hair turns white in a single night has never been thoroughly settled, but there is a record, well attested, of a Bengal soldier whose hair turned white in half an hour when he was captured in battle and tied at the mouth of a cannon with the expectation of being blown to pieces.

Features of General Interest

ON THE FLICKER FRONT

By H. H. Niemeyer

HOLLYWOOD, April 23.

IT was just the other day we believe that we were telling you about the income tax troubles of some of the big picture stars. Even if they got away with all the exemptions they claim the cinema folk would still have plenty to pay. And while the successful stars have plenty of things to worry about, starvation is not one of them. Income tax or no income tax they have all been busy, in late years, providing umbrellas and galoshes against the rainy day which they know from the experience of others is inevitable in their business.

If they were all out of jobs tomorrow only a few of them would face immediate hardship. Still fewer would squander their savings and trust to State or Government relief to protect their old age. If their accumulated savings would not keep them in the "state to which they have become accustomed" most of them would quickly and wisely become accustomed to a slightly less expensive state—and be thankful that they have profited from the unhappy example set by the previous generation of stars.

Most of today's favorites of the screen have accumulated a fairly substantial backlog of savings, insurance and annuities, Government and other bonds, and that, barring a complete breakdown of our financial system, most of them could live well if not happily in that enforced leisure.

—o-o—

Hollywood is full of stories, sad stories and true ones, of stars who spent as fast as they earned. A few, such as Mary Pickford, Charles Chaplin and Douglas Fairbanks, managed to build fortunes large enough to resist the inroads of expenses once screen income stopped, but those who did this can be named on the 10 fingers of two hands. Hundreds of others who were once almost equally widely known and at least half as prosperous, can be located now only through the roles of the Motion Picture Relief Fund or other charitable agencies.

—o-o—

● PLAYERS STILL have yachts and jewels, homes and big motor cars, but the atmosphere of studied extravagance has gone from Hollywood. When James Cagney or Dick Powell bought their yachts, they bought comparatively small boats and they bought them at bargain prices. And they waited until the income from their savings, if they were to stop work tomorrow, would be sufficient to keep them going—at least long enough to sell the yacht.

—o-o—

WITH HER motion picture income at a definite end within two years, Bette Davis would probably be able to plan ahead so that by the end of that time she would be able to face the future without too many misgivings. Bette's salary is invested in annuities and bonds. When she came back from England two years ago after her long legal battle with Warners there—a battle which she lost—she was, according to her own statement, "broke." Her $18,000 in savings were gone.

Now she is building up her reserves again and with salary increases is probably able to save at least $30,000 a year. A few more years of this and Miss Davis can snap her fingers at the wolf that used to gnaw them in New York and count on an income of not less than $300 each month from her investments—even at the current low rates of interest.

—o-o—

Friends of the secretive Kay Francis believe that she must have saved at least a half a million dollars in the past seven years—and having saved it, she is not one to spend it recklessly. She has built herself a new home, larger than the rented ones she has lived in so long, but still not a pink marble palace as her predecessors in the big money used to buy. Her income from high grade securities and the insurance she has bought, should bring her some $20,000 income each year. This is less than one-tenth of the amount she makes in picture work at the moment but probably as much as she usually spends each year.

● DICK POWELL started his systematic saving in St. Louis several years before he came to Hollywood for pictures. He believes in buying insurance and to this he adds a small selection of high-grade real estate. He owns a farm or two in Arkansas and a homesite in Beverly Hills and he has never "put away" less than half of his salary since it went over $100 each week. Dick is careful and he has taught Joan Blondell, his wife, to be careful. Together they should have two or three hundred thousand dollars in capital at the end of their present contracts and though their earning power is still great, they could live, and quite comfortably, on the income from those investments.

If James Cagney hasn't saved between $300,000 and $400,000 during his eight or nine years in Hollywood, he is a much worse bookkeeper than his friends think he is. Much of this is invested in annuities and bonds, some of it in Eastern real estate and he would probably be able to get along on the $1000 or $1200 per month that his investments would yield if he suddenly stopped work and drew no more salary.

SPRING CLEANING FOR BEAUTY

● This Is Time of Year to Put Physical House in Order; Shake Off the Last Traces of Winter Lethargy.

By ALICE WADE ROBINSON
NOTED BEAUTY NEWS AUTHORITY

DROP WINTER BEHIND YOU; KNOW THAT SPRING'S ARRIVED.

NOW in many parts of the country it's sulphur-and-molasses time. Don't you remember from your childhood the bitter-sweet, yellow and black mixture you had to take every spring? It was supposed to give you curly hair, red cheeks and sparkling eyes. Maybe it did. But it was a chore that ought to have given something pretty tempting as its reward.

Perhaps our elders were right, when they said it prepared us for spring. Maybe it made the blood flow more swiftly, the sense keener. But nowadays just the smell and the taste and the feel of spring winds fresh from the hills do pretty much to quicken our love of life. We stretch unconsciously, try to yawn out of ourselves the last traces of winter's lethargy. We want to be up and doing: to clean house, to air and put away our winter clothes, to get out our print frocks and to be young again.

It's spring that does it—that sweet time when, they say, "a young man's fancy" gives him more courage than ever he'd dare to hope. We might as well be ready to egg on both his fancy and courage if they turn our way. So since ours is a Forum for Women Only, let's share secrets.

Not one of us likes to be out of date. Since spring's housecleaning time, let's be in on it in a beauty way. Have you a best girl or woman friend? One you can rely on perfectly to help you become more attractive. Get in touch with her today so that the two of you alone together can have the sort of constructive Truth Party that helps both.

Get paper and pencils. Let her appraise you and your good points. (It's the good ones upon which you must concentrate.) Your friend will have her session directly after yours. But you come first. This is really serious—so lose your self-consciousness. Take yourself objectively. Pretend that you are discussing Myrna Loy or Norma Shearer, anyone but yourself. Ready? All right then.

What's your best feature? Maybe it's your clear, well-cared for skin; or your glossy hair, shining, sleek from frequent shampooing and daily brushing; or your generous mouth below that merry, up-turned nose. Perhaps those delicate, shell-like ears of yours should show this year. Why hide them just because your friends do? Make the best of the features you have. That's Lesson One today—and always.

And Lesson Two is to repeat our counsel that you concentrate only on the good features or characteristics you possess. Not even your worst enemy wants to be bored by apologies for a sketchy makeup or for over-thinning your eyebrow line. Know yourself—in a beauty way. Accentuate your assets, not by stressing them conversationally, but by giving them the best possible setting. Then forget about them . . . that way lies charm.

Lesson Three is practical—and a true test of that friendship you and your best girl friend have. Let each of you show the other how good you are at makeup. You practice your skill on her, she on you. But do you do as Ginger Rogers does? Warm cleansing and foundation creams and cream rouge in the palm of your hand before applying? They give a better effect for this extra fillip. Do you apply two coats of mascara, the brush each time having been dipped into hot water? Read up on the best new makeup technique. Then try it out in these intimate sessions before springing it on the world at large.

As for Lesson Four: Features are not everything. Check up on posture, on carriage, on your voice. Possibly you walk like a queen. If you do, don't let a turned-over heel belie it. Then there's poise. You may unconsciously exercise the gift of putting the shy at ease, of calming the uneasy, of gathering in the wall flowers to the pleasures they wish for but fear. If that's your gift, give it growth through using it. It will so enrich you that, come fair days or ill, you'll never face unhappily the prospect of a brand-new spring.

Madame Arturo Toscanini wears as a necklace charm an enameled Blackamoor studded with jewels. . . . Elsa Maxwell's blue frilled organdy blouse gives a feminine touch to her classic dark blue tailored suit. . . . Dorothy Lamour clings to cucumber lotion as a year-round complexion pickup. . . . Saw Mrs. Jascha Heifetz (Florence Vidor) at luncheon at Reuben's. She drinks two glasses of water before meals. Says it stints her appetite. . . . The Seven Dwarfs cap is seen everywhere. Beauty Editor's Springtime Hints

TAKE advantage of the early sun. Give your laundered comb, brush and powder puffs a sunny fill.

—o-o—

THIS year's spring makeup takes its cue from posies and fruits.

—o-o—

BLEACH arms and hands for spring. Like this: Use one of those grainy washing toiletries. They cleanse, bleach, erase roughness. Then use hand lotion after each hand washing.

—o-o—

POSSIBLY your complexion needs more stimulation. Sometimes that hastens clarifying, helps in banishing sallowness. Try a good stimulation cream. Follow directions.

—o-o—

BEAUTY masks are springtime's best complexion fresheners. They cleanse, clarify, bleach—give you April's lift and lilt.

—o-o—

GO CYCLAMEN in makeup. It's as new as the first flower itself. Gives a rose-colored overtone. Is most complimentary with purplish pinks and blues.

—o-o—

HAVE you tried the new nails-protective wax? It helps forestall brittle nails problems. Polish stays on longer and better.

—o-o—

BATH champagne? Yes, just that. Pour in a teaspoonful of this new bathing aid in the water under the faucet's full splash. Then bathe among many-colored bubbles.

—o-o—

BATH salts in flower pots? Yes, they're topped by a beguiling spring bloom. Grow this garden on your bathroom window sill.

—o-o—

WHEN planning to wear pink, blue or pastels, think of the new Camellia Pink Complexion and nail polish ensembles. Makeup is spring's cosmetic fashion high.

Costume Ideas Deviate From The Ordinary

Short Reefers Are Considered Smartest of Wraps for Spring and Summer.

REEFER coats that end abruptly at the knees, sheer blouses worn over strapless evening gowns, black silk suits unrelieved by color and novelty jackets of sports character worn with afternoon dresses indicate that there is definite interest in costume ideas that deviate from the ordinary.

The short reefers are considered the smartest of wraps for late spring and summer. Usually made of nubby monotone tweeds in pastel shades they accompany multi-colored printed frocks. More tailored fabrics such as twill or sheer woolens are designed for wear over dark sheer dresses. In addition to providing a practical lightweight wrap these knee-length fitted coats reflect a trend that is of style importance. Suits with the same style of jacket are being considered for autumn.

Those sheer blouses which are replacing jackets in transforming formal evening gowns into ensembles suitable for informal needs look exactly like tailored suit blouses. They have the same upstanding collars, ruffled fronts and short puffed sleeves. Exquisite fabrics such as mousseline and chiffon are noted and there are pastel tints as well as white blouses in the collections. Equipped with elastic drawstrings at the waistline the evening shirtwaists have the popular bloused line and look striking over dark colored dresses.

Black silk suits are demonstrating their style leadership. Several well-dressed women have been seen wearing them on recent warm days.

A CHILD AND HIS SPEECH

By Angelo Patri

ANGELO PATRI

CHILDREN learn by imitation, and that is why mother should know that her every action becomes a lesson to the watching, listening, eager child. She is the child's first teacher, and the most important. Her power is great. What she would have the child become in manners, in conduct, in attitudes, in tastes, she must be.

The child's speech is tremendously important. By it people judge his character. They classify him according to the quality of his speech. They listen to him when his tones are pleasant to listen to. They turn from him when they are unpleasant. A child's speech is a passport to social living.

Speech, of course, is to a great degree a matter of imitation. If a mother uses correct, clear, simple speech her child will talk that way, for speech is catching. So, talk to the baby as you would to your most honored friend. Be courteous. Speak cheerfully. Speak gently. Never raise your voice. The louder you shout the deafer he will be. He hears best when you speak most gently. Use simple words. Use the right names for things. Don't teach a child to call his breakfast "Brekkie." Use the right word—breakfast.

The child will not be able to say the words accurately in the beginning. But don't correct him. Just say the right word clearly and let it go at that. Do not drill a child in right speech. That will make him afraid to talk at all. It may bring on stammering. Let the baby alone. Accept his effort; praise it; listen carefully and try to understand his first efforts at telling you something. Your listening gives him confidence, and that's what he needs most.

If the child names an animal by the sound it makes, accept that name. "Bow-wow," "Choo-choo" are baby words. They are right as far as they go. Recognize the dog and the train as the baby names them. And then say to him: "What does the dog say?" And then, "Who says bow-wow?" Soon the child will say "dog" when he means dog, and "train" when he means train; and that's as it ought to be.

One of the best ways to teach a baby language is to sing to him. Sing lovely lullabies. A baby hears before he understands. He hears you, feels you, and remembers even though he cannot understand. Sing lovely songs to him. Say a child's prayer over his crib. Your child will hear and remember and be helped by it. Don't omit the nursery rhymes. Say them to the baby as you bathe and dress and play with him.

Speech is the child's passport to life. Mother is the child's pattern and his first teacher.

been completed with the musicians (for the reception), the florist, the caterer, the awning agency (if there are to be canopies at the scene of the ceremony and reception)? Has some provision been made for transportation of the bride to the church and away from it with her new husband? Has someone figured out the order in which cars are to be parked at the church so that members of the wedding party can get away quickly and reach the reception before guests? Have out-of-town relatives and bridal attendants a way of getting to and from places they are expected? Has the bridegroom made it clear to his ushers exactly what they are to wear, down to the style of their socks, and the shade of gray of their gloves, if they are wearing morning coats? Their costumes must be absolutely uniform. Do they surely know the day and hour of rehearsal and that they are expected at the scene of the ceremony a good hour beforehand? Have they been given instructions about seating guests, on one side of the church or the other, depending on whether they are friends of the bride or bridegroom?

DO they know who is to be seated "in the ribbons"— i. e., in the front pews? Has the bride selected gifts for her attendants, and the bridegroom for his? If the wedding gifts are to be displayed—and it is quite proper to do so, excepting presents of checks or currency—has a plain-clothes man been engaged to guard them? Some hostesses regard the presence of such a guard as an insult to their guests, but it is a necessary precaution. A large gathering in a home, with an augmented staff of servants, offers a favorite opportunity for sneak thieves who can enter under many pretexts.

Are wedding gifts being recorded—the giver, date, description and shop—as soon as they arrive? This duty is often handled by someone other than the bride, although presents are always sent to her, even though the donor knows only the bridegroom. She alone must acknowledge their receipt with a personal note of thanks, sent, if possible, before the wedding, or as soon thereafter as she can manage. Will there be someone at the reception to check wraps, especially men's? Top hats and Chesterfields bear a striking resemblance to one another after their owners have had a glass or so of champagne. Has the bridegroom a room in which to change from wedding apparel to traveling outfit? Have men been engaged to remove furniture from living rooms of the house which are to be open for the reception?

Are the families of bride and bridegroom agreed as to what kind of notice of the nuptials is to go to the papers, not only in the city, but elsewhere, if the families are sufficiently prominent? This is a step in the plans which can be a serious stumbling block, if not foreseen. A call from a society reporter on the day of the wedding can throw a whole household into utter confusion. Has the bride made arrangements to be photographed? If she does not care about having pictures of herself with her bridegroom or of her wedding party, she can as well get this duty out of the way several days before the wedding. Photographers have even been known to go to the dressmaker's and photograph the bride when she has the final fitting of her gown.

Many small matters can be left to the best man, maid of honor, (if they are not strangers in town) and willing relatives. The best man, for instance, assumes the responsibility for getting the heavy luggage of both the bride and bridegroom to the station, dock or airport ahead of time, when they are leaving the city almost immediately. If a hotel room has been engaged ahead of time, he sometimes registers for the pair, procures the key and delivers it to the bridegroom, so that they can slip inconspicuously up a side elevator. An extra-thoughtful best man will see that flowers are arranged in the room. He can be relied on to drive the bride and bridegroom away from the reception if they prefer. His primary duty is to play nursemaid to the bridegroom, get him to the ceremony on time, properly dressed, and in as heroic a frame of mind as can be synthetically created. He is the one who delivers to the presiding clergyman the fee which the bridegroom has entrusted to him.

BARRING mishaps, a wedding for which conscientious preparations have been made, should go off without a slip. To insure smoothness in the actual ceremony, however, a rehearsal a day or two ahead of time is indispensable. The minister and organist (or musicions) should be present at this rehearsal. Every member of the bridal party should attend, and the fewer kibitzers the better.

Since the clergyman undoubtedly has been through a great many more wedding services than anyone else present, he should be regarded as authority on most points in the procedure; where etiquette permits a choice, however, it should lie with the bride. She and her bridegroom must have decided before they get to the rehearsal what marriage service they want used; they differ with different denominations.

If the bride is modern enough to flout the tradition that taking part herself will bring bad luck, she will practice walking down the aisle with her father in time to the difficult Lohengrin march. Ushers and bridesmaids as well must practice the march, deciding what distance apart they will keep. At the actual wedding when it is almost time for the ceremony to begin, the bridegrooms' mother proceeds down the aisle on the arm of the head usher, followed by the bridegroom's father, walking alone. They sit in the first pew to the right of the main aisle. The head usher then returns to the foyer of the church, and escorts the bride's mother to the first pew on the left of the aisle, where she leaves a place for her husband. After the two mothers have been seated, no guests are permitted to come down the main aisle. The order of the bridal procession is as follows: Ushers, two by two; bridesmaids in pairs if the bride so chooses, otherwise singly; maid or matron of honor; flower girls or ring bearers; then, at a double distance, the bride on the arm of her father. Emily Post states that she is on his right arm. Many disagree with this dictum, citing the ancient necessity for a man always to keep his right hand free to wield a weapon in protection of his lady, who was always on his left. Since there is dissension on this delicate point, brides may do as they please.

It is up to the maid of honor to relieve the bride of her bouquet when her hands must be free; to throw back or remove entirely the bride's face veil if she wears one, and to straighten her train as she turns away from the minister on the arm of her husband. Incidentally, the bride and bridegroom should decide beforehand whether they will or will not kiss at the conclusion of the ceremony. Bridegrooms have been known to go about this without any forewarning and without waiting for the modesty veil to be removed, to the entertainment of guests and embarrassment of the bride.

Opera Tryouts Next Week At the American Theater

Machinery of Production to Start Moving With Auditions in Which 92 Singers and Dancers Are Picked—Record Turnout Expected.

SELECTION of 92 singers and dancers for the Municipal Opera chorus at the beginning of next week will mark the beginning of production for the twentieth anniversary season, since rehearsals follow immediately afterward. The tryouts will take place at the American Theater on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 2, 3 and 4, beginning at 10 a. m. each day.

Singers will be heard the first day, singers and dancers will receive auditions on the second day and the final eliminations will take place the third day. Richard Berger, productions manager of Municipal Opera, will be in charge, assisted by his production staff, including Zeke Colvan, general stage director; George Hirst, musical director; Theodor Adolphus, ballet master, and Al White Jr., dance director.

Only residents of St. Louis and its vicinity are eligible, since it is a primary aim of the opera to keep the chorus a strictly local feature. Singers are judged on voice quality, stage presence, general appearance and ability. Dancers are asked to demonstrate their versatility in different forms of ensemble work, including tap dancing and ballet. No formal enrollment is required in advance of the tryouts, but from the number of requests for information received, a larger turnout than ever before is indicated. The average number of those who seek places each year is between 1000 and 1200.

Th first production, which begins a 10-day run on June 3 is "Gentlemen Unafraid," new operetta by Jerome Kern, Oscar Hammerstein II and Otto Harbach. Ballet Master Adolphus is in Hollywood this week conferring with Kern about the type of ballet numbers to be usd in the show. Kern, Hammerstein and Harbach all will come to St. Louis several weeks in advance of the premiere, to aid in production, as will the staff for Max Gordon, Broadway producer who is interested in staging the show in the big Center Theater in New York next fall. Representatives of the Center Theater will be here.

With dates for all 12 shows of the season announced, the production of the final week is still missing from the lineup. Following "Gentlemen Unafraid" in order are "Of Thee I Sing," "White Horse Inn," "Roberta," "Virginia," "Lost Waltz," "Chimes of Normandy," "Rosalie," "Knights of Song," "Gingerbread Man" and "Show Boat." Except for "Gentlemen Unafraid," all productions run only a week each.

Re-engagement of Chester Herman and Phil Farley as stage manager for their fifth and fourth seasons in the park, respectively, was announced during last week.

Bassage to Help Direct Summer Theater in Maine

HAROLD BASSAGE, director of the Little Theater of St. Louis, and Gordon Carter, its scenic director, have been retained for the coming season by the Little Theater board. Both will spend the summer directing groups of players.

Bassage will go to Surry, Me., for three months to have charge of the Surry Players, along with Samuel Rosen. The Surry Players, organized five years ago, are a permanent company of professional actors operating in a manner similar to that of the Group Theater of New York. They conduct an intensive rehearsal period for several months preceding the production of a group of plays. In August of this year they will present George Farquhar's "The Recruiting Officer," Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler," Molnar's "Liliom" and "Ned McCobb's Daughter," by Sidney Howard. One play will be taken later to Broadway.

Carter gave up a trip abroad to help organize and direct the Civic Theater of St. Louis. The Civic Theater also will do four plays this summer—Jean Ferguson Black's comedy, "Penny Wise," in June; Ben Hecht's "To Quito and Back" and Ben Johnson's "Volpone" in July, and Lynn Riggs' "Russet Mantle" in August. A site for the outdoor theater, to be located somewhere in St. Louis County, has not been settled on.

Mummers to Revive "The Man on Stilts"

TURNING to broad comedy for he last play of their current season, the Mummers of St. Louis will present a new version of Edwin and Albert Barker's satire, "The Man on Stilts," on Thursday, May 12, and Saturday, May 14, at the Wednesday Club auditorium.

Originally produced in New York by Arthur Hopkins, the play points a satiric finger at the synthetic stuff of which our overnight heroes are made. A credulous farm youth drives a steam-roller across the continent at the behest of a pompous politician who figures a "better roads" plan might bolster the dubious platform with which he hopes to secure the nomination in a coming presidential race.

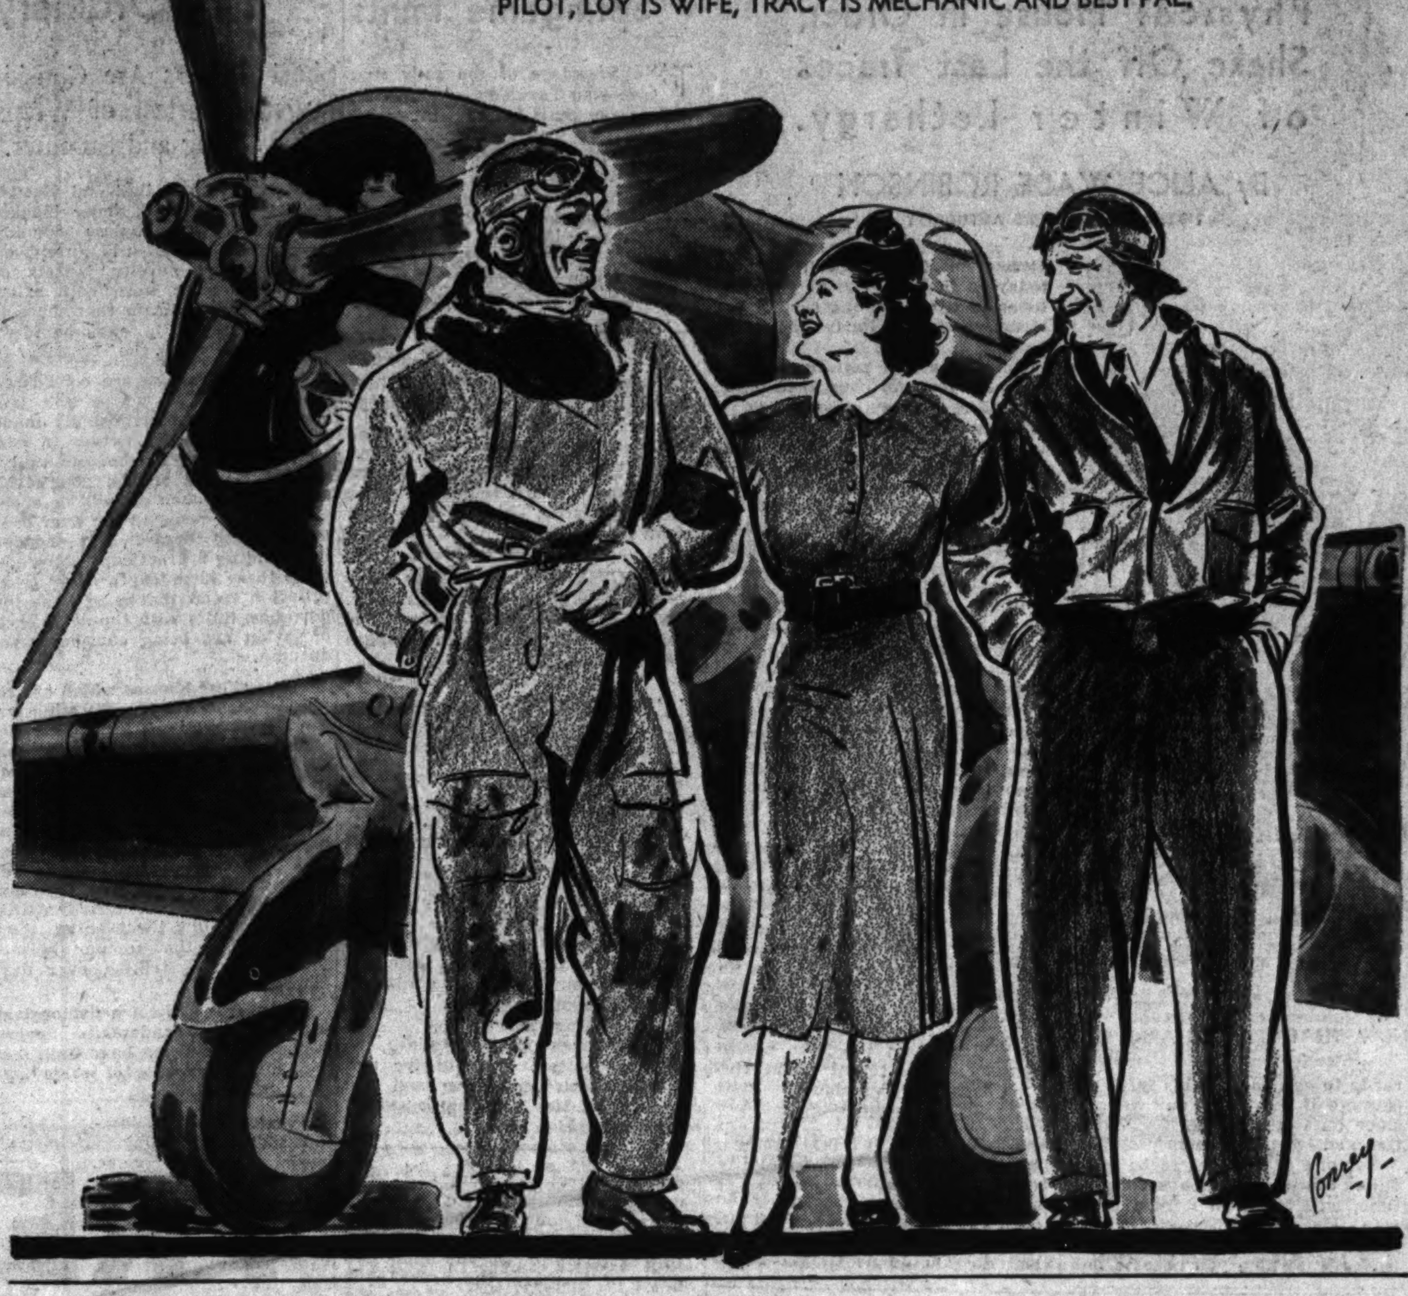
The unsuspecting youth finds himself an instantaneous hero and, in the rapidly-paced scenes which follow the authors make successive jibes at national affairs, mob psychology, radio, theater, screen, candid camera, paid endorsements and the faded heroes who were yesterday's front-page news.

The large cast is headed by Warren Metzinger as Godfrey and Frank Novotny as the Senator. Other important parts are played by Jane Garrett, Jean Fischer, Fred Birkicht, Mae Novotny, Alexander Evans and Bobbie Schwarz.

Studio to Produce Five Spectacular Films

Success of "Wells Fargo" and "The Buccaneer" has led Paramount production executives to believe that the spectacular type of picture will be in vogue for the coming season. The studio accordingly is preparing "Men With Wings," a history of the aviation industry; "Union Pacific," dealing with the building of that railroad; "If I Were King," swashbuckling love story with Ronald Colman in the lead; "Knights of the Round Table," depicting the life of King Arthur's Court and "The Texans," panoramic history of the Lone Star State, for late summer and fall release.

THE STAR TRIO FROM "TEST PILOT," AT LOEW'S, COMPOSED OF CLARK GABLE, MYRNA LOY AND SPENCER TRACY, IS AS FRIENDLY AS HERE INDICATED. GABLE IS PILOT, LOY IS WIFE, TRACY IS MECHANIC AND BEST PAL.



Air Thrills, Plus Drama, at Loew's

By Colvin McPherson

WHEN "Test Pilot" was announced for production and Clark Gable, Myrna Loy and Spencer Tracy were chosen as its stars, the long-patient movie audience may have thought that this was just another case of the studio mixing up a box-office recipe. Certainly no one expected the whizzing success that came of the project.

The picture at Loew's is more than just the appearance of several popular stars, more than just a story of the dangers to those men who try the wings and oiling systems of new aircraft. Somewhere along the assembly line, it has picked up gripping, human drama. It is, so far, one of the three or four best pictures of 1938.

Friends of Gable, Loy, Tracy and Lionel Barrymore will be rewarded by exceptional performances of their favorites. Aviators will see some hope for the movies in the screen play's good sense and fidelity to detail. Cameramen, amateur and professional, will envy the new approach to aerial photography. For the mass audience, there is the breathless excitement of the stunt flying, the great vibration and roar of the sound track, the hearty laughter, the moments of emotional stir.

Careful to point out that the work of the test pilot is only an "experimental phase of flying" and bears only a laboratory relation to safe airplane transportation, the story is taken out of thin air by Lieutenant-Commander Frank A. Wead, author of "Hell Divers," "Ceiling Zero" and "Submarine D-1." It is instructive as well as dramatic.

The human problem itself is a different one, since it is not merely intended to thrill. It is a problem of man's attempts to master the terrific speeds, strains and altitudes for which Nature did not construct him. The odds are against the hero of the drama and the screen play doesn't gloss the matter over at all. Both Gable and Tracy, who are pilot and mechanic, expect to be killed sooner or later.

So when Gable makes a forced landing on a Kansas farm, meets Myrna Loy and marries her, it is not the usual procedure through love, estrangement and love again but the question that faces every test pilot's wife, how long she can stand the emotional wear and tear that goes with his occupation. This one point is pressed so relentlessly that the thrills of "Test Pilot" are just about as much as the average individual can take, comfortably.

Myrna trails around with Clark to the Cleveland air races and elsewhere and when he goes on a five-day binge and squanders his prize money, she is ready to quit for good. But she can't. She and Tracy, Gable's worshiper, also, are in the same boat. They have to stick to the finish.

Tracy is finished first himself, in the crash of an army bomber which is realism perfected. The Academy prize actor's performance is designed to get him as much sympathy as possible, which it does. He is excellent, especially in one speech to Miss Loy at Cleveland. In fact, his death seems to be anticlimax after that speech and after a pitiful scene affecting another aviator at the races.

Here, perhaps, the production staff went a little overboard. Tracy's extinction seems hardly necessary and can be justified logically only as punishment for throwing away his chewing-gum when he made his last flight, since on all previous occasions he stuck the wad on the side of the plane. Such superstitions, of which the movies are fond, are outworn as devices for atmosphere in this day and age.

Miss Loy, who carries the major burden of dramatics all along, has the necessary individuality to be convincing. She is not the gay Mrs. Nick Charles this time but a university-educated farm girl who marries a member of a death battalion. Rooting for a Wichita team at a ball game, quarreling with Gable on her own front porch or telling him goodby before his flights, her sincerity is perfect. Her crying scenes are not up to that standard.

Lionel Barrymore, Gregory Gaye and Gloria Holden, who once played Mme. Zola and is now an aviator's widow at Cleveland, all do brilliant work. And while performances are being neglected, Gable should not be neglected. Big Ears himself is superbly accurate as the type of man who does not understand himself or what he means to others.

Credit actors if you will, praise Director Victor Fleming or Author Wead, cut all the compliments in half, "Test Pilot" is still an outstanding accomplishment.

The picture runs two hours, which may be 20 minutes too much, and Loew's plays it single-bill. Of several short subjects, Pete Smith's kitchen adventure, "Penny's Party," is most delightful.

Jezebel.

THERE can be no doubt that Bette Davis has a wide range of ability, after her performance in "Jezebel" at the Fox. She can play anything she wants to and play it well. As a little snip in the New Orleans of 1852, she has an unfailing Southern accent and manner. She understands the character of a heartless coquette who will set her suitors to duelling without a qualm. And when she reforms, she reforms in grand style.

Yet as for myself, I cannot be sure that she is well-cast in this instance. There is too much memory lingering of her vivid performances in "Of Human Bondage," "Marked Woman" and the like. Her wickedness has been so definite in the past that even to see her dressed primly is something of a shock.

"Jezebel," which is no steal on "Gone With the Wind" but a self-respecting play written by Owen Davis some years ago, has a graphic quality of its own by dealing with a yellow fever epidemic in gay New Orleans. It will take a little of the edge off the forthcoming "Yellow Jack" as well as "Gone With the Wind," if that much-exploited character study is ever filmed.

The picture at the Fox also has the advantage of the producing and directing genius of William Wyler, who brought forth "These Three," "Dodsworth" and "Dead End." In production value, it can stand with those other works.

All acting is of high grade. Fay Bainter's performance in support of Miss Davis is easily the most distinguished aid given this year. George Brent, even if Irish by birth, is a true Southern blade and Henry Fonda makes as sturdy a stand as ever. Only fictional quality to the film is in its detriment.

On the orchestra platform at the Fox this week is the breeziest stage show at the theater of the current season. Benny Davis, composer of a score of song hits, introduces a group of genuinely talented youngsters and has been careful to provide variety and novelty. Rollo and Verna Pickert's dancing on stilts, Billy Blake's trumpet imitations, Don Hooton's rope tricks and Robert Baxter's baritone solos win most applause.

Battle of Broadway.

VICTOR McLAGLEN, who does most of his screen work with the aid of a rival, teams with Brian Donlevy this week at the Missouri, for a little trip to an American Legion convention and the "Battle of Broadway." Necessarily, two such gents meet up with a siren and the siren is none other than Louise Hovick, who probably always will be just Gypsy Rose Lee to the most of us.

The double-crossing between two pals goes on in the accustomed manner, funny enough, and Miss Hovick lends her own talent for comedy to it. Raymond Walburn, a capitalist, eventually wins the beauty from McLaglen and Donlevy, who are his employes, there is a big rough-house scene and everybody marches in the American Legion parade.

In "Love, Honor and Behave," some attempt is made to show how helter-skelter married life was in the days of prohibition. Husbands and wives couldn't stay together as long as a congressional majority, apparently, and the result was that today's youngsters are bewildered in love.

Wayne Morris and Priscilla Lane are the younger generation in the film, but he does nothing more than spank her and she does nothing more than sing "Bei Mir Bist Du Schoen," which translated is, "You're Okay With Me, Kid."

Danger Patrol.

THE main thriller at the St. Louis is so much like "Test Pilot" in its main elements that it serves as an example of showing how much truth there is in Hollywood's maxim that the story doesn't count, but the treatment of it. The boys who handle nitroglycerin in "Danger Patrol," live under the same psychology as those in "Test Pilot." In th3 latter part of the picture, they even double occupations by going flying with the explosive.

But never is "Danger Patrol" as tense as "Test Pilot," never does it have the humor or pathos, never does it seem to be as close to its subject.

"Bulldog Drummond's Peril" on the same program is a typical Bulldog Drummond melodrama, centering around several crimes, including the theft of a synthetic diamond.

'Of Mice and Men' Leads Off in the Awards Season

Broadway Critics' Circle Gives Steinbeck Drama Its Honors—"On Borrowed Time," 'Our Town' and Others in Line for Future.

By Mark Barron,

Drama Editor of the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 23.

AS a prelude to the blossoming of summer theaters in rural retreats, Broadway drama critics have given the theatrical season a farewell lift by the naming of prize plays and performances. There are more to come.

This week the Critics' Circle voted, after four ballots, that their award should go to John Steinbeck's dramatization of his own novel, "Of Mice and Men."

Early in May the Pulitzer Prize will be bestowed upon some American play of this season, and before that are to come, perhaps, a dozen more awards from various theatrical societies and critics.

The Critics' Circle, in naming "Of Mice and Menf' as its winner, said that the prize went to the drama for "its direct force and perception in handling a theme genuinely rooted in American life; for its bite into the strict quality of its material; for its refusal to make this study of tragical loneliness and frustration either cheap or sensational; and, finally, for its simple, intense and steadily rising effect on the stage."

"Of Mice and Men" is a forceful, intelligent story of two tramp field workers and the depressing frustration of their lives. One of them is Lennie, a huge, hulking half-wit who has only tenderness in his heart and unintentional murder in the strength of his hands which crush the life from any silken thing he tries to stroke. This is his unescapable passion.

His partner is the diminutive George, a tough little guy who has spent most of his adult years rescuing the feeble-minded Lennie from trouble. Finally the stumble-bum Lennie accidentally commits murder and the only salvation the faithful George can give him this time is to kill Lennie to save him from the fury of a lynch-mob.

This is harsh, more brittle drama than the sentimentally humorous fantasy, "On Borrowed Time," Paul Osborn's dramatization of the Lawrence Edward Watkins novel, which this reviewer nominated two weeks ago as the best play of the season.

In contrast to the friendship of Lennie and George in "Of Mice and Men," in "On Borrowed Time" is the affection of a grandfather who is about to die as his 7-year-old grandson is just beginning life. But Gramps refuses to give in to the pleading of Death, perched in an apple tree above them, until he has imparted all his wisdom to his grandson. Only the fatal injury of his grandson persuades him finally to accept his fate and surrender to Death.

Both are plays of high literary quality, but the theater, it seems to this reviewer, should equally emphasize the entertainment value of its plays. "Of Mice and Men" is continually exciting, but there are the sad, cruel, depressing moments when the half-wit Lennie is marching steadily to his doom and dragging with him the tragic George. Dramatic as they are, they are scenes that leave the audience brooding in despair.

On the other hand, while "On Borrowed Time" opens with the sad aspect of death, it progresses with sentiment and humor and faith that quickly lifts the audience from its feeling of horror of that traditionally grim spectre. Quickly it transforms that once fearful Death in to an understanding, comforting fate and does it with a sense of humor that is always delightful. Also, of the two plays, its subject matter is more original in approach and treatment.

WHAT both of these plays have in common is the extraordinarily fine performances of their respective casts which make these two odd and fantastic stories seem truly believable.

Broderick Crawford, son of Comedienne Helen Broderick, acts the half-wit Lennie in "Of Mice and Men" with a quality that makes him simple-minded like a child and not as a raving maniac. So the guardianship of tough little George is perfectly understandable.

In "On Borrowed Time" Dudley Digges performs as an all-wise man speaking his thoughts and comments to the universe, and never allows himself to become the overly-sweet, doddering grandfather that another actor might have made him.

And, looking on from his perch in the apple tree, Frank Conroy interprets the figure of Death as an all-understanding commentator who quietly and gently is pointing out to the human race its inevitable fate. Not once does he allow the character to take on a demoniacal fury that a less artful actor might have given it.

For the best play of foreign authorship the Critics' Circle chose "Shadow and Substance," the drama by the Irish schoolmaster in Scotland, Paul Vincent Carroll. This is the story which tends to show how a church dignitary can destroy the peace of a small town if he takes his churchly ceremonies more seriously than he does the earthly welfare of his parishioners.

Now Broadway awaits the awarding of the Pulitzer prize.

Besides "Of Mice and Men" and "On Borrowed Time," plays most prominently mentioned for that honor include Thornton Wilder's "Our Town," Prof. E. P. Conkle's drama about young Abraham Lincoln, "Prologue to Glory," and Clifford Odet's "Golden Boy."

Too, there is the possibility that the Pulitzer judges, as they did once before, may turn from serious plays and give the award to "I'd Rather Be Right," the musical comedy satire on the New Deal administration.

Only a few seasons ago they gave the award to "Of Thee I Sing," a parallel musical satire of the Hoover regime.

THIS has been a season for many aged plays upon Broadway and the moral left by them is that no matter the quality or reputation of a drama it can be utterly dull unless it is peopled with a cast of able and sparkling performers.

First came Shakespeare's "The Merry Wives of Windsor" (closed after four performances) and then limped in Ibsen's "The Wild Duck" (closed after three performances). The actors in both may be blamed for the brevity of their stays for certainly the worth of these plays has been proved too many times before.

Then came again, after 17 years, a revival by William A. Brady of "The Circle" and there was some apprehension on the part of the more-veteran first-nighters who had seen Mrs. Leslie Carter and John Drew brilliantly perform in this W. Somerset Maugham divorce and domestic comedy.

But where the play teetered with age at moments, there was always the life-saving grace of the splendid group of performers that Brady had assigned to the various roles. Here is a delightful example of actors and actresses responding with that necessary elan to give new life to a dramatist.

In the role of Lady Kitty Champion-Cheney, Grace George (who is, in private life, Mrs. Brady), refreshingly plays the part of an aging woman who is determined to keep her vision of passionate and romantic youth rather than to become weary and worn with the love of too many suitors. So, at an undetermined but undoubtedly far advanced age, she returns to England from the uncomfortable and unsanitary ruins of what she thought, in the beginning, would be her romantic holiday in a palace on Italian shores.

Perhaps it was lovely there and all she imagined it would be, but when she comes back to cold, factual England she discovers that her new husband is a stodgy, set-in-his-ways man who seems chiefly concerned with the fact that if he hadn't run away with another man's wife that he might have been Prime Minister. Also, she realizes that the husband she ran away from may be a cad in ways, but he has much more of a sense of humor and gay tolerance than the man for whom she quit him.

Too, there is the reality that her son (who is at an age that is embarrassing to her masquerade of youth) is losing his wife to the intense wooing of a Malay rubber planter. Lady Kitty and her dull second husband try to convince the wife of Lady Kitty's son that she shouldn't repeat the same elopement that they had committed. But their argument is futile and the circle of a child never learning from its parents' mistakes continues.

Miss George is the spark that keeps this comedy, in its revival, spinning and around her is a most worthy group of actors, including Dennis Hoey and Cecil Humphreys.

As the young wife who is about to elope with another man as her husband's mother had done, Tallulah Bankhead subdues herself in comparison to her more flamboyant parts and plays with an effect that inspired some of the critics to say that it is the best performance of her American career. Effective, too, is her husband (in real life), John Emery, as the Malay planter.

Maugham, who wrote a fine play in "The Circle," nevertheless after these 17 years should be grateful to Miss George, Miss Bankhead and the other performers for the new zest they give to his lines in this revival. Not even Shakespeare and Ibsen can always demand that in these times.

Field Test Television Broadcasting Resumed in New York—Paul Rhymer, Author of Vic and Sade, Honored by Bloomington—Linton Wells Starts on Tour of Latin-America—James Melton to Have Audition for Metropolitan Opera—Studio Gossip.

A FOUR-WEEK schedule of five hour-long television broadcasts weekly by W2XBS, the 30,000-watt RCA high definition television transmitter in the Empire State Building, New York City, began last Tuesday. The 441 lines at 30 frames a second picture signals are broadcast on a frequency of 46.5 megacycles and the accompanying sound on 48.75 meg. The W2XBS transmitter has been off the air for several months while important changes have been made in it and in program technique and devices. Live talent shows from the NBC Radio City studios are broadcast by W2XBS from 7 to 8 p. m. Tuesdays and Thursdays and test charts and still pictures from 2 to 4 p. m. Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays. Although strictly experimental, the television programs are broadcast under conditions as nearly as possible like those that would govern a regular public service.

Two new 25,000-watt transmitters for W3XAL, the NBC short wave station at Bound Brook, N. Coaching Club Members Hosts At Annual Ball

Claytonshire Event, Given at St. Louis Country Club, Is Preceded by Several Dinner Parties.

FOR the third time in as many years, members of the Claytonshire Coaching Club donned formal pink hunting coats if they were entitled to wear them (full dress if they were not), thrust white carnations in gray satin lapels and gave a ball at the St. Louis Country Club last night.

For atmosphere the club's three old coaches, familiar to New Year's Day callers who pass them on the highways and to devotees of steeplechase races at Bridlespur Hunt Club, were wheeled in and stationed at vantage points. One decorated the inclosed porch, which was surrounded by a white picket fence, another stood near the orchestra platform and the third in front of the clubhouse.

The three dining rooms were decorated with dogwood blossoms, which sprayed from walls and chandeliers. Blue birds adorned corrugated columns of light in the corners. The club emblem—red letters painted on the white background of a metal chield—was secured to the portico of a southern mansion, its pillared and illuminated facade built in the main dining room as a background for the musicians. Music racks bore pastel sketches of colonial-costumed girls.

Before the ball, scheduled to begin at 10:30 o'clock, trustees of Claytonshire, their wives and special guests dined at small tables decorated with iris and spirea and set up in the private dining room. The west wall was covered by a full-length mural depicting a garden scene. Twenty other guests, including Miss Jane Johnson, had dinner in the tap room.

Meanwhile other small dinners were given in various homes. Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Moore entertained for their daughter, Frances, a debutante of last season, and Miss Nancy Bascom gave a party for an out-of-town guest. Other hosts and hostesses were: Mr. and Mrs. David R. Calhoun, Mr. and Mrs. Henry McRee, Mr. and Mrs. Albert von Gontard, Mr. and Mrs. David D. Walker III, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene F. Williams Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Kaltenbach Jr

Breakfast, after the dancing, was to be served at dawn.

Harry Langenberg Jr. is president of the club, members of which include his brother, Oliver Langenberg, William and Joseph Drew, Arthur B. Shepley Jr., Wickham Moore, John Valle Janes, Vietor Davis, Thomas S. McPheeters Jr. and Dickson Pierce. Some of the members, John A. Holmes, comptroller-secretary of the organization; Allen T. West Jr. and Trustin B. Boyd II, were out of town.

Helen Hall Is Bride Of J. C. Hutchinson

THE home of Mrs. Frederick Bagby Hall, 4903 Pershing avenue, was decorated with white flowers and greenery for the candlelight wedding yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock of her daughter, Miss Helen Hall and John Conlin Hutchinson of Evansville, Ind. The bride's brother, Ralph C. Hall, gave her in marriage.

The Rev. Dr. Truman B. Douglass read the service before the living room mantel which was banked in white snapdragon, tulips and greenery. The bride's costume was a light blue crepe dress, tucked, with which she carried a sheaf of calla lilies. Miss Catherine Hall, her sister's only attendant, wore dusty pink designed with a V-neckline and pleated skirt. Her flowers were gladioli and delphinium.

Albert Spaulding Howe of Manhasset, L. I., was best man for his uncle and groomsmen were: Arthur Hall of New Orleans, and Leonard and Frederick B. Hall Jr., all brothers of the bride; William Bierman of Chicago, her brother-in-law, and John Gully Cole.

The wedding guests, who included the families and a few close friends, remained for an informal reception. The dining room table held white spring flowers surrounding the wedding cake. After a wedding trip to Pass Christian, Miss., and New Orleans where they will visit Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hall, they will live in Evansville.

The out-of-town guests included Mrs. Bierman, Mrs. Howe; the latter's mother, Mrs. B. T. Breckinridge, and Mr. Breckinridge, of Anchorage, Ky.

The bride, whose father was the late Dr. Frederick Bagby Hall, has made her home in Evansville the last few years. She is a graduate of Mary Institute and Smith College. Mr. Hutchinson was graduated from the University of Indiana and is a member of Beta Theta Pi. Their betrothal was announced at a tea March 6.

Several parties were given in honor of the pair after their arrival here, the bride on Wednesday and Mr. Hutchinson the next day. Thursday evening, Mrs. Paul F. Plummer, Mrs. George McCaslin, Miss Anita Hall and Miss Mary Boling gave a cocktail party at Mrs. Plummer's home, 901 South Bemiston avenue, Clayton. Friday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Hall, 300 South Gray avenue, Webster Groves, entertained at a buffet supper.

Miss Josephine Desloge Fusz And William C. Connett IV Are to Be Married in July

Engagement Announced at Cocktail Party for More Than 150 Guests Yesterday Afternoon, in Honor of Miss Augusta Connett and Charles Wesley Disbrow Jr., Who Will Wed Saturday.

MORE than 150 guests, invited to a cocktail party last evening by Miss Josephine Desloge Fusz in honor of her prospective brother-in-law and sister-in-law, learned of the hostess' engagement to William Carroll Connett IV. Miss Fusz is the youngest daughter of Eugene A. Fusz, at whose home, 6925 Delmar boulevard, the party was given. Her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Carroll Connett III, 4422 Lindell boulevard.

Guests of honor were Mr. Connett's sister, Miss Augusta Langdon Connett, and Charles Wesley Disbrow Jr., who are to be married next Saturday, and in whose wedding Miss Fusz is to be a bridesmaid, although, because of the impending engagement announcement, her name, until now, has been withheld from the bridal party.

Receiving hours were from 7 to 9 o'clock. Miss Fusz, Mr. Connett, his sister and her fiance stood in one end of the long drawing room, and as guests arrived they were introduced by the hostess to "my future sister and brother-in-law." Decorations were spring flowers, clustered in vases throughout the lower floor.

The bride-to-be is a graduate of John Burroughs School and spent a year at Trinity College, Washington, before sailing for Europe. She traveled abroad for almost six months, and was in London for the coronation last May. Last fall she was a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball, and later in the season was presented to society at a ball of her own, given by her family at the St. Louis Woman's Club. She is the fourth debutante of the season just past to announce her engagement.

Miss Fusz is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Louis Fusz and of Mrs. James Ring and the late Mr. Ring. Her mother, the former Miss Eliza Ring, died several years ago. The present Mrs. Eugene Fusz was Miss Charlotte Ring, an aunt of Miss Josephine. Her sisters are Mrs. Cabell Breckenridge of Lexington, Ky., the former Miss Marie Reine Fusz; Mrs. John Brownrigg, who was Miss Elizabeth Fusz, and Mrs. Roy Wilcox Jordan, the former Miss Helen Fusz.

Mr. Connett is a grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. August Schlafly, and is a grandson and great-grandson, respectively, of the first and second William Carroll Connett, neither of whom is living.

The prospective bridegroom is a graduate of Washington University, where he became a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity. He also belongs to the Missouri Athletic Association and the Bachelor Club of St. Louis. He, too, has traveled extensively, his trips including a world cruise. At present he is studying law, and the wedding will take place in July, after his bar examinations in June.

Miss Ruth Bingham Becomes Bride of Thomas Cummings

MISS RUTH BINGHAM became the bride of Thomas Booker Cummings in a ceremony witnessed by several hundred guests yesterday morning at St. John's Episcopal Church. The Rev. Leighton Howard Nugent, pastor, read the service. Vases of white snapdragon decorated the altar.

Millard Fillmore Bingham gave his daughter in marriage. Her gown of champagne-colored satin had a long, full overskirt of matching net. A wide satin girdle, shirred, marked the waistline, and a cluster of pearls clipped the V-neckline in front. With the dress she wore a satin jacket, its full-length sleeves tied by ribbons. From the jacket the train fell in a scroll effect. Complementing the eighteenth-century directoire kown was a bonnet of the same period, ornamented by orange blossoms, and tied under the chin with a tulle bow. Her long tulle veil, tinted to match the dress, fell over the train. Her flowers were lilies of the valley.

Miss Catherine Streiff, as maid of honor, wore turquoise mousseline de soie, the long skirt of which was dotted in daisies. The short sleeves were puffed and the contrasting color note was achieved by a girdle of peach satin. The short, turquoise veil was secured by a coronet of daisies. The bridesmaids, Miss Lavina Cummings, his sister; Miss Mary Ann Neville and Miss Mary Jane Scott, wore peach mousseline with turquoise girdles. From their daisy coronets fell matching veils. Miss Streiff's bouquet was made of daisies and the maids carried snapdragon.

Jack Krueger was best man and groomsmen were Samuel Coultas, Lyle Hillis and Richard Lapping.

Mrs. Bingham was gowned in powder blue sheer topped by a lace jacket. Her accessories were navy blue and she wore a corsage of gardenias. Mrs. Cummings chose a costume of black and white with which she had lilies of the valley.

The families, bridal party and close friends were invited to Mrs. Bingham's home, 3647 Flora place, for a reception and breakfast. The line formed before the living-room mantel, hidden by white flowers and fern. Breakfast was served buffet style from a table centered by the wedding cake and spring blossoms.

Among the out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Millard Fillmore Bingham III of Evanston, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Park Bingham of Detroit, brothers and sisters-in-law of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Potter of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Bingham of Tryon, N. C., her uncle and aunt; Mrs. W. R. Swinford of Indianapolis.

New Kind of Drene Shampoo Works Beauty Miracles for Dry Hair

Millions of women now rave about this amazing new shampoo sensation that leaves hair unbelievably easy to manage right after washing—gives it new found brilliance and lustre

MILLIONS of women, whose hair has always been left dry, dull, and hard-to-manage after an ordinary shampoo, are getting the beauty thrill of their lives. For the new Special Drene Shampoo for Dry Hair magically leaves such hair soft, and amazingly easy to manage—right after washing. Leaves it sparkling with highlights, just as Regular Drene leaves normal and oily hair gleaming and glistening.

So whether your hair is dry, normal or oily, you can give it the most beautifying shampoo ever known. For there are now two Drene Shampoos, and all you need to do is this: If ordinary shampoos leave your hair dull and unruly use Special Drene Shampoo for Dry Hair. Otherwise, use Regular Drene. A single shampoo will amaze and delight you with the results.

Drene works these wonders because it is different from any shampoo you have ever used. A shampoo as safe as water on hair; and so different that the process by which it is made has been patented. It is not a soap, so it cannot possibly leave an unrinsable, sticky film on hair to dull its natural lustre. Thus, special after-rinses are totally unnecessary. It is not an oil, so it cannot deposit a gummy film to catch dust and dirt. Yet, hair gleams and glistens as never before.

USE REGULAR DRENE

Drene actually makes 5 times more lather than soap in hardest water. Lather so gentle, so active and cleansing that it entirely rids hair and scalp of dirt, grime, perspiration—even embarrassing dandruff flakes. Yet you cannot find a milder, safer, more beautifying shampoo. And remember, healthy hair demands a safe shampoo.

Drene leaves every hair shaft so free of dirt and film that permanents turn out softer, more lustrous, more beautiful, because the wave solution can take hold evenly. Even dull, dyed or bleached hair becomes more brilliant, more natural looking.

Procter & Gamble make and guarantee both Drene shampoos. So, if you do your hair at home, get either Drene from drug, department or 10c stores. If you have your hair done at a beauty shop, ask for a Drene shampoo your next visit. Only half a tablespoonful for a perfect shampoo. Buy the large size and save money.

British Bombing Planes Fail As Means of Ending Uprisings By Tribes on Afghan Frontier

Air Attacks Breed Resentment, Prolong Opposition—After Nearly 50 Years Defense Is Still a Major Problem.

(From the Manchester Guardian.)

By SIR WILLIAM BARTON,

K. C. T. E., C. S. I. Late of the Indian Political Department and formerly Assistant Commissioner of the Northwest Frontier Province.

THE defense of the Afghan frontier is one of the major problems of British imperial strategy. It has not been solved in nearly a century of constant warfare. Tribesmen in their mountain fastnesses still defy the might of Britain, still for some trivial grievance provoke a major campaign in which millions of Indian money is spent and hundreds of lives are lost.

Twenty years ago, when the airplane was first used on the frontier, military experts thought that at last they would be able to get on equal terms with the tribesmen. The airplane would pursue them to their remotest haunts, destroy their forts and villages, break up their "lashkars," and finally persuade them to throw in their lot with India.

Results Are Limited.

What has been the result? It is true that an airplane or two contributed to an unstable peace with the Mahsuds in 1917; a bomb dropped on Kabul by a Handley Page in 1919 induced a desire for peace in the Afghan mind.

As against this, despite the intensive use of the air arm, it took nearly two years to clear up the aftermath of disturbances left by the war with the Afghans among the tribes on the British border. For the next 10 years there was comparative peace in the tribal hinterland, but this is to be ascribed not so much to the moral effect of air attack as to the policy of the Government in constructing a network of roads in Waziristan and dominating the Mahsud hills from strategic points.

The lesson was not lost on the Afridis and other tribes in the north. The existence of a strong air force in the Peshawar district did not deter the Redshirt seditionists from establishing a reign of terror in that part of the world; it did not deter the Afridis from sweeping down into the Peshawar plain and virtually laying siege to the frontier capital for the first time since the British flag was hoisted over its battlements. The great Mohmand tribe three or four years later provoked a major campaign in which, despite the Air Force, honors were easy.

Still stronger proof that the airplane has not brought a solution of the frontier problem appreciably nearer is afforded by the disturbances in Waziristan last year. It was necessary to employ nearly 40,000 troops before the resistance of the tribes was broken down; even yet there has been no definite settlement.

Moslem Resentment.

An essential element in the pacification of the frontier is to conciliate the goodwill of the tribesmen. Bombing breeds a feeling of resentment; men whose village has been destroyed often prolong their opposition simply for that reason.

In India the policy of using the airplane in this way has had its reactions. Extremist politicians have exaggerated the inhuman aspect of bombing the tribes in order to discredit the British regime. Moslems in India sympathize with their co-religionists on the frontier; to them bombing is a loathesome aspect of British imperialism, an attitude all the more regrettable because Moslem friendship is of the greatest importance to Britain in these troublous times. In the Legislative Assembly the policy has been strongly condemned. In its defense the Government asserted that aerial action was taken only after due warning; all non-combatants, old men, women and children were given ample time to move to places of safety. Government spokesmen failed to impress the Assembly.

The soldier's attitude is that the effectiveness of the airplane is stultified by the sensitiveness of the political department in the interests of the tribesmen. Use the airplane with reasonable discrimination against tribes committed to hostilities, and there would be a very different story to tell.

Indeed, one school of military thought would settle the frontier problem by withdrawing all military forces from the tribal hinterland, leaving the protection of the frontier entirely to the air force. Any act of aggression would, after warning, involve punitive action against the tribe generally, which would be kept up till restitution was made. It is doubtful, however, if public opinion in Britain would approve a policy of the kind; it would arouse resentment in the frontier province and in India generally; a still stronger objection is that the ill feeling it would create would destroy all prospects of ultimately absorbing the tribesmen into the Indian Empire.

Britain's Inconsistency.

The attitude of the British Government towards bombing from the air has exposed it to the charge of inconsistency. In 1933 it took the lead in a conference assembled at Geneva with the object of limiting aerial bombing to strictly military objectives. Yet it refused to pledge itself not to use it for police purposes in tribal areas. The defense of the Afghan frontier was what it had chiefly in view. The policing of the desert border of Iraq for the benefit of the Bagdad Effendi was another responsibility of the air force; a bomb or two dropped on their recalcitrant tribes by an airplane from Aden would help to cement the friendship of the Sultans of the Hadramaut.

The retention of bombing as a police measure has given an opening to hostile critics to impeach British standards of international morality. It has been utilized to the full both in the Near and Far East, greatly to the prejudice of British reputation. Has it been worth while to incur such risks?

There is certainly little to show for it all. In any case, the effectiveness of the airplane as a weapon of offense against the frontier tribes is doubtful. The material damage caused by bombing in a proscribed area is not great; it is easily made good. Inconvenience is caused to tribesmen and their families, who have to huddle with their cattle in caves till the storm is over, or they have to leave the area altogether; that is soon forgotten. The toll of human life is small. Bombing without warning would, of course, be more damaging, but except in big villages, which are not common in the frontier hills, the loss of life would not be serious.

A Change of Mind.

That the British Government is weakening on the point is shown by the answer given by the Prime Minister recently in reply to a question whether the Government would prohibit the use of bombing for police purposes in any territory under British control. He replied, in effect, that if an international agreement to limit bombing were found possible the British Government would not insist on the reservation it made in 1933.

That is a distinct advance. It might be worth while to consider a change of policy at the present juncture. To do so would create a good impression on the frontier on both sides of the border; the prospect of ultimate pacification would undoubtedly be improved; it would be welcomed by Indian Moslems generally. And, too, the lie would be given to British detractors who have sought to prove that British methods on the frontier yield nothing in barbarity to those practiced in Abyssinia.

Frightfulness of the War In Spain; the Barcelona Bombings and Other Incidents

Tenement Districts Filled With Colossal Ruins—Victims and How They View the War—Fascist Technique Improves—Not a War of Glitter or Glamour.

By RALPH COGHLAN

Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

TO go to Spain from Paris, the best way is to take a night train, still known as the Barcelona Express—though it now ends its trip at Cerbere, a little town on the Spanish border—and get off at Toulouse early in the morning. At Toulouse, you board a plane of the Air France line for the hop over the Pyrenees and, one hour and 40 minutes later, you land at the Barcelona airport.

There are certain formalities to be undergone, of course, before permission to enter Spain is granted, and in my case a complication arose because my passport contained a German, as well as a Spanish, visa. The Secretary of the Spanish Embassy in Paris made the reasonable point that, since Republican Spain and Germany are, in fact, at war, he could not permit me to enter Spain if I intended to visit Germany later. The difficulty was solved when I tore the German visa from the passport and destroyed it.

It was the first of many reminders that Spanish Republicans regard the war in Spain not as a civil conflict, but as a foreign invasion, with Gen. Franco as the stooge or figurehead for the imperial ambitions of Hitler and Mussolini, a fact increasingly apparent as Republican Spain reels toward defeat before highly-mechanized Italian divisions and hundreds of the latest-type German and Italian bombing and pursuit planes.

Record of Experience Of a Single Observer.

At the outset, it should be explained that the impressions of the Spanish war, as hereafter set out, are simply a record of the experience of a single observer, limited by the range of his own eyes and ears. They make no pretension of historical perspective toward this tragic conflict, or of comprehensive grasp of all the factors involved.

At Toulouse, where I arrived just after the bombing of Barcelona on March 16-17-18, I got a second-hand picture of horror from Capt. Baulu Georges, a young Parisian who had volunteered as a pilot in the Republican air force. Georges had just arrived from Barcelona after the ordeal of the bombings and was visibly shaken by the experience.

As we sat sipping a drink on the terrace of the Cafe de la Gare, he told me that Barcelona had been bombed 17 times in the preceding 18 hours by bombs weighing from 50 to 500 kilos (a kilo is a little more than two pounds), and that when he left there was no sign of a letup. As we talked, his eyes seemed unable to focus on anything but the horizon and, from time to time, he smilingly looked up at the skies, saying: "It is very tranquil here in Toulouse."

One of the bombs, he told me, had fallen through the glass roof of the French railroad station in Barcelona into a waiting room packed with people. He said the raids came at such short intervals that he had had no sleep for two nights, and the thunderous explosions added to the terrific noise of anti-aircraft guns were nerve-racking. As though in apology, he showed me a paper showing he had been cited for heroism in action.

Capt. Georges could not get two things out of his mind. One was the fact that his wife, who is expecting a child, was still in Barcelona and that his mission in leaving Spain was to arrange for her departure. I asked him if his wife was frightened and he said, "No, she is very valiant." The other picture that kept recurring to him was that of an old blind man he had encountered in a Barcelona boulevard just after the sirens had sounded an alarm. The old man was floundering helplessly in a crowd rushing toward refuge in a subway. Georges took him by the arm and led him to safety. As they walked down the steps, the old man said: "I may die today or it may be tomorrow."

I asked my acquaintance about the Hotel Colon, where I had expected to stay in Barcelona, and he said it had been hit by two bombs and badly damaged, and I had better look for accommodation elsewhere. Would he advise me to go to Barcelona? "Oh yes, why not?" he said. "It is very interesting." And he added a kindly piece of advice: "If you are caught in a raid, run to the middle of the street and lie down, press your fingers to your ears and open your mouth. It is the best way to keep from being injured by concussion."

Barcelona in Bowl-Like Depression of Pyrenees.

If one is not unduly depressed by examples of fantastic architecture, which now and again startle the eye—such as the building where the stucco is molded to represent ocean waves and trees—Barcelona is a beautiful city, built in a bowl-like depression of the Pyrenees foothills. To the north are the mountains and on the east is the Mediterranean. You look over its blue waters and remember that just about 100 miles away are the Balearic Islands, where the Italian planes are fueled and loaded with bombs to drop on the cities of Spain. To the west, just about 100 miles away at the time I entered Barcelona, the Italian-German forces were pushing the Republicans across the flat and open terrain of Aragon toward Fraga, toward Lerida, the gateway of Catalonia, toward the

USSR Ten Years After Trotsky; Survey of the Communist Party, Convention Is Long Overdue

Constitution Requires One Every Three Years; Last Meeting Was in 1934—Question: Which Way Turns Stalin?

By JOSEPH BARNES.

A Staff Correspondent of the New York Herald Tribune.

MOSCOW, April 23.

TEN years ago this month, Leon Trotsky was settling down to a life of exile in Alma-Ata, in Central Asia near the Chinese frontier. The Communist party had had its most bitter internal fight since 1917, with Nikolai Bukharin, Alexei Rykov and other Rightist Communists allied with Joseph Stalin in victory over Trotsky's Leftist deviations.

In 1938 Trotsky is in Mexico; Rykov and Bukharin have been executed after an internal party struggle far more severe and costly than the one which ended with Trotsky's banishment. Stalin remains, surrounded by new and younger men, and the next act of the party's history will be in large part a new play, if only because there are so few of the older actors left.

After the earlier struggle Stalin waited less than six months before he moved, suddenly and dramatically, farther to the Left than Trotsky had ever gone. He plunged the Soviet Union into its "iron age" of building factories and herding Russia's peasants into collective farms. It was this "iron age," and what it did to Rightiest Communists who could not stand the pace, which Bukharin, Rykov and 16 others on trial here last month helped to pay for with their lives.

Stalin's Course a Mystery.

Which way will Stalin turn after his latest victory? Part of his strength is that no one knows.

Many Russians expect a Communist party congress before the end of the year. The last one was held in January, 1934, and the party constitution requires one to be held every three years. A party congress, even a year late, would clear up much of the mystery now surrounding Soviet politics, and would help to repair the damage done by the last two years to what used to be called by Bolsheviks their "monolithic party."

The Kremlin is thought to have decided that, before a congress may be held, it must concentrate on the reforging of a strong, united party. Its campaign has already started, on three fronts: to increase the party's membership; to clean out the careerist elements which have abused the slogan of vigilance by slandering honest party workers; to tighten political education among Communists who have been too busy with the five-year plans to remember their Marxism and their Leninism.

Party Admits New Members.

The campaign to increase the party's 2,000,000 membership already has brought results. In November, 1936, admission to the party was opened for the first time in nearly four years. By July, 1937, after eight months, only 12,373 new candidates had been accepted. In the next six months, however, 28,451 candidates were admitted, and in last January, alone, 14,370 joined the party.

These figures are still too low, according to a recent Central Committee decree. In the 15 months since November, 1936, more than 200,000 workers, peasants and office employes had applied to become members. The Konsomols, or Young Communists, had recommended 110,000 of their members, of whom only 30,400 got even hearings. The requirement that every applicant must have five guarantors inside the party, men willing to vouch for his political orthodoxy, will continue to be a brake on recruiting as long as the purge goes on.

Purging the Purgers.

The party's Central Committee has left no doubt that it means business by its decree of last Jan. 19, calling a halt to promiscuous purging inside the party and demanding immediate reinstatement of those unjustly expelled. Moscow and provincial papers in recent weeks have been filled with stories of "purgers being purged," some of them diligent denouncers who had spread scandal against as many as 50 or 60 Communists in a single year.

In White Russia, for example, 4408 Communists were expelled from the party in 1937. How many of these have appealed is not known, but by March 1 control commissions had heard 1416 appeals and reinstated 797 members.

"Agitational Propaganda."

The third traditional technique of the Communist party after prolonged internal trouble is what Russians call "agitational propaganda." This is designed to strengthen faltering members and to sharpen the political consciousness of Bolsheviks engaged on non-political jobs. Every provincial, district and city committee of the party has been busy in recent weeks on organization of political education for its members. Sales of Stalin's "Problems of Leninism," almost the only contemporary political textbook the author of which has not been purged, have gone up sharply.

The Moscow Province Committee set an example for the rest of the country which showed how strongly the Kremlin was behind this general move. It organized lectures, and made attendance compulsory for every party secretary in the province with rank above the Russian equivalent of district captain. Foreign Commissar Maxim M. Litvinov, D. Z. Manuilsky, Executive Committee member of the Comintern, and Robert I. Eikhe, Commissar of Agriculture, were some of the speakers at these meetings to polish up the political literacy of Moscow Bolsheviks.

Organizing at North Pole.

Ivan Papanin, of the Soviet Union's North Pole expedition and a member of the Communist party since 1919, has given this Kremlin campaign a boost by his formal report, published in "Party Construction," a magazine edited for party secretaries only, of his political activities at the North Pole.

"When we landed," he reported, "the population of the North Pole was 25 per cent Communist member—that is myself; 25 per cent Communist party candidate—that is Krenkel; 25 per cent Komsomol—that is Fedorov, and 25 per cent non-party—Shirshov. We changed this situation by educating Shirshov politically. Before we left he obtained his necessary recommendations by radio, and was duly and legally elected a sympathizer by the North Pole organization of the party. (Sympathizers are formally enrolled by the Communist party; their status is lower than that of candidates or members.)

Filling in the Time.

During their nine months of drifting on an ice cake the Soviet quartet never relaxed their "political vigilance," according to Papanin. They listened to all foreign and Soviet news by radio, and held the regulation discussion meetings in which Papanin interpreted the news.

Papanin reported having continued his own political education at the North Pole by reading among other books, Henri Barbusse's "Stalin," Maxim Gorky's "Mother" and Chernishevsky's nineteenth century novel, "What Is to Be Done?" Shirshov studied English; Krenkel studied with Papanin a course in meteorology given by Fedorov. Each of the four prepared special reports for party meetings according to the best traditions. The last one was a report by Krenkel, given just before the ice broke up in February, of the Jan. 5, 1905, incident when the Czar's troops fired on a delegation of workers in St. Petersburg.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Missourian Who Wouldn't Be King.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE Associated Press, conveying news of my filing for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, said: "The Providence Haven candidate first gained prominence about a decade ago when he announced he had a claim to the old Austro-Hungarian throne."

I would be very glad to have the Associated Press inform its readers when and where I announced this claim. I do not believe there was any intention or desire to misrepresent me, but it is possible the correspondent might have had in mind certain statements by Countess Larisch of Munich, Germany, who in her book, "Her Majesty Elizabeth," said: "When in July, 1933, Longstreet Cleveland married, he and his bride signed a pre-nuptial contract. . . . This unusual document serves to emphasize the fact that Longstreet Cleveland renounces all such claims which he conceivably might make as the putative offspring of that unconventional union between my cousin Rudolf and his beloved Princess. In fact, Cleveland is very anxious to have it clearly understood that at no time in his life has he made the claim that he is the rightful heir to the crown of the Hapsburgs."

I also quote from a biographical sketch of myself in Volume II of "A History of Missouri Democracy" by William Rufus Jackson: "Mr. Cleveland, however, has steadfastly refused to do anything to advance any claim he might have to the crown of the Hapsburgs or also to establish as a fact that, before he was given the name of James Cleveland at the Catholic Children's Home in St. Louis on Nov. 4, 1890, he had been named and was known to the esoteric as Rudolph Francis Alexander Napoleon Augustus Maximilian Charles Joseph von Hapsbourg." Three Mistakes.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE three greatest mistakes in the history of the United States are: first, giving women the right to vote; second, prohibition, and third—the greatest mistake of all—entering the World War.

But the Government had better not get in a war again, because the boys of today have not forgotten the raw deal that the boys of 1917-18 received when they got home from France. I am talking from experience—I've been through it and I've seen plenty.

Danger of Low Water Bridges.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

DURING the high water in February, two persons were drowned in Mill Creek on Highway J, west of Bonne Terre, because of a low-water bridge.

Recently the Bonne Terre Chamber of Commerce sent a petition to the State Highway Department calling for the replacement of the aforementioned bridge and another on Cabanne Course with higher bridges.

The State Highway Department has declined to do anything about the matter at present. It stated that it was necessary to build the low-water bridges in order to have money available to build roads in other parts of St. Francois and Washington counties.

Safety is advocated on our highways by the department. What is your opinion in regard to this instance?

Plea for Co-operation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THERE never was a truer statement than that "united we stand, divided we fall." Men had better lay political parties aside and work for one aim: to have peace here in the United States. It is up to intelligent men to give their best advice and to support our President by giving out work, and those who work should work honestly. Relief is making people lazy.

Put your hammers away. No one can bear such a strain as the President has had to bear. MRS. O. H. GIBBS.

Would Call It "Evolution."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHILE I don't know that the builders of the new boat near the Eads Bridge are soliciting a name, several have been suggested.

This calls to mind the writer's steamboat experience on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers in 1880-85. I can fully appreciate the evolution in river boat design and construction in the past 60 years from the old walking beam connection above the upper deck to this present floating palace of unique design.

Therefore, I would suggest an an appropriate name for this queen of the Father of Waters just what she signifies in reality, "The Evolution."

Opposes Teachers' Pension.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A FORMER school principal, writing in the letter column of April 19, discussed pensions for school teachers.

I, for one, oppose them. Teachers have had steady jobs at salaries far exceeding those of the people upon whom the burden will fall. Some have been teaching 40 or 50 years, and the majority of them are single.

IF FRANCO WINS.

Barring unforeseen developments, the victory of Generalissimo Franco and his Italian and German allies now seems inevitable. It might still be prevented if France and Great Britain were to withdraw from the non-intervention agreement, long ago nullified by Hitler and Mussolini. In that event, Republican Spain could use its gold and credit to purchase badly needed materials of war—notably airplanes. Franco's margin of superiority in recent months is measured not in manpower, but in the machinery of war.

What does a Franco victory mean to Great Britain and France? To what extent will it reshape the strategic map of Europe? Despite official calm at No. 10 Downing street and the Quai d'Orsay, these are questions which deeply agitate British and French. Their adherence to the non-intervention agreement was designed to confine the war to Spain, and it has done so, but at a cost that may be extremely damaging later.

For more than 200 years, the cardinal principle of British foreign policy has been the preservation of a free route through the Mediterranean to India. This route is called the lifeline of the British Empire. It explains the battle of Trafalgar, the acquisition of Malta and other intermediate points and the fortification of Gibraltar. It explains why Disraeli's purchase of shares in the Suez Canal from the Khedive of Egypt was considered one of the most brilliant strokes of statesmanship in the nineteenth century.

Gibraltar was built, in 1704, at the entrance of the Mediterranean, and it was designed to dominate the narrow straits for all time. Indeed, it has become the symbol of impregnability. Yet one of the by-products of the war in Spain is the appearance in the straits of huge guns of German manufacture, cunningly emplaced both in Spanish Morocco and in Southern Spain. What does this portend in terms of British food supply, much of which must pass the straits, in terms of British trade, in terms of the movement of warships?

Off the east coast of Spain, in a commanding position in the Mediterranean, are the Balearic Islands. At Palma, on the island of Mallorca, the Italians have established an air base, from which planes have flown to attack Valencia, Barcelona and other seacoast towns.

Under the terms of the recently concluded British-Italian agreement, Italy agrees to withdraw its troops and military establishment from the Balearic Islands, but, under threat of general war, what is to prevent reoccupation of the islands by Italy with the friendly permission of Gen. Franco? Such a reoccupation would make possible a deadly campaign against British shipping by airplanes and submarines. It would help to make the Mediterranean what it seems to be fast becoming—an Italian lake.

From the viewpoint of France, unfriendly occupation of the Balearics is of equal or greater importance, for they could be used as a base to harass transport of colonial troops from French possessions in Northern Africa, upon which France must place dependence in any crisis. These troops, of course, played a notable part in the World War.

A Franco victory in Spain means the encirclement of France by hostile Fascist Powers. It means that France has another frontier to defend. Historically, France has guarded against attacks from the North and East and its principal fortifications, including the recently completed Maginot Line, are designed to protect it from Germany. But a Franco victory means that the back door, so to speak, is open and, while it is true the Pyrenees form a natural fortification, they are not proof against air attacks.

As is shown in another article in this section today, Barcelona can be reached by air from Toulouse in one hour and 40 minutes. The reverse, of course, is also true; a bomber from Barcelona could reach Toulouse and its huge powder factory—safely located, it was once thought, far from the German frontier—in one hour and 40 minutes. A Franco victory must require the French to replan the country's defense.

Much has been said of the German and Italian interest in Spain's raw materials, but does it not seem likely that Hitler and Mussolini have been playing for far bigger stakes than that? Does it not seem likely that the strategic advantages against France and Britain that will follow a Franco victory explain why the two dictators have been willing to pour vast quantities of men, money and materials into the Spanish war?

On this tremendous investment they will naturally receive dividends. Willingly or unwillingly, Franco must in any big war cast his lot with his benefactors.

HAPPY ENDING OF A TARIFF WAR.

With men of good will conducting the negotiations on both sides, the long-standing feud between Ireland and England is rapidly nearing an end. The latest step toward a peaceful and permanent settlement is the trade agreement just reached at London, which promises to resolve numerous points of contention and to work to the benefit of both parties.

The major achievement of the compact is to end the trade war that has raged across the Irish Sea since 1932. This was precipitated when the De Valera Government decided to withhold the payments due Britain for purchase of lands by Irish purchasers, amounting to $15,000,000 a year. Parliament retaliated by placing a tariff on imports from the Irish Free State, and the latter responded in kind by imposing a levy on British goods.

The usual consequences of a trade war were suffered, with Ireland the heavier loser. With the chief market for agricultural products shut off, annual production has fallen some $85,000,000 since the strife began. Manufacturing has been stimulated, to the extent of $30,000,000 a year, in an effort to make the island self-sustaining, but the cost of creating new industries has been high. Ireland's experience has been common among the nations involved in the tariff wars that have been raging all over the world for the last decade.

The two commonwealths need each other's products, and now they are doing the sensible thing in getting together for a mutually profitable exchange. Britain ordinarily buys about half of Ireland's farm products, and sends manufactured goods in return. Irish agriculture has been in acute distress in recent years, while the British, on the other hand, have been worrying about their food problem in the event of war.

The new agreement disposes of the land annuities dispute by providing that Eire shall spend an equivalent amount for defense. Both nations agree to scale down their tariff walls. So, for once, a trade war has a happy ending. The Anglo-Irish example is worth considering by the many other nations which are suffering from tariff troubles and struggling vainly to attain the elusive goal of economic self-sufficiency.

TEXAS BOWS TO POTOSI.

Moses Austin has been sleeping for more than a hundred years in his grave at Potosi, Mo. He will continue to sleep there till hill and valley never more shall be. And where could a happier couch be found? Nowhere, say those who, as Confucius recommended, "appeal to history."

The whole world knows what Texas tried to do. Legates came to Potosi from Texas. With fraudulent documents ornately embossed, and with the courtly grace of the typical Texan, they presented their claims to Potosi. In the soil of Texas they would wrap the draperies of the Lone Star's reverence around the patriarchal Moses Austin. They would honor the hallowed spot with a shaft of marble commemoratively inscribed. They spoke the wily, enticing language of Texas, but underneath their ingratiating veneer was the threat of violence unless their request was granted. For all their elegance of manner and melodious diction, those Texans are tough hombres at heart.

Potosi replied in the finest Missouri tradition. Her answer was No. An unequivocal, unmistakable No. If it must be war, so be it. Death might be the price. Even so, the pioneer who founded Potosi, charted Potosi, breathed into its dust the breath of life, set its feet upon the path it has faithfully followed—Potosi's sire and patron saint would ride down the gales of obliteration with Potosi.

That's all. The Texans mounted their mustangs and cantered back to the vast greenery of their cotton fields, to the waving forests of pecan trees, to their geysers of oil, to that nine-tenths of all outdoors which is called Texas.

A PROPER COMPROMISE.

It is a fortunate circumstance that the deadlock in the House-Senate conference committee on pending tax legislation has at last been broken. Failure of the conferees to agree would have meant retention of the present law, which is admitted on all sides to be in need of revision. Compromise was decidedly in order.

The agreement leaves a vestige of the undistributed profits tax in the bill, but with its application limited to two years. In return for this modified acceptance of the "principle" of the tax, the Senate conferees obtained approval of the liberalized plan of capital gains taxation voted by the upper house with a view to stimulating private investment.

All in all, the compromise, notwithstanding the intervention by the President on behalf of the House bill, seems to come closer to meeting the ideas of the Senate than those of the House.

Considering the difficulties in the way of agreement, the conferees have done a first-rate job and deserve the congratulations of their colleagues and the country.

IN THE SERVICE OF DEMOCRACY.

The biennial convention of the National League of Women Voters, with some 500 delegates from all parts of the United States, will be held in St. Louis this week.

Year after year since 1919, when the League of Women Voters was founded, this organization has effectively promoted active participation by the citizen in the affairs of government, local, state and national.

The program for the week promises to be most stimulating. Cushman of Cornell, one of the best-informed students of the American system of government, will lead a symposium on the judiciary. John M. Gaus of the University of Wisconsin will lead another on the legislature and the executive, while Alvin Hansen of Harvard's new School of Public Administration and Herbert Emmerich of the Public Administration Clearing House will join in discussing the subject: "A More Perfect Union to Promote the Public Welfare." With the issue between democracy and Fascism now joined as it is in the modern world, the address on that subject by Dr. Herman Finer of the London School of Economics and Political Science should prove an intellectual treat.

The League, in the words of Miss Marguerite Wells of Minneapolis, its national president, is "committed to no lesser purpose than to help make democratic government in the United States a success." A cordial salute to the delegates, and to that high purpose!

A SLIP IN A GROVE OF LEARNING.

We are in receipt of a press release from the historic College of William and Mary, announcing the second annual seminar on colonial life in old Williamsburg. Imagine our horror when we came upon this sentence (italics ours):

> Emphasis is naturally placed upon the educational value of the project, although the seminar offers instruction in it's more attractive forms.

This from the seat of learning which in 1776 gave the world Phi Beta Kappa's golden badge of scholarship! Our commiserations to the luckless stenographer, who doubtless has already paid the penalty for this grievous slip.

ABOLISHING THE POORHOUSE.

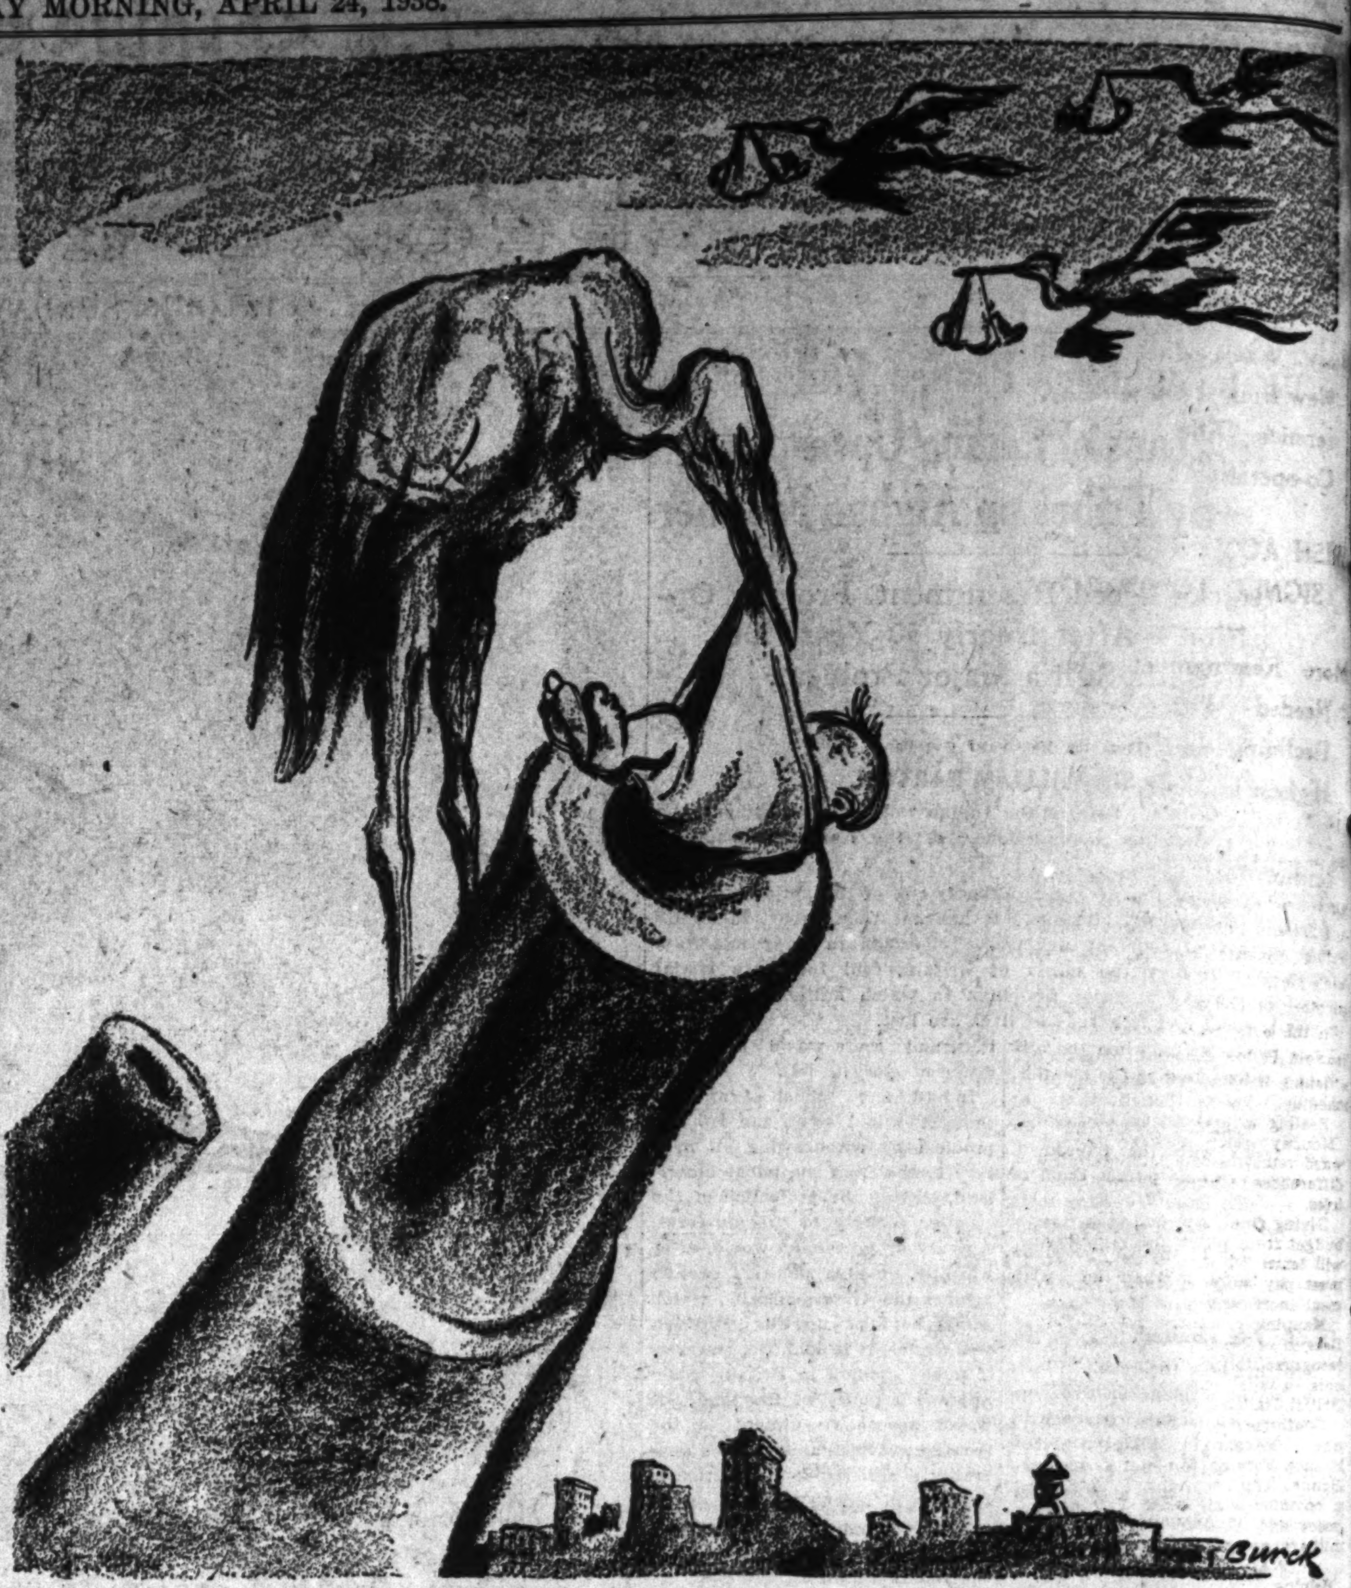
In the 1932 campaign for the old-age assistance amendment to the State Constitution, one of the most potent arguments used was that, if the amendment were passed, all the State's poorhouses would be closed; further, that the expenses of the old-age assistance system would actually be less than the cost of operating poorhouses.

One speaker said: "It costs practically 50 per cent less to enable the aged poor to live in quiet dignity and decency than to herd them in poorhouses and break their hearts." So here was a chance both to save money and to abolish a hated institution, and the voters responded with a will.

At the time, the State had 85 poorhouses, housing about 3000 people, at an annual cost of $1,161,000. The State now has about 70,000 old-age pensioners, whose annual cost to the taxpayers is about $17,000,000 annually—and it still has its poorhouses.

But wait! In the National Municipal Review, William L. Bradshaw of the University of Missouri reports that at last one county poorhouse has been closed. It is in Worth County, the smallest in the State. Seven inmates, says Mr. Bradshaw, have been placed on the old-age assistance rolls and the eighth is on direct relief.

So, six years after passage of the old-age assistance act, the number of poorhouses has been reduced from 85 to 84.



LIFE BEGINS —

When the Population Levels Off

America has entered stage of stationary population, says sociologist, as falling death rate is more than offset by dwindling births; sees change as a rational result of economic pressures, disregard of which would have brought on over-population, and ultimately war; change in age groups will necessitate broad business adjustments.

Henry Pratt Fairchild, Professor of Sociology, New York University, in Harper's.

THERE are 600,000 fewer children under 10 years of age in the United States today than there were 15 years ago. So far as this group is concerned, the entire growth of our population for a decade and a half has been more than wiped out. There are more than 1,600,000 fewer children under 10 now than there were five years ago. Evidently the striking change in our population trend has been accelerated in the past few years.

Many of the most important consequences of the change will reveal themselves rather suddenly in the future. For instance, at about 1960, there will be 160,000 fewer brides and grooms walking up to the altar each year than in 1955; there will be 80,000 fewer homes being established in which the children of the next generation are to be born. There will be a drop in the demand for baby carriages, nursing bottles, certified milk and obstetricians.

And yet only a little while ago, students of the question were viewing with alarm the rapid increase of population in the United States and all over the world, and were warning of the dire consequences.

Some persons could laugh this off by saying, "Well, I shan't be here to see it—I should worry!" but those who looked a little closer were disturbed to discover that, if the people of the United States continued to multiply as they were multiplying during that same decade, by the year 2000—a date that many of their children would live to see—this country would be worse crowded than China is today, and soon after the middle of the next century, we should have packed within our borders a population equal to that of the entire globe today.

What has happened to upset so suddenly the "statistical regularity" which is supposed to prevail among large masses of humanity? Eastern peoples seem to be maintaining the prodigious rates of the nineteenth century. Japan is adding over 1,000,000 a year to a population of about 70,000,000. But Western Europe tells a very different story.

Taking the figure 100 as representing a net reproduction rate just sufficient to maintain a stationary population, Kuczynski discovers that the rate in all Western and Northern Europe is about 93, and surprisingly enough, the figures for Germany (89) and for England and Wales (88) are lower than those for France (93.7). Stated in simple language, this means that in hardly one of the important countries of Northwestern Europe are the mothers of today bearing enough children to keep up the population, in the light of the existing hazards of death, celibacy and sterility.

In the United States the figure stood at just about 100 in 1934, and it is probable that this country also has already entered a stage of population decrease.

At the beginning of the nineteenth century, there was an aggregate of about 750,000,000 people in the world. Allowing a span of 1,000,000 years for man's previous existence, it appears that the average net increase of the entire human species up to that time was only about 750 a year.

And then suddenly something happened. From the 750,000,000 total of 1800, the population of the world sprang to nearly 1,700,000,000 in 1900. It stands at about two billion today.

The continuous growth of human population, slow as it was, was made possible by the use of two distinctively human achievements. These were, first, the gradual appropriation of the entire earth's surface as the habitat of humanity, and second, the development of an economic culture which forced the globe to render far more subsistence to man than it offered naturally.

At about the beginning of the nineteenth century, these two expedients came into an unprecedented conjunction through the discovery and opening up to exploitation of the Western Hemisphere and through the industrial and commercial revolutions. This extraordinary combination gave mankind as a whole a chance it had never had before.

But even this prodigal shower of blessings could not keep pace with man's reproductive tendencies. If the rate of population growth was to continue it required that new continents should be periodically discovered, and epoch-making scientific discoveries should bloom perennially.

It appears, therefore, that a marked diminution in the rate of population growth was not only salutary and welcome, but was a positive physical and mathematical necessity. If no human method had been available, we should have been compelled to submit to nature's method—control by death. The vision of the consequences is terrifying. With the incidence of death by disease and disaster minimized by the achievements of medical and preventive science, there would have been no alternative to death by violence—purposive, deliberate, managed death. The World War was more than a boundary between two eras.

During the very period of unprecedented growth, and partly as a result of the same scientific efflorescence which made that growth possible, there were being developed the means of regulating population through birth and the social attitudes and sanctions necessary to make such regulation acceptable. Thus in the countries of Western civilization, the decline in the death rate was matched by a diminution in the birth rate. Population continued to grow, but at a smaller cost in suffering and energy.

There is every reason to anticipate that the death rate in the United States will go up materially within the next two decades, and that the birth rate and death rate curves will meet, not at around 11 or 12, but at 14 or 15. This increase of the death rate will be a purely statistical phenomenon and will not indicate any decline in medical or public-health efficiency.

The present decline in the rate of our population growth should be welcomed as an intelligent human adaptation to a situation that otherwise would have called for painful "natural" methods of correction.

If and when the time comes that the downward movement should be checked, the leaders of social thought and feeling must be ready to propose changes in the general social economy that will make voluntary child-bearing on the part of the more thoughtful elements of society desirable.

Insecure Social Security

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

AS the years go by and we see the social security system in operation, it is more than ever clear that the reserve plan of financing old-age pensions is fallacious and dangerous. The theory today is to tax wages and payrolls and so build up a vast reserve of funds to meet the future cost of pensions. But the practice is to levy these taxes and spend the revenues to pay budget deficits. Technically, the law is being complied with. The trouble is with the law itself.

Arthur A. Ballantyne, former Under-Secretary of the Treasury, expressed the point forcibly in a recent address to the American Association for Social Security. The accumulation of a reserve invested in bonds, he said, is "unnecessary, ineffective and most dangerous."

"The straightforward way to deal with old-age benefit payments," Mr. Ballantyne said, "is to pay them as we go along, out of current receipts, carefully keeping the payroll taxes for actual use for the object for which they are intended. The fiction of the great reserve, which actually operates to finance deficits and to build up an illusory factor of safety, should be frankly abandoned."

Congress has been slow to reconsider this phase of the Social Security Act of 1935. It should revise the financial side of this measure, at least in time to forestall an increase in the rate of taxes on workmen and employers.

These taxes have been a factor in accentuating depression because they have taken so much purchasing power away from workers certain to spend the money promptly. We cannot afford to keep up the fiction of a vast reserve behind the social security funds, when actually there is no reserve save a bookkeeping entry.

OTHER PEOPLE'S MONEY.

From the Pittsburgh Press.

IN Washington dwell some of America's biggest and best spenders of public money—and a Government official named John Carson.

John, consumers' counsel for the Bituminous Coal Commission, is unique. He believes that "a Government employe should be even more scrupulous about spending public money than about spending his own."

He uses only the simplest furniture, pays for his own water jug, rides to New York on a day coach, spends only what he must. His appropriation of $300,000 for the year was about one-fifth of what some thought was necessary, but on June 30 he will turn back $50,000 of that.

"There is always danger," he told his office force, "that we shall forget our responsibilities as trustees for other people's money."

Now, there's nothing heroic about John Carson's ideas and deeds. They are simply fundamental to successful government. If democracy breaks down in America, one reason will be because its government becomes too expensive for the taxpayers to support. Prodigal spending for non-essentials, therefore, is worse than vicious; it is dangerous.

John Carson is not only trying to make coal cheaper for consumers, but he is making government cheaper for the taxpayers. He is earning a high place in the hearts of his countrymen.

CHAMBERLAIN'S NEXT TASK IS TO MAKE PACTS WORK

Busy Week Ahead With New Budget Up and Conference With French on Co-operation.

IRISH ACCORD TO BE SIGNED TOMORROW

More Rearmament Funds Needed With Business Declining and Tax Rate Highest in History.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 23.—Great Britain's new agreements with Italy and Ireland have put force behind Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's plans for a broad-scale attack on other problems.

In the busy week ahead the 69-year-old Prime Minister, back from a fishing holiday, will take up this schedule:

Sealing a pact with Ireland Monday which may go far toward removing the long-standing differences between the two countries.

Giving final approval to a new budget from which the taxpayers will learn Tuesday whether they must pay more to keep rearmament increasing on a large scale.

Mapping procedure for getting League of Nations approval to recognize Italy's conquest of Ethiopia—a vital part of the new British-Italian pact.

Conferring with French Premier Edouard Daladier and French Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet Thursday and Friday on a common policy for European peace and, if that fails, closer military co-operation.

War Minister Aids.

Helping Chamberlain is young War Minister Leslie Hore-Belisha. He visited Premier Mussolini and Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano in Rome and will fly to Paris tomorrow to see Premier Daladier. Daladier and Bonnet will fly to London Wednesday for a scheduled conference with Chamberlain and Foreign Minister Viscount Halifax on political and military co-operation.

Germany's new Ambassador, Dr. Herbert von Dirksen, is expected to take up his London post during the coming week to succeed Joachim von Ribbentrop, now Foreign Minister.

Britain and Ireland reached an economic agreement yesterday. An announcement by the Dominions Office said the accord after three months had been concluded, but gave no details.

Reliable but unofficial sources in Dublin said the new agreement settled the long-standing land annuities and tariff differences between the two countries.

Britain's Financial Outlook.

Britain faces the necessity of finding millions of pounds sterling additional for rearmament under the handicaps of slowly declining business and a tax rate already the highest in its history.

The Cabinet will be given the budget details Monday at a special session. Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, is spending the week-end rechecking the figures which he and his financial advisers worked for weeks to compile.

Then on Tuesday he will go to Parliament with the program in the dull red morocco dispatch case every Chancellor since William E. Gladstone has used.

Everyone knows some of the problems the budget figures must solve, for it has been predicted 1938-39 expenditures will amount to 940,000,000 pounds ($4,700,000,000), against an estimated revenue of 910,000,000 to 915,000,000 pounds ($4,550,000,000-$4,757,000,000)

Cost of Armament.

Rearmament estimates—exclusive of money to be spent on the new naval construction program—alone call for expenditure of $1,809,925,000 during the year.

For the 1937-38 fiscal year which closed March 31, the Government had a technical surplus but 7.4 per cent of the income was borrowed money.

Income was 872,580,000 pounds ($4,362,900,000); expenditure, 843,794,000 pounds ($4,218,970,000), and the realized surplus 28,786,000 pounds ($143,940,000). But 64,867,000 pounds ($324,335,000) was borrowed.

The same principle of borrowing, instead of taxing, to make a surplus may be applied this year.

It is estimated that though the Government expects to collect more taxes in the current year, income probably will fall short of outgo by as much as 30,000,000 pounds ($150,000,000).

May Raise Income Tax.

The income tax rate, raised last year to 25 per cent, already is the highest the country ever had, but there is a strong feeling it may be elevated to 27½ per cent. The income tax produces more money now than any other tax item.

The so-called "soak-the-rich" surtax also may be raised and regulations for its collection made more stringent.

At the same time, there are suggestions for more taxes on gasoline, automobiles, radios, alcohol and business in general.

No one, including members of the Government, favors any heavy tax increase, especially at present with business declining.

Economic Situation.

A quick picture of the British economic situation shows:

Employment gaining slightly after a severe fall.

Building construction tapering off afte ra long rise.

General production of goods and materials decreasing while stocks increase.

Heavy industries, such as iron and steel, booming because of rearmament.

Imports increasing; exports decreasing.

Automobile production falling.

Textiles declining.

Commodity (rubber, tin, copper) control schemes tightened to prop sagging prices.

Financial Times' View.

The Financial Times summed up the situation editorially as follows:

"At the present stage of the trade cycle any large increase in taxation would have retarding effects upon industrial activity, and a good case can be made for the expenditure of borrowed money..."

Simon already is empowered to borrow 400,000,000 pounds sterling ($2,000,000,000) in five years under the national defense loans act for meeting partially the more than 1,500,000,000 pounds sterling $7,500,000,000) rearmament program.

Out of borrowing this year the Government could produce another technical surplus without additional taxes.

WOMEN VOTERS OPEN SESSIONS TOMORROW

Biennial National Conventoin of League Will Last Until Friday.

The National League of Women Voters, founded in St. Louis 19 years ago, will open its thirteenth national convention at Hotel Jefferson tomorrow. The meeting, held biennially in recent years, will continue until Friday, with about 500 delegates attending.

The program will include broad discussions, some open to the public, on current issues, fundamental American principles and the history of women's participation in government. There will be speakers of national prominence and several women occupying high posts in Washington will attend.

A statement from league headquarters says that the theme of the convention is "American principles of government and traditional American thinking about them. It will include discussion of the scope and structure of American government and of what Americans want government to do as compared to what they are willing to equip it to do. It will be illustrated by important issues of the day which can be decided only by reference to the political principles and even the political prejudices of the American people."

Members of the national board of directors, including two St. Louis women, have been here since Friday, when they held their first meeting preliminary to the convention opening. Eleven of the 15 members were on hand for the Friday meeting.

Presidents' Evening.

The main business of the convention will not begin until Tuesday, tomorrow being devoted to final shaping of the program by various committees, reigstration and entertainment of delegates and a dinner meeting of State presidents at 8 p. m. This meeting, designated "the Presidents' Evening," will be addressed by the national president, Miss Marguerite M. Wells of Minneapolis, who will give "A Portrait of the League of Women Voters at the Age of Eighteen."

Women in Federal offices who will attend sessions are Miss Katharine Lenroot, chief of the Federal Children's Bureau; Mrs. Lucille Foster McMillan, a member of the Civil Service Commission; Miss Mary Anderson, chief of the Federal Women's Bureau, and Mrs. Ruth Shipley, chief of the Passport Division of the State Department.

Following a two-hour executive meeting of the general council of the league at 9:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, the opening business session will be held, with Mrs. Arthur Stockstrom of St. Louis, general convention chairman, greeting the delegates and Mrs. Florence Fifer Bohrer, Bloomington, Ill., delivering the response.

Some Sessions Public.

Outstanding on the program, and open to the public, will be three "Behind the Issues" symposia on the form, scope and philosophy of American government. The first, at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday, under the general topic "Distribution of Powers," will have as speakers John M. Gaus, of the University of Wisconsin, on legislative and executive branches of the Government and Robert E. Cushman, professor of government at Cornell University, on the judicial branch.

The second symposium, at 10:30 Wednesday morning, will feature Alvin H. Hansen of the Harvard University Graduate School of Public Administration, speaking on "A More Perfect Union to Promote the Public Welfare." Herbert Emmerich, associate director of the Public Administration Clearing House, will lead the discussion.

The third symposium will follow the annual banquet Wednesday evening. Dr. Herman Finer, head of the department of public administration of the London University School of Economics and Political Science, will speak on "The Democratic and the Fascist Idea of Government"; Mrs. Eugene Meyer, part owner and special writer of the Washington Post, on "Democracy and Human Values," and Harry D. Gideonse, associate professor of economics, University of Chicago, on "Conducting Foreign Policy in a Democracy."

Final Meeting Friday.

The final luncheon meeting Friday will have as the principal speaker Dr. Charles E. Merriam, professor of political science at the University of Chicago, on "Conflicts in Modern Democracy." Dr. Merriam has served as an adviser to both President Hoover and President Roosevelt and was on the committee appointed by President Roosevelt which studied government reorganization. The committee's recommendations were embodied in a bill which was defeated in Congress recently.

Delegates arriving early indicate that among the many issues up for discussion, the one likely to provoke the most interest is that on foreign policy and related subjects of neutrality legislation, embargoes on war materials and preparedness. Other topics are education, child welfare, economic welfare and the legal status of women.

STOCK EXCHANGE HERE HAS NEW QUARTERS

To Begin Business Tomorrow on Second Floor of Security Building.

The St. Louis Stock Exchange will begin business tomorrow morning in its new quarters on the second floor of the Security Building, Fourth and Locust streets.

There will be no trading session in the afternoon, however, as the exchange has set aside the hours between 12 and 2 p. m. for visits of inspection by bankers, brokers, officers of companies having shares or bonds listed on the exchange, and others. More than 1000 invitations were issued.

The new trading quarters, finished in walnut, with modernistic appointments, contain accommodations for members, arranged in a semi-circle before the dais of the session chairman. They have private telephone lines to brokers' offices. There is also a directors' room and space for the clerical staff.

Organized in 1899, the exchange first occupied the room at the rear of 214 North Fourth street. Subsequently it occupied quarters at 411 Olive street, 314 North Fourth, in the Merchants' Exchange Building, in the old Moneta Building at the northeast corner of Fourth and Locust streets and on the ground floor of the Landreth Building at that corner.

The exchange, limiting membership to 50, has 44 members. The latest transfer of a membership was for $2500. In 1929 a seat was sold for $15,000.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE TEACHERS TO CONVENE

500 From 20 States Expected to Meet in St. Louis May 6 and 7.

Means of making the study of foreign languages more interesting and attractive will be discussed at a convention of the Association of Modern Language Teachers of the Central West and South at the Coronado Hotel, May 6 and 7. Attendance of about 500 teachers from high schools and colleges in 20 states is expected.

Questions to be taken up at the meeting were listed yesterday by Louis La Croix, a French teacher at Beaumont High School and a member of the convention arrangements committee, as follows:

"Why should a pupil study a foreign language? Should he expect to learn to speak it? Or only to read it? Should his motive be indirectly to improve his understanding and grasp of English? Should it be to enrich his knowledge of the customs and traditions of the people whose language he studies? Does his learning and customs and traditions of another nation make him realize and appreciate the virtues of his own more?

"Shall foreign language study be looked upon as a subject that offers tool-skill and as such be made available only to a gifted few who may pursue it to the level of an art performance? Shall it be broadened to attract any one interested in cultural and esthetic development? Or shall it seek a still broader field and attempt to attract a more inclusive, less selective student body, by making its aim the establishment of a valid social outlook for American boys and girls?"

Authors of textbooks, publishers and educators all have an interest in these questions, and an entirely new factor, the motion picture, has entered the foreign language field, La Croix declared. He said there were movies available giving the same stories as in foreign language textbooks, whose pedagogical value was great, especially if the story was an interesting and vivid portrayal of modern life.

Foreign language study in the high school no longer is intended only for the benefit of students preparing for the professions, he continued, but is aimed to prepare children to become better and happier citizens. Livelier reading material must be provided, songs and games introduced, more pictures of foreign lands exhibited and study of the life of these lands undertaken, as part of an improved language study, he said.

Speakers at the convention will include Superintendent of Instruction Henry J. Gierling of the Board of Education; the Rev. Harry B. Crummins, S. J., president of St. Louis University, and Dr. Otto Heller, dean emeritus of Washington University. Stephen Pitcher, vice-president of the association, is chairman of the arrangements committee. He is supervisor of foreign languages for the public schools here and acting principal of Ames School.

Y. W. C. A. Book Review.

"Action at Aquila," by Hervey Allen, will be reviewed by Mrs. Frances Fivecoate at the Y. W. C. A., 1411 Locust street, at 5 p. m. Monday. On Wednesday morning, at 11 o'clock, Mrs. Fivecoate will review "A Woman Surgeon," by Dr. Rosalie Slaughter Morton. The meetings are open to the public.

SALT LAKE CATHOLIC BISHOP ON VISIT HERE

Converted Methodist "Radio Priest of West," Wtih Brother in Kirkwood.

The Most Rev. Duane Garrison Hunt of Salt Lake City, Utah, thirteenth convert to Catholicism to be made an American Bishop, whose field is the stronghold of the Mormon church, is here on a vacation, visiting his brother, W. G. Hunt, 407 Central place, Kirkwood.

He arrived Wednesday and will leave today. Thursday afternoon he watched the Cardinals lose a ball game. A baseball enthusiast, he has backed several young men who received positions on "farm" teams of the Cardinals.

Now 53 years old, with thinning hair, he has been a Catholic for only 25 years, a priest since 1920 and a Bishop since last October. Formerly he was a Methodist, once teaching Sunday school in Iowa.

His diocese, coinciding with the State of Utah though called the Salt Lake, has a Catholic population of only 10,000, in 19 parishes, of which six are in Salt Lake City and was founded 47 years ago. The mines brought the diocese its greatest influx of communicants, but when mining declined various problems arose for his church.

Bishop Hunt, talking weekly on the radio on religious topics, became known as "the radio priest of the West." This summer for the third time he will be the speaker for six weeks on the national broadcast of the Catholic Hour.

Change in His Belief.

Debating while a student at Cornell College, Mount Vernon, Ia., was the first step in his change of religious belief, the Bishop related to a Post-Dispatch reporter. Religion was a natural topic of discussion on the campus. By the time he was a senior he was filled with doubt, but unwilling to make a hasty decision. He talked to many leaders of the Methodist church, and, as he said, read two books on Protestantism for every one on Catholicism.

His doubt continued while he studied law at the University of Iowa and University of Chicago. Finally making up his mind, he was baptized a Catholic in Chicago. Trouble with his eyes forced him to give up the law, so he studied public speaking and went to the University of Utah as an instructor in the speech department and debating coach in 1913.

Edited Diocesan Paper.

A predecessor as Bishop of Salt Lake interested him in the priesthood, whereupon he went to a California seminary in 1916. His first three years as a priest were spent as assistant to the rector of the Cathedral of the Madeline, Salt Lake City, and in missionary work at Vernal, Utah. For the next seven years he had charge of the cathedral parish and edited the official diocesan paper. He became a papal chamberlain and a Monsignor.

His radio talks and activity with convert work of an intermountain church society led him to resign the rectorate in 1930, but he continued as chaplain of a hospital and from 1928 until he was made a Bishop he was Vicar General of the diocese.

Alumni of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, which he joined while on the University of Utah faculty, entertained him at luncheon at the Missouri Athletic Association yesterday.

WILD LIFE SANCTUARY IN WEBSTER GROVES

W P A Workers Preparing Park Left to Public by Mrs. Frederick S. Plant.

The Frederick S. Plant Park and Wild Life Sanctuary, a tract of about two and a half acres bequeathed to the City of Webster Groves by Mrs. Nellie V. Plant, as a "haven for squirrels, dogs and birds," is being put in readiness by W P A workers under the direction of city officials.

Mrs. Plant, who died in 1936, left the tract to the city in memory of her husband, who was in the seed business in St. Louis for many years. The will stated that use of the park should be free to the public.

The park, situated on the northeast corner of Jefferson road and Swon avenue, in one of Webster Groves' residential districts, was the site of the old Plant residence, built in 1864 by Frederick Plant's father. The house has been razed and its early American furniture sent to the Art Museum.

Mrs. Plant also left $15,000 in trust for maintenance of the park. A house on one corner of the land is to be left untouched during the lifetime of Mrs. Anne T. Pickens, Mrs. Plant's servant for 23 years. In Mrs. Pickens' home, behind a high picket fence, are a canary, two cats and three dogs, one a 13-year-old fox terrier which belonged to Mrs. Plant.

In another corner of the park is a fenced-in inclosure, with no large trees, from which Mrs. Plant excluded all animals, and used as a bird sanctuary.

Elsewhere in the park are more than 30 large trees, elm, maple, oak and wild cherry. The workers have cleared the land and trimmed the trees, with the exception of one bee tree which has been left untouched. They will construct under directions in Mrs. Plant's will, a brick pergola 10 by 24 feet, to be covered with vines, and a brick fountain. It is expected the work will be finished by the beginning of summer.

PAN-GERMAN EXPANSIONISM

WATCH CZECHOSLOVAKIA! By Richard Freund. (Oxford University Press, New York.)

THE GERMAN OCTOPUS. By Henry C. Wolfe. (Doubleday, Doran & Co., New York.)

NEVER was there greater need for books giving background information on the turbulent changes in the European kaleidoscope reported almost daily in the press, and never was it more difficult to bring out such books before the march of events makes them obsolete. Both those noted here suffer from the time lag between typewriter and bookshelf, for the news waits on no publishers' release dates.

The book first listed has been particularly unfortunate in this respect, although its title has become more timely than ever. Developments after publication are only partly responsible, however. The volume appeared originally in England in October, 1937, and the American publisher has used the same plates, without correction of facts or even of typographical errors. Thus, the reader finds such statements as "Today, at 87, Masaryk lives in retirement," although the former Czech President died last Sept. 13.

The discrepancies do not lessen the fact that Mr. Freund, author of "Zero Hour," has written a valuable book on the country now threatened by Europe's deadly maelstrom. He makes clear how important its conquest is to realization of Hitler's ambitions, and why its continued independence is of such necessity to the future of the democracies. "Czechoslovakia," he writes, "is the Gibraltar of France."

If the book reads in spots like ancient history, the reader can mentally multiply its warnings by 10 and bring it approximately down to date.

Despite its lurid title and its flamboyant cover design (Hitler's face and symbol imposed on a red octopus clutching the world), the second book proves to be a thorough and temperate study of Nazi Germany's European territorial ambitions. The writer makes plain that the "Drang Nach Osten" is no Hitler invention, but the standard ambition of the Pan-German expansionists for several generations past, now being brought closer to fulfillment than ever before.

Mr. Wolfe, a veteran foreign correspondent whose writings appear frequently in Harper's, takes up the various zones of Nazi pressure: Denmark, Danzig, Poland, Memel, Latvia and Estonia, Rumania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, Austria and elsewhere. The very length of the list of countries where agitation and intrigue are actually being carried on today testifies to the driving force behind this power of unrest.

The chapter "Beleaguered Austria" has been made largely obsolete by events after the book went to press, but the writer did point to the imminence of Nazi conquest, though with a qualifying statement: "It may be, as some observers believe, that the Nazi tide in Austria has begun to ebb." Mr. Wolfe indicated that Hitler sought a "nominally independent Austria under German domination." The Fuehrer's swift moves confound the historians as well as the diplomats.

In all the countries treated, the formula is the same: agitation centering around a bloc of German population, espionage, subsidies, propaganda, violence, the pulling of political strings, the whipping up of Nazi enthusiasm, as Berlin directs its vast drive through Central Europe toward the East. Perhaps the figure of the octopus is not so sensational, after all.

Let the Beasts Teach Us War

THE FIGHT TO LIVE. By Raymond L. Ditmars. (Frederick A. Stokes Co., New York.)

ONE can usually count upon Dr. Ditmars not to disappoint his readers either in the story that he has to tell or in his manner of telling it. He combines a distinguished reputation as a naturalist with an appreciative eye for interesting and little known details of wild life.

In his present book Dr. Ditmars has selected a diversity of material to illustrate a single theme: the manifold and often intricate techniques of combat and defense found among various infra-human species. The result is impressive as a whole, and almost startling in spots, especially when one is struck by the apparent resemblance between comparatively recent innovation in human warfare and its age-old counterpart in the never ending fight of which Dr. Ditmars writes. Camouflage and mimicry among animals are, of course, familiar to everyone; but the author produces some really striking examples from various levels in the scale of life. Less familiar to many persons are the several equivalents of chemical warfare, as well as one or two particularly deadly methods of annihilation which man, fortunately, has not yet thought of utilizing.

So far as observation and description are concerned, no one could have done a better job than Dr. Ditmars; and numerous fine photographs add materially to the book's effectiveness. However, the author does merit criticism for his frequent use of psychological terms that are inapplicable to animal behavior. Remembering in all fairness that the work is intended primarily for lay readers, it is all the more regrettable that Dr. Ditmars should have transgressed established scientific findings by seeming to attribute to animals rational powers which they do not possess. Had he been addressing a scientific audience, he doubtless would have been more guarded in his choice of terms.

Uncle to Millions Of Boys

UNCLE DAN. By Cyril Clemens and Carroll Sibley. (Thomas Y. Crowell Co., New York.)

DANIEL CARTER BEARD, whose life has been dedicated to the service of humanity, and who has consequently earned the distinction of being "Uncle Dan" to 7,000,000 American Boy Scouts, is typically and intensely American. As a boy his interests were divided between building things, reading, collecting a private menagerie, and leading his gang of "Boone Scouts," who imitated, as far as possible, the activities, as well as the virtues, of their pioneer heroes. And because he enjoyed his boyhood so thoroughly, he later wrote "The American Boy's Handy Book," that others might share his experiences.

Always inspired by altruistic motives, Dan Beard needed no particular incentive to continue the work thus begun; but the sign "No Dogs or Children Wanted," displayed on rows of New York flats, stimulated him to immediate action in directing a campaign for parks and playgrounds; and the sight of urchins gambling on the city pavements strengthened his determination to teach boys how to enjoy the out-of-doors. From these beginnings it was but a step to the organization of the "Boy Pioneers, the Sons of Daniel Boone," a project which soon assumed national proportions, and which, merged later into another group, the Boy Scouts, was "destined to become the greatest undertaking of its kind the world has ever seen."

Idealist, apostle of social justice, humanitarian, philosopher, are terms that have been employed to describe this colorful figure, also known as artist, editor, author, naturalist, sportsman, civil engineer and educator. It is no wonder that Cyril Clemens and Carrol Sibley, both St. Louisans, have found him an inspiring subject. Pleasing and informative, theirs is the first biography of this man who has become "a national institution."—Virginia Annan Schroeder.

Two Advocates Of Neutrality

AND SO TO WAR. By Hubert Herring. (Yale University Press, New Haven.)

THE ELEVENTH COMMANDMENT. By George H. Cless, Jr. (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.)

THE author of the first volume here noted, convinced that the present Washington administration is following a foreign policy which will lead the United States towards inevitable involvement in the next general European war, has made a forthright plea for American neutrality, in practice as well as in theory, through legislative action.

Roosevelt, the author states, deliberately placed this country in an unneutral position when he proclaimed that we stand with England and France against Japan, Germany, and Italy. "The President of the United States, with excellent conscience and pure intention, is doing these things which are calculated to yield him a place in history with Woodrow Wilson—as one of the two most dangerous men ever to occupy the White House." Already prepared for war materially, we are now being prepared for war psychologically, in a course of education designed to unite the people behind the administration in any unneutral measures it may decide necessary. Herring's outline of this educational campaign makes a startling chapter.

It is the task of Congress, the writer believes, to recall this country to the path of neutrality. If we are to keep out of war, Congress must legislate measures that will serve to recall our nationals from all war zones, that will make travel and trade in war zones the personal risk of the traveler and trader, and that will stop all trade with belligerents in the implements of war.

The second writer has gone a step further. Proposing complete economic and political isolation as a national policy, he submits a program based on "safe and sane American nationalism" which would insulate this country from European economics and politics. "Mind your own business," he urges. That is the Eleventh Commandment. Specifically, don't buy from Europe and don't sell to Europe. For its protection, America must develop economic self-sufficiency. Only through isolation can neutrality be attained.

Neither author has followed the trend of his thought to its logical conclusion, by pointing out the revolutionary implications of effective isolation. Until it is generally realized that the fundamental causes of war are intranational, it is to be feared that advocates of neutrality, whether through legislative action or nationalistic isolation, will be shouting into the wind.—H. W. Salz.

More Entertaining Than Revealing

MY BROTHER, A. E. HOUSMAN. By Laurence Housman. (Charles Scribner's, New York.)

THE restraint of A. E. Housman was not a quality of his poetry only. As a Latin scholar, too, he was precise and meticulous to a fault, and scornful of men less careful than he. The same restraint seems to have characterized his life.

His brother, Laurence, who was on moderately intimate terms with him, offers, in this volume, a short sketch of the events of his life, a few casual letters, some fragments from notebooks, and 18 additional poems; and still the secret of the scholarly professor of Latin, who produced a collection of splendid lyrics, is as dark as ever. A. E. Housman wished it so, apparently. Though the poems were worked over diligently, as the note-book fragments show, the excitement that brought them to life was as far beyond his control, or even his understanding, as the chiming of the church bells on his own Bredon Hill.

What Mr. Laurence Housman presents, then, is a collection of entertaining detail that illuminates the scholar far more than it does the poet. It appears that A. E. felt keenly his failure in Greats at Oxford, though, in spite of it, he acquired a reputation in Latin as great, in its way, as his poetic fame. In his casual hours, he took pleasure in writing caustically about other scholars; and his unjust comment on Mrs. Meynell ("She has a temperament which she mistakes for an intellect") is typical of the sardonic pride he derived from being critical of other writers. Friendly with Hardy, Bridges, and the older English literary people, he could be supercilious enough about others, like Galsworthy, whom he disliked.

Whether or not the 18 additional poems will add to his reputation is a question, although they have the old terseness and fancy, the old reliance on quaint adjectives or verbs. In a few lines, like

> "The thirst that rivers could not lay
> A little dust has quenched for aye;
> And in a fathom's compass lie
> Thoughts much wider than the sky," there is something of the Shropshire Lad. But the old telling seemed final, and nothing more can add to it.

A Picture Worth Studying

WOMAN ON HORSEBACK, the Biography of Francisco Lopez and Eliza Lynch. By William E. Barrett. (Frederick A. Stokes Co., New York.)

ON the day that John Wilkes Booth shot Abraham Lincoln in Washington, Francisco Solano Lopez, President-dictator of Paraguay, started a war which, for sheer ferocity, still stands unparalleled in history. At the beginning, Paraguay had a population of 1,337,489; at the end, 28,746 males survived along with 106,000 women and 86,079 infants—220,825 in all—and the army had corporals and sergeants 11 and 12 years old. Lopez envisioned an empire of all South America. He dared to play Napoleon in that field against two powerful neighbors, Brazil and Argentina, with Uruguay cast into the balance against him for good measure. He had the best and biggest army and a great war chest. It is only just to say that if his political judgment had been as good as his military, he might have made his dream come true.

With Lopez stood one of the world's most remarkable women, Eliza Lynch, Irish-born, the cast-off wife of a Frenchman, the abandoned mistress of a Russian, and lastly and forever after the unwed consort, mother of his sons and comrade in the field of the great Paraguayan — the "Woman on Horseback" of William E. Barrett's new book about Lopez.

Lopez was a dictator—a torturer and butcher. He was feared by his people, but it does not appear that he was hated. He walked without thought of assassination. No taster tried his food for poison. While many died by firing squad for treason, thousands charged to their death in battle at his word. When he was driven to a hole in the hills with only 60 followers, ten thousand still sought him out, asking only to be led again against the enemy. He fell fighting. "I die with my country!" he cried; and his prime responsibility for the welter of blood cannot gainsay him greatness. Patriot or villain? The verdict would have been favorable had he succeeded.

Barrett's manner is more that of the story-teller than the historian, yet he has documented every substantial detail and explained his interpretation in every case where source material is in conflict. There is reason to suppose he has given a complete and fairly drawn picture.

It is a picture worth studying, if only for the insight it gives into the mechanics of power, of dictatorships, and glory—in the mud.

William E. Barrett is a former St. Louisan. Originally from Denver, he came to this city some 12 years ago, taking a position in the Westinghouse sales promotion department and free-lancing in the magazine field on the side. For a time he maintained an office which he called "The Fiction Factory." He now does his writing in Washington.

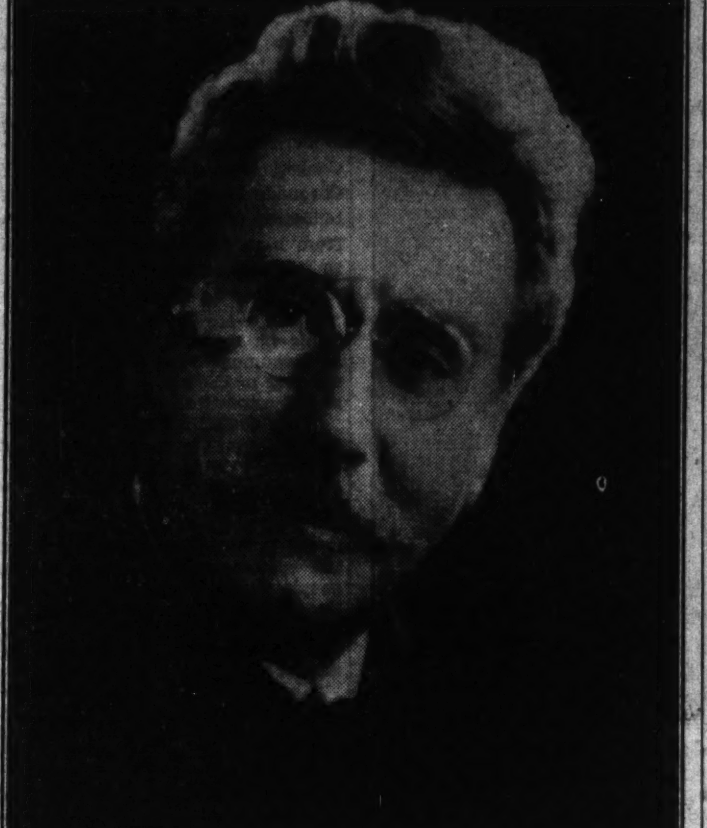
A SON OF DONEGAL



SEUMAS McMANUS.

Autobiography of Seumas McManus

THE ROCKY ROAD TO DUBLIN. By Seumas McManus. (The Macmillan Co., New York.)

"THE lad who lilted along this cogglesome road, and whose life and memories this book is built around," is a true son of Donegal. "Donegal," he says, "is the real heart of Ireland, though 'tis in its high shoulder." The author remembers poaching on the estate of a Marquis, and getting caught at it, quaking and panting like a trapped hare. While he was seeking his father's sheep in the mountains, the little folk—the fairies—sent their mists swirling about him so that he lost his way. He inadvertently stumbled upon a poteen still just as the "peelers" (rural constabulary) were raiding it, and was their only captive. Stricken with terror as he was led to the village, he was somewhat consoled by gathering citizens who ironically congratulated the "peelers" on their prowess in bagging one small and weeping gossoon.

The country folk flocked to the county fair, and it was here that the author managed to assuage his hunger for books by snatching the perusal of a page or two at a time at the chapbook stall. He had no money for even the cheapest books. But the knowledge of folklore, that proved such an inexhaustible mine in the writing of his numerous books, came principally from the fireside tales of visiting neighbors and wandering beggars who were never denied a place at the hearth or a seat at the table. The lad's family was poor, but hard labor bestowed upon boiled potatoes, dipped in salt, "a glory that the King of Spain with all his gold couldn't bribe for his banquet."

Then came the opportunity to attend school a few miles away. To the lad it seemed like venturing into a far and unknown land. Nevertheless, he persisted, and began writing verses which the newspapers published. He lost a coveted post as Master of Glen Cuach School because he dared (this was in the days of Queen Victoria) to teach the glories of Irish history and literature. Amazingly enough, he next found himself in America as an agent of the French Government, exploring the possibilities of raising an Irish-American army for an attack on Britain. The war did not break, but the Donegal minstrel's trip was not in vain. Magazine editors began to bid for his stories and poems; he soon became famous and moderately wealthy.

Mr. McManus' autobiography is written in beautiful Gaelic cadences and is marked with richness and variety. Song, story, anecdote, and legend flow with limpid effortlessness. In many ways the book is comparable with Maurice O'Sullivan's "Twenty Years A-Growing."

—Jack Conroy.

Maugham Reviews His Career

THE SUMMING UP. By W. Somerset Maugham. (Doubleday, Doran & Co., New York.)

IF this review had been written immediately after the book was read a week or so ago, it would have been much more enthusiastic. Mr. Maugham's lucid and well-ordered prose is highly persuasive and seems to leave little room for argument; but, after contemplation, it seems a little less effective. "The Summing Up" is autobiographical, but it is not a complete autobiography. Mr. Maugham is concerned chiefly with the position of the artist, or the writer, and it is on this theme that he seems most convincing, but, on afterthought, only partly right.

Mr. Maugham says that all of his life he has tried to live according to a pattern, to be a professional writer and to get the necessary material. His thesis, which he has stated before in his introductions to his collected short stories and to his "Travelers' Library," is that fiction is entertainment. If you want social problems or philosophy, go to the historians or economists or philosophers. In fiction, the story is everything.

"It has been my misfortune," Mr. Maugham says, "that for some time now a story has been despised by the intelligent." In support of this statement Mr. Maugham points to the mere dealers in words and phrases, to the esoteric cults. But his statement is neither completely accurate nor fair. What has been Mr. Maugham's misfortune is that during the last two decades he has written stories of a kind not taken with too great a degree of seriousness.

To tell a story is still the first requirement of fiction. And if it isn't a good story, the novel usually fails. There is nothing more boring than a modern "social" novel with no thread of genuine narrative to sustain it. But the two can be combined, and that is the tradition which, at its best, has been accepted by Americans and which challenges Mr. Maugham.

It may all be very unfair, and perhaps some future tranquil age will correct the balance in favor of Mr. Maugham. He has, incidentally, a good counterpart in America in Conrad Aiken. Here, too, is a spinner of tales with more psychological insight and poetic beauty than even Mr. Maugham's. He, too, has been passed by, with not even the popular acclaim of Mr. Maugham.

But the times are troubled, and no tales of South Sea sirens or London actresses interpret them. If Mr. Maugham were worried about his immortality, which he modestly disclaims, he could thank his stars that he once unburdened himself and became human enough to write "Of Human Bondage."

—Otto Fuerbringer.

Plays by Barrie And Yeats

THE BOY DAVID. A Play in Three Acts. By J. M. Barrie. (Chas. Scribner's Sons, New York.)

THE HERNE'S EGG AND OTHER PLAYS. By W. B. Yeats. (The Macmillan Co., New York.)

BARRIE'S last play, "The Boy David," which he wrote for Elisabeth Bergner and in which she appeared in London last season, gives a glowing conclusion to the author's career in the theater. However it may perform—and there is every reason to believe that it is primarily for the theater—it delights the reader of the script.

Barrie, keeping close to the Biblical story and availing himself of much research into Hebrew life, has created a boy who is all boy, as much as Tom Sawyer or Penrod. David is only a normal lad to whom wonderful things happen, and he himself can hardly believe that he killed the lion and the bear, or Goliath, or that his adored Saul really wants to kill him. He thinks that the anointing he receives from Samuel is a little foolish, but he humors the man of God, in typical boy fashion. He is afraid to sleep in a tent without a light, he can scarcely lift Goliath's spear, he has bad dreams in which Barrie reveals the rest of his life. In it all, he has a boy's innocence, good heart, and wonder.

Other characters—David's mother, Samuel, Saul, Jonathan—are as finely drawn and with as intelligent an appreciation of human nature. A reflection from Barrie's own writing career is contained in a scene in which David, telling Samuel of the verses he composes, recites the first verses of the Twenty-third Psalm. "You must finish that some day," Samuel says.

The newest edition of W. B. Yeats contains three short plays, two of which have not been published in this country before. These are "The Herne's Egg," "A Full Moon in March," "The King of the Great Clock Tower." As usual, one must have some smattering of Irish folklore and some acquaintance with Yeats' mind to be able to appreciate them in the reading, despite the charm of his lucid poetry. A full set of notes and explanations would greatly help the average reader.

Subtle Analysis Of Misfits

LIKE WATER FLOWING. By Margaret Mackprang Mackay. (Reynal & Hitchcock, New York.)

IN the past few years many excellent English novels have drawn their inspiration from China, some dealing with its natives, others with its white inhabitants. Now Margaret Mackprang Mackay writes interestingly of that pathetic group between, the Eurasians, scorned by both their mothers' and their fathers' peoples. Her novel, however, is more than a mere study of the Eurasian problem. It is a subtle analysis of all misfits, forever wary of being hurt, understanding too well "the desperate, clutching pretense of trying to belong."

Linda Heywood, whose mother had been a sing song girl, was hurt more often than most, because, unlike her brother Phil, she looked entirely the child of her scholarly New England father. A tall, fragile blonde, charming and intelligent, she had many friends among the white colony of Peking. But friendships with Eurasians may extend only so far, and when Ronnie Fenwick, heir to an English title, discovered her origin, he ceased his attentions to her. After a winter of encountering her at cocktail and tiffin parties, he realized that he loved her, and sent home for the family engagement ring. The ring did not come, but there were angry letters from his parents and discreet hints from fellow officers. Facing what she had realized all along, Linda packed her trousseau away, broke her engagement, and shut herself in at her father's house in the suburb of Paomachang. Here she grew thin and neurotic with alternate hate for her father and pity for his obvious agony. An invitation from Eurasian friends of her childhood to visit them in Tientsin broke the tension. Slowly, Linda came to realize that the broad, careless Joel Dawsett, who built such exquisite buildings, was the husband for her. "He, too, knew the feeling of going through the years sensitively, carefully, like an animal through a jungle." But whereas he ignored his problem, she faced hers grimly. Perhaps, together, they could reach some compromise.

As remarkable as Miss Mackay's subtle blending of the Chinese and Caucasian in her characters is her treatment of the Paomachang background. The green fields which Linda sees over her garden wall, with the carters passing by in the rutted road, are made to seem as matter-of-fact as a Kansas countryside.

POLITICS AS BIG BUSINESS

THE POLITICOS: 1865-1896. By Matthew Josephson. (Harcourt, Brace & Co., New York.)

IN order to understand fully the contemporary political scene, where the two major parties are convulsed by intestine struggle and where a new political force—a labor party—is beginning to emerge from the chaos, it is necessary to study the development of the two-party system during the period after the Civil War. This latest volume by Mattew Josephson deals with the politicians, statesmen and political parties of those "turbulent times" from 1865 to 1896, which was the era of the Empire Builders about whom he wrote in the "Robber Barons."

Mr. Josephson's books derive their distinctive value from the combination of three qualities: sound scholarship, literary grace, and historical materialism as a method of approach. He has maintained the highest standards in regard to the first two points. But he has still to master the delicate art of historical dialectics. Since he has not mastered the method of analysis which he has chosen as his guide, he leaves some questions unanswered and many points less than clear.

The "politicos" were the "key men" of the two major political parties who, "without an ounce of principle between them," were concerned primarily with the science of vote catching. Politics became the "business of the officeholders," and philosopher-statesmen were replaced by "desk politicians" and "stump politicians," such as Thurlow Weed and Roscoe Conkling of New York and Simon Cameron of Pennsylvania. The spoils system of politics reached its full flowering in the "General Grant Era" when the attitude of the Robber Barons toward the dominant parties was best expressed by the notorious Jay Gould: "I was a Republican in Republican districts, a Democrat in Democratic districts. But everywhere I was for Erie!"

The author endeavors to get at the essence of what happened in the era of reconstruction by investigating "the action which the ruling political party takes in self interest, that is, as an 'institution' seeking to exist per se, and the action taken in the interests of its most important allies . . . the Northern business class." In the foreword he has stated his philosophy of history: "Historical actions do not seem to arise from the ideas of men; but rather ideas seem to be conditioned by the social being of political men, by their relation to the larger social movements in which the destinies of whole peoples and classes are embraced." In the execution of his plan, Mr. Josephson seems to have laid too much stress upon the "institutional" aspects of the question and too little on "the larger social movements."

This apparently unbalanced treatment must be attributed to the fact that the author has not grasped the full significance of "the larger social movements" as expressed in the struggle over reconstruction. The Civil War and the reconstruction period form an organic unity; together they constitute essentially a capitalist revolution in two stages. It was Marx, whom the author quotes with more reverence than understanding, who said that "revolution was the locomotive of history." But Mr. Josephson has neglected the locomotive.

—Albert Easton.

Gave Cherokees An Alphabet

SEQUOYAH. By Grant Foreman. (University of Oklahoma Press, Norman, Okla.)

THE white men were able to communicate at distances with "talking leaves," bits of paper or wood with markings upon them; the Cherokee Indians depended upon contactual communication, and could perpetuate their laws and customs only by memorization. Sequoyah, son of a white father and Cherokee mother, who neither spoke nor wrote English, but realized the advantages of writing, decided to remedy the situation. The English alphabet was not adaptable to the Cherokee language; so Sequoyah, despite the handicaps of illiteracy, ridicule, and charges of witchcraft by fellow tribesmen, invented an alphabet of 86 characters that adequately represented Cherokee lingual sounds. It could be learned in three months, although he spent 12 years perfecting it.

It was, and remains, the only complete, workable alphabet created out of hand, so Grant Foreman is surely justified in calling Sequoyah a genius. The account of that invention is given here, together with information about the inventor. Born in a Cherokee village in Tennessee, Sequoyah was known in English as George Guess of Gist. Foreman, who believes his father was Nathaniel Gist, friend of George Washington and emissary to the Cherokees, traces his career as a soldier against the Creek Indians during the War of 1812, his emigration with part of the tribe to Arkansas and later to Oklahoma, and his final removal to join the Cherokees in Mexico, where he died about 1844, about 80 years old.

Sequoyah's personality is also described, largely through the accounts of contemporaries. He was a philosopher, painter, tribal counselor, and capable silversmith. Besides his alphabet, he invented numerals that enabled him to count to a million. Previously the Cherokees had only mental numerals, up to 100.

For Amateur Sleuths

COMETS HAVE LONG TAILS. By Madeleine Johnston. (Doubleday, Doran & Co., New York.)

CRADLED IN MURDER. By Rudd Fleming. (Simon & Schuster, New York.)

MURDER CALLS DR. HAILEY. By Anthony Wynne. (J. B. Lippincott Co., Philadelphia.)

BLUE MASK AT BAY. By Anthony Morton. (J. B. Lippincott Co., Philadelphia.)

THE DUSKY HOUR. By E. R. Punshon. (Hillman-Curl, Inc., New York.)

A NEWCOMER in the ranks of detective fiction demonstrates with "Comets Have Long Tails" that she has a thorough understanding of the fundamentals of a good detective story. Madeleine Johnston, known as Madeleine Selby when she lived in St. Louis and attended Washington University, has drawn on her familiarity with the newspaper world for the creation of Bradshaw, a reporter who trails the criminal through Chinatown, the city hall, and the fashionable suburbs of Westover. Bradshaw, lacking any irritating mannerisms afflicting so many amateur detectives of fiction, bids fair to wear well.

An interesting departure in murder mysteries is "Cradled in Murder." This is a study of the dreadful souls of a warped, decadent family—so much like Faulkner that the effect is startling. Well done in a dreamy, queer, between-two-worlds fashion, but probably limited in its appeal to highbrow readers of detective fiction.

English detective fiction this week is amazingly poor. "Murder Calls Dr. Hailey," a combination of Graustarkia and modern dictatorship, is so remarkably dull that one wonders how Anthony Wynne, an old hand at this sort of thing, gets away with it. "Blue Mask at Bay" continues the series of Blue Mask—a master jewel thief and a graduate of a proper public school. Blue Mask, too, too clever, and too, too gentlemanly for words, routs some other jewel thieves, who think cricket is just a game. Too, too tiresome. "The Dusky Hour," a conventional murder mystery, is considerably enlivened by the drop-the-handkerchief tactics of the suspects.

How Co-operation Might Work Here

CO-OPERATION: AN AMERICAN WAY. By John Daniels. (Covici-Friede, New York.)

TWO years ago, Marquis W. Childs published his "Sweden: The Middle Way," dealing largely with the progress made by producers' and consumers' co-operatives in that country in eliminating the profit of the middle men. The book here noted, whose title seems to be a play on that of Mr. Childs' volume, was written to show that co-operative producing and selling hold potentially as great benefits for this country as for Sweden, England, and Scotland, where from a third to a half of all families hold membership in co-operatives.

In Mr. Daniels' opinion, the interest of the consumer urgently demands that some of the profits or commissions of the "numerous processors, wholesalers, jobbers, bankers, credit men, insurance companies, advertising men, solicitors, and salesmen" be reduced or, in some cases, eliminated altogether. This end he would achieve by substituting for the present wholesale, jobbing, and retail firms, wholesale and retail stores managed by the consumers themselves. These stores would sell at normal retail prices, returning the savings to patrons in proportion to their purchases.

The incidental benefits, we are assured, would be many. Quality, we are told, would be improved and standardized, sharp practices in retailing would be eliminated, the capitalism of the big money centers would be defeated by keeping merchandising profits at home, and the neighborhood democracy of the New England town meeting would be revived, even in urban centers, by participation of members in the management of the "co-ops."

The author is evangelical, at times almost lyrical, in his praise of the co-operatives. His failure to appraise the weaknesses as well as the strong points of the co-operative plan in the light of the particular characteristics of the American people is somewhat disappointing. However, the work is interestingly written and gives an up-to-date account of an economic movement of which the country is probably destined to hear more in the future.

—Charles Edmundson.

MASTER BUILDERS OF SIXTY CENTURIES. By John Anderson Miller. (D. Appleton-Century Co., New York.)

In a series of clearly written chapters, Mr. Miller tells the story of some of the great engineering triumphs of the ages: the Great Pyramid, the Hanging Gardens of Babylon, the Temple of Diana at Ephesus, the Great Wall of China, the Roman aqueducts and military roads, the cathedrals of the Middle Ages, the mysterious cities of the Mayas in Yucatan, the Pharos of Alexandria, the Panama Canal, and many other examples of man's ingenuity.

...dvance in Prices of U. S. Government Liens on Move to Expand Nation's Credit Reserves — Other ...sues Follow.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Events in the bond market last week gave the investment world an opportunity for evaluating some of the immediate results of the Federal Government's move to expand the nation's credit reserves.

The combined effect of the gold desterilization operation and the $750,000,000 reduction in deposit reserves of Federal Reserve member banks was to unleash one of the biggest buying movements of recent years in U. S. Government bonds.

Top grade corporate issues immediately fell in line and marched ahead with the Federals. Second grade bonds were not responsive at first, but toward the close of the week the entire domestic list was moving up briskly.

Buying Is Country-Wide.

Prices of Treasury and Government guaranteed obligations rose at an exceptionally fast rate under the active bidding of banks seeking to invest their largely augmented reserves. The week's gains, averaging more than a point, carried the list to the highest levels recorded since early 1937. Dealers reported the buying orders came from all sections of the country.

Demand reached peak proportions —some described it as a "buying scramble"—near the end of the week, following the Treasury's announcement that a part of the proceeds of the $1,400,000,000 desterilized gold would be used to retire some part of maturing Treasury bills.

This was seen as having the two-fold effect of speeding the flow released funds into credit channels and at the same time reducing the floating supply of Government securities.

Private Offering Taken.

Focusing attention on the increased buying interest top flight corporate issues was the quick disposal by underwriters of a new issue of $60,000,000 Consolidated Edison 3¼ per cent debentures. Investment circles thought the good reception given the issue was a favorable omen in respect to the future of the new capital market, long in the doldrums.

Railroad bonds cancelled a fair part of recent losses with smart upturn Friday. Support was said to have been encouraged by word from Washington that hopes still were held there that Congress might be able to pass some legislation to help the carriers before ending the present session.

Rails Rise at Week-end.

Second grade loans assumed leadership of the bond market today as U. S. Governments settled in a slightly slower range.

The list again felt the bolstering effect of a good demand for rail issues. Most carriers had lagged in the upward movement inspired by the administration's credit expansion program, but the majority moved ahead for large gains yesterday.

Declines in the Federals ranged from 1-32d to 8-32ds of a point which shaded only in a small way the cumulative gains made since President Roosevelt announced his recovery and credit loosening proposals on April 14.

Corporates higher at the finish included Pennsylvania 4½s at 78¾, up 1⅛; Western Union 5s at 57⅞, up ⅞; Chicago Great Western 4s at 17½, up ¾; Santa Fe General 4s 108½, up ⅞; International Telephone 5s at 61¼, up 1⅝; Nickel Plate 4½s at 36¾, up ½, and Consolidated Oil 3s at 100¼, up ½.

A few South American loans recorded substantial gains under the lead of Brazilian issues. Other groups were mixed and narrow. Transactions totaled $4,226,075 against $4,769,900 last Saturday.

VEGETABLE MARKET

ST. LOUIS PRODUCE MARKET, April 23.—The following report on prices paid here today to produce dealers by purchasers of round lots of vegetables was made by the "St. Louis Daily Market Reporter":

Potato market was quiet and unchanged. Demand for russet burbanks was limited due to free use of new stock. There was little seed stock available. New potatoes were strong and higher. Rain fell in producing areas and supply here was light.

Bonds Given Spotlight in Finance As Investment Outlet Is Sought for About $2,500,000,000 Idle in Banks

Inflationary Forces Released in Augmenting Bank Funds Lift Stocks After Third to Half of April Recovery Has Been Lost.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 23.—A rush to find investment outlet for nearly $2,500,000,000 of idle money in Federal Reserve member banks gave bonds the spotlight in finance the past week.

In the stock market, about one-third to one-half the April recovery gains were clipped from leading industrial shares on a sell-off in the first half of the week. Later, however, stocks as well as bonds felt the lift of inflationary forces released by Washington in augmenting bank funds available for investment and lending through a $700,000,000 slash in reserve requirements and desterilization of $1,400,000,000 in gold.

The first important effects of this sudden increase in credit resources were seen in a sweeping rise in United States Government bonds, which spread to corporate issues, and avid bank and institutional buying of a $60,000,000 Consolidated Edison of New York 3½ per cent bond issue, the first big corporate public offering since February.

Convinced the market had worked itself into better technical condition after profit-taking early in the week, many traders returned to the buying side of steel, motor, copper, farm implement and other industrial groups favored under the administration's new recovery drive.

Motive Power for Advance.

A number of pivotal shares quickly came back within sight of the April rally tops. Moreover, trading seemed to be running mainly toward the bull side for dealings fell off on the decline and expanded again when the reaction played out at mid-week.

Application of the "heat" in Washington for expansion of credit and plans for heavier spending and lending, providing Congress approves the $4,500,000,000 proposals outlined last week by President Roosevelt, seemed to furnish most of the motive power for the advance.

Business news hardly could be cited as explanation. Pessimistic remarks about the present and immediate future of business came from executive heads of several corporations in annual shareholders meetings. Major industrial barometers marked time or dipped a little as spring expansion impulses played out.

The Associated Press weekly index of industrial activity receded to 68.3 per cent of the 1929-30 level compared with 69.4 the preceding week and 105.8 in the corresponding 1937 period. The figure was back around the lower limits of a range it has occupied for more than two months in a leveling off in the 1937-38 slump.

Week's Big Financing.

Probably the outstanding event of the week for Wall street was the successful marketing of the Consolidated Edison loan. Commercial banks were reported to have bought on the largest scale for a new issue since the end of 1936.

As in Government bonds, buying in Consolidated Edison bonds and listed corporate issues was seen a direct result of the sudden expansion in surplus funds of the Federal Reserve member banks, following action to carry out credit expansion aspects of the Federal recovery campaign. Surplus funds of the member banks shot up $760,000,000 to nearly $2,500,000,000, weekly condition figures revealed. Moreover, banks were counting on a further big increase as the Treasury pays out gold released from the inactive fund.

Utility and aviation shares starred on the advance. The former, it appeared, responded to accounts of the sale of the Consolidated Edison loan and interpretation of Washington news as pointing to a policy of conciliation toward business and power interests.

Wall Streeters who followed closely the recovery strategy in Washington thought they saw hints the administration was trying to bolster business courage and instill "confidence" in order to make the credit expansion steps effective. Without courage to borrow and spend on part of business generally, they reasoned, the piling up lendable funds in the banks alone would not bring lasting industrial recovery.

Raw Materials Stabilized.

News a British commission was on its way to the United States to inspect airplane manufacturing facilities raised visions of more orders for the busy aviation industry. Samplings of first-quarter earnings of aircraft makers indicated they were among the few to escape the business recession. Most aircraft companies entered the year with big reserves of orders for war machines.

Key commodities—like grains, cotton and copper—mostly rocked along on even keel after a spurt the previous week on inflationary interpretation of the administration's recovery plans.

However, some analysts saw much significance for business in growing evidence of stabilization in raw material prices the last few months. In time, they hoped, this might encourage business to resume forward buying for replenishment of dwindling inventories.

Total stock sales during the week amounted to 4,328,770 shares, compared with 4,409,114 a week ago, and 6,381,379 corresponding week a year ago. Sales from Jan. 1 to date were 76,305,174 shares, compared with 184,435,235 a year ago and 210,088,553 two years ago.

Week-End Profit Taking.

The stock market tripped over light profit selling today and ended the week on a moderately downward slant.

In the lightest dealings for about six weeks, industrials yielded fractions to a point or so.

The principal news of the day, which some brokers thought may have been discounted in Friday's run-up, was the compromise on the tax revision bill reached by the Senate and House conferees. While Wall street, on the whole, viewed the agreement as "constructive," traders generally exhibited a tendency to wait for final legislative action on the measure.

Offerings Are Small.

Counteracting the optimism engendered by tax developments were threats of fresh strikes in Michigan automotive centers and the continuance of business clouds including numerous corporation statements for the first three months revealing the effect of the recession on earnings during that period.

Analysts derived mild encouragement from the fact offerings were small throughout the two-hour proceedings. Transfers of 410,950 shares were the lowest since March 12, and compared with 1,057,860 last Saturday, when the trend was sharply upward. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks off .2 of a point at 40.4. On the week the composite suffered a net loss of .8 of a point. It was the first decline after three consecutive weekly advances.

Prominent among the day's losers were United States Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Westinghouse, Santa Fe, American Telephone, Anaconda, Sears Roebuck, Douglas Aircraft, International Harvester, du Pont, Goodyear and Dome Mines.

One Noted Strong Point.

Consolidated Edison was an outstanding strong spot, again responding to the company's recent successful flotation of $60,000,000 of debentures. The stock held a gain of a point at 22⅝. Minor improvement was also held by North American, Public Service of New Jersey and American Power & Light.

Others to contest the trend were J. I. Case, Air Reduction, Cerro de Pasco and Pullman.

Secondary rail loans once more held most of the buying play in the bond department, while U. S. Governments retraced part of their sharp upswing of Friday.

Commodities were listless throughout the brief session. Wheat at Chicago was unchanged to off ⅜ of a cent a bushel and corn was down ⅛ to ⅜. Cotton yielded 10c to 20c a bale.

The stock market enjoyed its second and best upturn of the week yesterday when rumors spread through boardrooms that authorities were considering easing margin requirements and short selling regulations. These were later denied by official sources. Revived hopes for the tax bill also helped inspire Friday's buying.

The bullish performance of bonds throughout the week was one of the main bolstering influences for shares. Heavy demand from banking sources for Federal issues reflected a jump in reserves and announcement the treasury would use $50,000,000 weekly of its "desterilized" gold to pay off maturing bills.

Break in French Franc.

Rail securities made the best showing throughout the week, with top marks being established following advices from the capital that Senator Wheeler would urge emergency relief legislation for the roads in this session of Congress.

A sharp break in the French franc in terms of the dollar failed to disconcert domestic markets. This currency weakened on doubts regarding the Daladier Ministry's ability to weather financial storms, and doubts a loan could be obtained from the British. Depressing the unit, also, was talk that the French government was willing for the currency to sink below the 3-cent level.

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY DIPS MODERATELY

Cotton Manufacturing Continues to Show a Relatively Better Comparison With 1937.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Industrial activity dipped moderately along a broad front this week.

The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index, based on latest available statistics, dropped to 68.3 per cent of the 1929-30 average—only fractionally above the year's low. This compared with 69.4 last week and 105.8 a year ago.

Assemblies of new cars and electric power output sank into new low ground for the current recession. Steel mill operations and cotton manufacturing activity also declined.

Alone among the major indices, railroad freight loadings were up on the week. Rail men pointed out, however, this was to be expected in veiw of the sharp contraction that followed the rate boost two weeks ago.

Cotton manufacturing continued to show a relatively better comparison with the year's low point than other lines, swinging narrowly some 12 per cent above the low point.

The index with its seasonally adjusted components based on latest available data compared as follows:

Sharp Decreases in the Values of Foreign Monies in Dollar Terms

Wide Decline in Sterling Early in Week Followed Later by Break in French Franc.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 23.—A week of steadily decreasing values of foreign currencies in terms of the dollar was climaxed with the sharpest break in the French franc since formation of the Daladier Government.

Early in the week, following reopening of overseas markets after the Easter holiday, sterling, in one of the widest declines in weeks, led a general downturn in European monies. The drop—unexpected in most banking circles—came on the heels of administration moves toward credit expansion and desterilization.

Later in the week pressure on the pound let up—it had been mainly attributed to Japanese sources—and the downward movement showed signs of having spent itself. The franc, however, developed independent weakness on release of the Bank of France statement showing increased Government borrowing and a new high total for sight liabilities of the Government.

Factors in the week's losses in the franc, amounting to around .14 of a cent, included, according to bankers, delays by the Daladier ministry in formulating financial reforms, continued weakness of the financial structure of the Government, and rumor of difficulties in the way of floating a loan in England.

Sterling lost around 2 cents on the week. The guilder and Swiss franc were fairly heavy losers while the belga held an even keel.

Only one engagement of gold was reported by the Federal Reserve Bank, $5,800,000 from Japan, compared with $11,583,000 in the previous week.

The French franc slowed up its downward flight today—apparently braked by intervention of the official control—following the widest decline in weeks Friday.

A decline of .00⅛ of a cent in the franc was counterbalanced by small gains elsewhere in the foreign currency list. Sterling advanced ¼ of a cent, the belga and Swiss franc each added .01 of a cent and Holland guilders .02 of a cent.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Foreign exchange closing rates were as follows: Great Britain in dollars, other in cent. Great Gritain, demand 4.99, cables 4.99, 60 day bills 4.98½; France, demand 3.02⅝, cables 3.02⅝; Italy, demand 5.26½, cables 5.26½. NONFERROUS METALS SHOW PRICE STABILITY

Tin Quotations, However, Are Erratic Over Wide Limits During Week.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Price stability prevailed in most divisions of the nonferrous metal trade last week. Tin fluctuations were erratic over wide limits, but otherwise quotations were unchanged to slightly higher.

Domestic copper held at 10 cents a pound, Valley, and electrolytic for export firmed up after some early unsettlement, when London was influenced by a setback in Wall Street early in the week. Domestic sales showed some improvement as consumers took a greater interest in acquiring supplies, evidently reflecting depleted inventories.

Zinc was steadier. Sellers' ideas hardened and galvanizing operations registered a further slight improvement. All producers went to the 4.25 cent a pound level, East St. Louis, eliminating the dual price situation that recently prevailed.

Lead buying was spasmodically brisk at unchanged prices. Buying was chiefly for May delivery, where commitments were understood about one-quarter covered.

Tin moved over a range of 170 points, weak for a time on uncertainty over status of the buffer pool, then steady with the inflationary talk, although prices were off 50 points net with spot at 38.30 cents a pound.

Steel ingot production showing little change, holding around 32 per cent. Building construction, the farm implement industry and tin can manufacturers bought moderately.

Antimony was unchanged in a dull market, with Chinese grades holding at 15.75 cents a pound.

COMMODITY PRICE INDEX UNCHANGED

Four-Year Low Held by Composite of 35 Important Wholesale Staple Prices.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Commodity prices moved narrowly this week, hovering close to the year's low in most instances.

The Associated Press weekly index of 35 important wholesale staple prices stood unchanged at 67.76 per cent of the 1926 average, and compared with 93.87 a year ago.

The index this week equaled the low for the last four years. For the first time in two months, however, the measure did not decline compared with the previous period.

Gains and losses in the six major groups making up the index were evenly balanced. Food, textiles and non-ferrous metals moved moderately higher, while industrial commodities, livestock and agricultural items dipped.

New Low for Year.

Industrial raw materials chalked up a new low for the year for the eleventh consecutive time. Bituminous coal, steel scrap, turpentine, lumber, burlap and tin were among the losers, hides, rubber and zinc advancing.

Pressure on quotations in this category, commodity men hold, stemmed largely from still-heavy inventories in many important lines. Demand, also, was slack, with few indications that heavier purchases lay in the offing.

Textiles, on the other hand, advanced the second week running for the first time this year as buyers occasionally made commitments necessitated by spotty inventory conditions. Cotton cloth and silk rose fractionally when a wave of orders met light offerings at lower levels.

Moderate pressure was felt by principal farm staples. Official estimates indicated large crops would be harvested this season if good weather continued to hold. Small setbacks in corn, wheat, cotton, hogs and lambs more than offset markups in cattle and rye.

Market basket items were mixed, although brisk demand for flour, lard and eggs was sufficient to boost the index despite declines in cocoa and butter.

COMMODITY MARKETS

NEW YORK, April 23.—Minor flurries of selling hit most commodities markets today. Turnover was limited, however, as traders tried to gauge administration moves to spur industrial recovery.

Wheat futures at Chicago recovered from early losses of almost 1 cent a bushel to end unchanged to ⅜ of a cent lower. Corn lost ⅛ to ⅜ of a cent.

Cotton futures at New York dropped 10 to 20 cents a bale in a listless market. A further drop in raw sugar was reflected in lower sugar futures prices. Both the world and domestic contracts declining.

Tin futures at New York following erratic fluctuations in recent sessions gained about 1-3 of a cent. Other nonferrous metals showed narrow changes. Small gainers at New York included the Rio and Santos coffee contracts and cottonseed oil.

Moderately lower were rubber, hides, cocoa and wool tops.

WINTER WHEAT CROP OUTLOOK FOR U. S. AND THE WORLD

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—The Bureau of Agricultural Economics said today the American winter wheat crop made rapid recovery during the last 10 days from the recent setback caused by early April frost in Oklahoma, Texas and Kansas.

It said, however, that some permanent injury to the crop resulted from the adverse weather.

Rains were still needed in portions of the Northern Great Plains, the bureau said, adding that elsewhere in the West winter wheat generally was reported to be in excellent condition.

The crop was said to have made excellent growth in most of the Ohio valley, although occasional yellow spots were reported on low wet land.

The bureau said no new estimate of the size of the crop would be made until next month. Its last estimate was 725,000,000 bushels.

World estimates, the Bureau said, indicate that the 1938 acreage sown to winter wheat will be about as large as in 1937 when a crop larger than normal was harvested.

Planting estimates from 21 countries which last harvested more than 60 per cent of the world acreage of all wheat (excluding Soviet Russia and China) totaled 163,438,000 acres compared with 164,107,000 last year, the Bureau said.

World wheat production, excluding that of Russia and China, last season was estimated at 3,819,000,000 bushels, or about 280,000,000 bushels larger than in the previous season.

With another large crop in prospect, the Bureau said it expected the general trend in domestic and world wheat prices to be downward as adjustment is made toward the new crop basis.

Growing wheat was reported in better condition this year than last in the United States, Canada and in Northern, Western and Central Europe. However, rain was said to be urgently needed in some producing areas, particularly in the Mediterranean countries and North Africa.

The Bureau also said that the area sown to winter rye in 12 countries for which reports were available was slightly below that reported for these countries last year.

BUYERS APPEAR ON WHEAT SLUMP; CLOSE IS MIXED

Support Credited Largely to Cash and Export Interests—Corn Trade Is Quiet at Week End.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 23.—Enough buyers appeared in the wheat pit today after a price drop of about a cent a bushel at the opening to rally the market and wipe out most of the losses during the remainder of the short session.

Support which the market found on slight price recessions was credited largely to cash and export interests who, traders said, believed in the value of domestic wheat particulari yin view of the 20 cents a bushel premium in quotations at Liverpool and the even greater difference in prices at Winnipeg where the highest wheat figures in the world prevailed.

Bumper crop prospects and quiet export business together with prospects of precipitation over much of the grain belt helped induce early selling but this liquidation soon dried up and short covering appeared on the dip. There were reports of dust blowing in some sections of winter and spring wheat territory of North America.

Wheat closed unchanged to ⅜c lower compared with yesterday's finish, May 83⅝@¾c, July 81⅞@82c, September 82½@⅝c, corn ⅛-⅜c down, May 59¼@⅜c, July 61c, September 62¼@¼c; oats ¼c off to ⅛c up, May 29⅝c; rye ⅛-⅛c higher, May 62¼c; lard 2 to 5c higher.

The trade received a dispatch crediting Department of Agriculture officials with a forecast that the April estimate of 725,000,000 bushels winter wheat production might be increased at least 25,000,000 bushels. A later message gave no new estimate of the size of the crop but indicated the crop has made rapid recovery during the last 10 days from the recent setback caused by cold weather.

After being almost a cent higher at one stage, Liverpool wheat closed ⅛-¼ net lower, partly reflecting cheaper shippers' offers. Export sales of North American wheat were estimated at 250,000 bushels while corn business was placed at 200,000 bushels. Four thousand tons of Australian wheat were sold to the United Kingdom.

Corn trade was quiet but heavy receipts invoked no unusual selling. Shipping demand and moderate export business offset liberal country offerings. Broomhall forecast that in the 12 months ending March 31, 1939, importers' requirements would be 340,000,000 bushels and that less than half of this was in sight from exporting countries other than the United States.

Houses with Northwestern connections were identified with purchases of nearby oats and rye futures.

Buying of lard was associated with the recent strengthening of the cottonseed oil market.

Oats and rye markets were quiet and prices little changed, while provisions rose slightly.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, April 23.—May wheat was offered at 93c at the close. May wheat was offered at 59c.

Liverpool wheat closed ⅛d to ¼d lower after opening ⅛d to ¼d higher.

Winnipeg wheat opened ¼c to ⅜c lower and early was ⅝c higher to ½c lower. The close was ⅜c up to ⅝c down.

Argentine wheat opened ¼c up, and corn ¼c@⅜c higher. The close was ¼@½c higher for wheat and net unchanged to ¼c lower for corn.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was unchanged. The supply was comparatively large, but active purchasing by mill, elevator and order buyers cleared the offerings. Trading basis was unaltered. Corn was ¼c lower to ¼c higher. Demand was good and the somewhat smaller offering quickly cleared. Mills and elevators showed the interest. Premiums were unchanged to ½c higher. Oats were unchanged. Demand was fairly active and a clearance was made. Elevators showed the interest.

Frightfulness in Spain; Bombing of Barcelona

great power stations upon which Barcelona relies.

At this time of year, Barcelona is brilliantly sunny and the air has the sharp tang of the sea. It is pleasant to walk along the great boulevards like the Paseo de Gracia and the Avenue of the 14th of April (the date in 1931 of the revolt against the monarchy). And it is just as well that it is pleasant to walk, for there are no taxis and other forms of transport are badly overtaxed. In the latter days of March, the boulevards were thronged with people going about their daily routine. Little Toonerville trolleys scuttled along their rails bearing heavy burdens of passengers, who overflowed to the steps and hung precariously on the backs of the cars. In the middle of the boulevards, motorcycle dispatch riders drove at tremendous speed, with exhausts wide open, among official automobiles flying the flag of Spain, and trucks loaded with soldiers, war munitions and oranges from Valencia.

Only a few days before, the headlines in the London Evening News read: "Barcelona Air Raid Agony—Four Hours of Death in the Dark—Big New Raid Today—Huge Death Roll—Barcelona in Flames." But now Barcelona seemed normal, with shops, hotels and theaters open, and the flower booths and book stalls on the Rambla doing business as usual, and raucous noise of traffic in the streets.

Normal—only under the boulevards at each subway station were rows of mattresses and bedding rolls where human beings, many of them otherwise homeless, had to seek refuge at night like the animals of the woods. Normal—but the shop windows not already shattered were criss-crossed with gummed paper tape to prevent breakage by concussion. (A man in Barcelona who was having dinner during an air raid said he saw a window pane bend what seemed like inches without breaking.) Normal, except for pockmarked facades of buildings where fragments of air bombs had splattered and finally, normal but for huge buildings torn apart from roof to cellar, piles of plaster, brick and glass where searchers were still looking for bodies.

Waterfront Tenements Suffer.

Barceloneta (little Barcelona), on the waterfront, is a district of six and seven-story tenements and narrow streets, occupied by dock and munitions workers, laborers of all kinds and their large families. It is reminiscent of the lower East Side of New York City. In the air raids of the last year, Barceloneta has suffered more than any other section of the city. There are two theories as to this: one, that if air raids are designed to produce panic, it is better to concentrate them in a heavily-populated section where they can do most damage; second, raiders have aimed at the docks, warehouses and factories and have accidentally struck the tenement districts. To the people in Barceloneta, this discussion is what the professors call academic.

They contemplate the ruins, they think of their dead and these actualities are not relieved by theories. Barceloneta is filled with colossal ruins of once-crowded tenement houses. Nearly every street has its shell crater where bombs have dropped, miraculously enough, between two walls of masonry not more than 18 feet apart and buried themselves in the cobblestoned street with a minimum of damage.

Killing of Children.

But that was not the case with the bomb which made a direct hit on the School of St. Michael, killing 25 children, or with the incendiary bomb which burned down the School of the Sea, on the Mediterranean shore, built for delicate children who might thus enjoy the sea air and the bathing.

As I stood in a street heaped with rubble inspecting a tenement house that had been cut neatly in two by a bomb, I met a typical Barceloneta dweller—Ramon Villar, a munitions worker. His son is at the front and a brother-in-law was recently killed in an air raid. I asked him what he does when a bombing occurs. He said he just goes on doing what he has been doing, feeling it useless to seek shelter, because he has the fatalistic feeling that if a bomb is destined for him, it will find him wherever he goes. He said the Fascists were bombing the civilian population because they want to shake the morale, but that the psychological reaction of the people is indignation, rather than panic.

On the other side of the city the picture is pleasanter. Here are the villas of Barcelona's business men, industrialists and bankers, surrounded by palm trees and other picturesque tropical shrubbery. The architecture borrows heavily and handsomely from the Moors, with intricate mosaics and towers resembling the minarets of the mosques of Arabia. I observed no evidence of bombing here.

In many of these homes, deserted by their owners, the Spanish Government has established children's colonies. In them live groups of from 15 to 60 children, war orphans or sons and daughters of men at the front whose wives are unable to care for them. Many of these children, born to peasantry, cannot cease marveling at finding themselves in homes replete with everything from pipe organs to Roman baths. Each of the colonies has a staff of nurses, teachers and physicians and there is no happier atmosphere in Spain.

Victims in the Hospital.

The Clinical Hospital of Barcelona is an ancient, gloomy pile of solid masonry. To this hospital were brought hundreds of the victims of March 16-17-18, most of them dead or dying. I don't know the statistics, but I saw the victims—the man with a shattered leg who wouldn't talk to me because I was a foreigner and "It is foreigners who have done this thing to me"; the 16-year-old boy, badly shell-shocked, whose face and hands were a mass of nasty looking wounds caused by dirt and gravel driven deeply under his skin; the high cheekboned Andalusian who said he was in the hospital "because the democracies won't help Spain"; the man with the bad pallor whose wife walked to the head of the bed, where he could not see her, to lean against the wall and weep bitterly; the man whose foot was smashed at the bombing of the French railroad station and who cried, "There is no reason for it in the name of humanity."

Down the corridor was the children's ward. Six-year-old Carmen Ferrer, who has snapping black eyes and pigtails, was in the park with her mother when it happened. I asked her why the city is being bombarded.

"To kill people," she said.

"Why should people be killed?"

"Because there are too many of us. The street cars are so crowded one often has to walk. And all of the stores are crowded, too. If they kill some of us, the others can ride and shop in the stores."

But, as an afterthought, she added: "But if they bomb the street cars and stores, too, it won't be of any use at all."

"Fascists—Bad Men."

Carmen Boira is 9 years old. She had a bandage over her forehead and another over her upper lip, cuts on nose and cheeks and a broken arm, suspended on a pulley.

"Who dropped the bombs, Carmen?" I asked her.

"The Fascists."

"Who are the Fascists?"

"Bad men. Italians."

In bed with Carmen was her doll, Maria Rosa. The same bomb that hit Carmen fractured Maria Rosa's painted skull.

The basement of the Clinical Hospital reeks with chemicals. Here on the tile floor were the still-unclaimed bodies of air raid victims in rows. The bodies were mostly shapeless masses, some of them so badly burned as no longer to resemble human forms. I noticed a tall, powerfully built figure dressed in blue workmen's blouse and trousers, and the body of a young girl, clothed in black, the pallor of her face relieved by a narrow streak of blood that ran from her mouth across her cheek. There was the body of a man who had been operated on in vain; his splinted and bandaged arm pointed eerily to the ceiling. In one corner were two little girls about 6 and 8, the arm of the older outstretched, as though protectively, over the head of the other.

Here, in this reeking morgue, was the ultimate fruit of the air raids.

Technique of Bombing.

The technique of bombing from the air, as Col. Stephen Ogden Fuqua, American military observer in Barcelona, is doubtless reporting to our War Department, has made noteworthy progress in recent years. While Col. Fuqua was quietly pursuing his studies of this branch of science recently, his office became a practical laboratory for the concussion of a bomb that fell nearby blew the Colonel out of his chair. It is not yet known whether the Colonel was able to make any exact calculations from this experience, although another man I met, who was lying flat on the sidewalk during a raid, figured he was lifted four feet in the air. And a sailor on a British ship in Tarragona was doing nothing more harmful than meandering along the deck when a bomb's concussion tossed him over the rail and into the water. The sailor, not being of a scientific turn of mind, expressed his conclusions thus: *!@"!!!! and a couple of blankety blanks.

In order to give warning to the population of an impending air raid as well as to put the anti-aircraft batteries into operation, the authorities at Barcelona have been compelled to rely on sight and sound. Yet both sight and sound have failed in daylight raids, as well as those at night, and often the first warning of a raid has been the dropping of the initial bomb. This is because the raiders, after leaving the base at Palma, Mallorca, attain altitudes of as high as 20,000 feet beyond the reach of eyes and binoculars. Then, to avoid detection by the sound locators, they throttle down their motors while still well out at sea and come gliding in silently over the city. Within a few seconds, their deadly loads are dropped and they are on their way back to the base.

At night, of course, they can glide in at much lower altitudes, pitting speed and maneuvering ability against the comparatively feeble searchlights. And even if they are picked up by the searchlights, the odds against being hit by anti-aircraft shells are still very much in favor of the raiders.

Thus, lacking the best and one is tempted to say the only feasible defense against raids, namely, constant patrolling by large numbers of pursuit planes, Barcelona was helpless.

Types of Bombing Planes.

Three types of planes were noted—Heinkel hydroairplanes, Junkers and Savoia Marchettis. The first two are of German make, the third Italian. They came over usually in flights of three to six at a time. Once nine planes were counted. For 41 hours, at short intervals, they glided in, dropping 350 bombs. It is believed that many of the planes went inland to Saragossa, replenished their supply of bombs and dropped them at Barcelona on their return trip to Palma.

The second advance in technique is in the composition and power of the bombs themselves. Their weight varied from 110 to 1100 pounds. Some were of the delayed fuse variety, penetrating roofs and exploding with terrific expansive force inside of buildings. It was a bomb of this type that hit a grain warehouse on the waterfront built of steel and concrete. The whole interior, to a length of some 200 feet, was smashed, with the steel girders torn apart like tissue paper. It is this type of bomb, too, that ripped seven-story apartment buildings into tatters.

But the type of bomb that most interested military observers was a high explosive type of comparatively little penetrating power, but with terrific lateral explosive force. That is, instead of the flower-pot type of explosion familiar in World War bombs, against which a man could protect himself by falling flat on his face, these bombs distribute their deadly fragments in a wide circle a few inches above the ground. They left their marks on many Barcelona buildings a foot or two above the sidewalk. This type of bomb is ideal for dropping on crowded streets and can be depended on to account for the maximum number of deaths.

Few Incendiary Bombs.

Comparatively few incendiary bombs were used, and these were of little effect. It is believed that the strong construction of Barcelona's roofs was responsible for the failure to use more of this type, which weigh only 35 pounds, although in a city whose houses are flimsily constructed, they would be useful in starting dangerous conflagrations.

An important footnote to the bombing of March 16-17-18 is the high incidence of death to wounded. The official figures show 875 dead—512 men, 245 women and 118 children—and 1500 wounded. This is at the rate of more than one to two.

If, as has been advanced, Barcelona was used as a testing ground for Italians and Germans to gauge the effect of improved technique in air raids, it produced results that must be gratifying to the technicians.

Ex-New York City Taxi Drivers.

Hy and Dave blew in one morning to enjoy the breakfast hospitality of the Hotel Majestic, consisting of one demi-tasse of black coffee and a hunk of black bread. They had just come from the front to pick up supplies in Barcelona for the International Brigade. They were bearded and filthy, but very cheerful in the prospect of a shave and a bath, a change of clothing and the exquisite pleasure of puffing an American cigarette. (The combat troops are smoking grass and tea.) Hy said he hailed from Coney Island and Dave came from around the docks and both were ex-New York taxicab drivers.

Hy and Dave were avid for news of the world, wondering what, if anything, France, Great Britain and the United States were going to do to save the Spanish Republic. In default of that, to use their idiom, it looked like curtains.

They described the terrific push of the Fascist forces on the Aragon front and the enormous numbers of tanks, big guns and airplanes that were being used against the Loyalist troops. It was, in their minds, not a question of man power—Dave said, "Give us one man to their two and an even break in materials and we'll go to town." Hy said, "We need 100 airplanes and need them quickly." They both agreed that the airplane was playing the decisive factor at this stage of the war.

Hy and Dave said that the International Brigade had been at the front for as long as four months at a time, in contrast to the World War practice of relieving troops after two or three weeks in the lines, and that the nervous exhaustion was too much for human beings to bear. Particularly nerve-racking was the constant machine-gun fire from planes flying at altitudes low enough, said Dave, to throw hand grenades at them. But hand grenades and rifles are no protection and hour after hour, day after day, squadrons of planes flying from all directions and pumping bullets into the backs of men's necks will wreck the morale of the stoutest troops.

Hy said he no longer was capable of undisturbed sleep. "When I hear the sound of a motor—any kind of motor—at night, I have to strain my ears until I identify what kind it is and only when I find it is not an airplane engine can I go back to sleep."

Anecdotes of the War.

They had some anecdotes. Dave was driving a truck along the road when he ran into a wave of Fascist infantry, having unwittingly got behind the enemy's lines. There was only one thing to do—give it the gas and bull through. "They fired point blank at three feet," he said, "and all I got was a cut knuckle from flying glass."

A Spanish Government medical officer innocently drove his ambulance into a town and walked into a cantina to have a drink. In the cantina were some men in Fascist uniforms, the town having been lost by the Government some days before. The bartender whispered to him to take a seat in a dark corner and, when the Fascists left, showed him the quickest way back to the Loyalist lines.

Hy and Dave had a fine day in Barcelona, got shaved, bathed and freshly-clothed (Dave spent 10 days' pay—125 pesetas—for a new pair of shoes) and left to spend the night in their covered and camouflaged truck on some quiet country road—under lousy blankets.

Trees As Plane Fire Cover.

The road from Barcelona to Tortosa is lined, for a large part of the way, with giant plane trees whose branches arch over the road. This is of practical, as well as of esthetic, value. It affords cover against machine-gun fire. When we started out, in a dilapidated Citroen, the chauffeur pulled back a sliding panel in the roof of the car and tilted his rear-vision mirror upward.

I understood this maneuver. I had met a 19-year-old Spanish girl in Barcelona who had taken this trip a few weeks before. It was on a clear, moonlit night. She and her companions heard a low-flying plane behind them. They stopped the car and ran for the ditch at the side of the road and lay down flat. The girl was wearing a light-colored coat. They heard a burst of machine-gun bullets as the plane flew past. Four times the plane returned, pouring its lethal stream at the figures in the ditch. "To make sure he had got us," she explained. When the plane finally left, they drove to the nearest town and had a big meal, feeling, as the girl said, that "we were born again." The machine-gunner's marksmanship was good. There were five bullet-holes in the girl's coat.

A similar story was told me by Bob Allen, an ambulance driver, who was returning to base hospital with a cargo of wounded men. A plane dived on him. Allen quickly stopped the ambulance, removed the wounded men to the roadside ditch, just as the plane dived at the ambulance on its return trip. Fortunately, no one was hit.

My companion in the Citroen, a French newspaper man, urged me to notify the chauffeur if I saw or heard a plane, explaining that he had lost two automobiles recently from machine-gun fire, one of which had caught 50 bullet holes in the gasoline tank. "If we are attacked," he said, "leave the car, but do not run too far; just throw yourself into the ditch."

Beautiful Countryside.

The countryside was beautiful with freshly-tilled fields, grape vines cut back for the summer growth, nut and orange groves and olive trees, but the pleasure of the drive was marred as the chauffeur whipped the rickety car up to a speed of 70 miles an hour, dodging around two-wheeled horse-drawn carts filled with farm produce, narrowly missing files of pedestrians, carrying heavy loads on their backs and heads, and charging past trucks loaded with troops and cartridge cases.

We roared through the narrow streets of Hospitalet—Little Hospital. "This place was bombed yesterday," said my companion. Beyond the road was less crowded. We came upon a frame of a burned car which had been machine-gunned a few days before and, a little farther on, saw a truck on which was mounted an anti-aircraft gun, the only sign we had thus far seen of a defense of this harried road, toward which the Fascists were moving in an attempt to get to the sea.

In a few minutes, at a place where the plane trees arched thickly over the road, we came upon a concentration of military trucks filled with men resting and having a bite to eat.

Hardly a House Intact.

Then Tortosa. A more depressing sight could hardly be imagined. Here had been a lovely city of more than 35,000 population which had been subjected to such an intense bombardment for a month that hardly a house remained intact. The inhabitants who had not been killed had fled. I saw one old man making his way through the ruins, an old woman and a boy, and these were the only civilians I saw. We crossed the bridge over the Ebro, since blown up by retreating loyalists, but at that time untouched, though all of the houses around it on both sides of the river had been pulverized.

Asleep Under the Sun.

We stopped for gas and oil at a military depot on the outskirts of town and found truckloads of soldiers who had just returned from the front, which was at that time about 15 or 20 miles away. Many of them lay dead asleep in the trucks in apparent oblivion to the hot sun which beat down upon them. Others, in ragged uniforms, dusty and dirty, sat around in the shade of the trees as the trucks were fueled. I noticed one chap who sat with his blanket roll, a suitcase and a child's tricycle, of which the seat was wrapped in tissue paper as though it had just been purchased at a store.

Two days had elapsed since the last bombing. Across the road was a freshly-made shell crater, which had missed the gasoline station by about 30 feet. Like the Ebro bridge, the station led a charmed life.

At this point, the Citroen decided to break down and, while it was being repaired with bailing wire and clothesline, I met a young Englishman, a member of the International Brigade, who was looking for his outfit after a tour in hospital. He had been wounded in the retreat from Belchite. No one at Tortosa knew where he could find the brigade. We asked him if he had any food and he produced some bread and two hard-boiled eggs from a parcel wrapped in newspaper. He offered us a share of it with princely generosity, though he had no notion where he was going to get his next meal—certainly not in the ghost city of Tortosa.

We started back for Tarragona, stopping at each of five towns to try to get something to eat, but the nearest approach was the offer of a handful of rice.

Attack on British Ship.

In Tarragona, I saw the British lion's tail being twisted. In the harbor were five British ships loaded with coal, a non-contraband material, among them the Stanwell, which had been hit three times by bombs, killing three British sailors. The remainder of the crew left the ship for the supposed security of a Tarragona hotel but, when that was also bombed, they demanded to be taken home aboard a British cruiser. Along with them went their captain, leaving with the Stanwell only the former chief officer, who now was captain and crew together.

The owners of the Stanwell had sent a lawyer to Tarragona to draw up a protest against the attacks on the shipping to be signed, if possible, by all of the five masters. We met him there when we arrived and we were invited aboard one of the ships where the protest was being framed. It read as follows:

Secretary State, Foreign Affairs,
Foreign Office, London, Eng.

Undermentioned captains British vessels in Tarragona Harbor believe ships being subjected to deliberate attack stop nationality vessels plainly visible stop no military objective in vicinity yet bombs daily dropped around ships by insurgent aircraft stop request immediate action otherwise serious loss of British lives will undoubtedly occur.

I asked Capt. Robertson, our host, how he was enjoying Tarragona. It was an unhappy conversational gambit. He replied heatedly that he had been at the dock for 12 days and had been unable to discharge a ton of his cargo. In that time, there had been 28 bombings, with bombs landing so close to his ship that his men had been knocked flat by concussion and one had been blown overboard.

"Here is the kind of trinket I am finding on my deck," he said, handing over a fragment of air bomb about three inches square with ugly jagged edges.

"And only yesterday the Fascist bombers came over five times."

The Captain was visibly annoyed, likewise perplexed that the mighty British Government was doing nothing to protect British shipping.

Tactics of the Bombers.

With nothing to do but loll in his cabin and wait for air raids, he had some interesting stories about the tactics of the Fascist bombing planes. Here, as at Barcelona, they come in very high, cut their motors and dump their loads.

"The other day," said the Captain, "a lone Fascist bomber came low over town for a change, and it was very pleasing to see three Government pursuit planes come out of the clouds and dive down upon it. The bomber headed for the mountains with the pursuit planes after it and, as soon as all four had disappeared, three big German bombers appeared from another direction, released their bombs and were gone."

Here he reached for the whisky bottle.

The business of the moment, that of getting five signatures to the telegram of protest, was a little delayed because one of the five captains was being persuaded to leave an underground dugout which he had established as his headquarters.

As the signatures were being written and we were on our second highball, we heard the moaning of the sirens. "To the chasers," said the British lawyer, raising his glass. Two of the Captains rose, excused themselves and returned to their ships. Our host said: "Well, gentlemen, there's no use tempting fate, is there? Let's go below." So we put out the kerosene lamps and went to a saloon on lower deck, closed the portholes and poured a drink. There was no light except for a shielded electric flashlight.

In the brief pauses of the British lawyer's scholarly and eloquent lecture on maritime law and the need for protecting British shipping, we heard the dull roar of bombs falling somewhere up the coast.

In a few minutes, the "All Clear" signal was sounded, and we climbed back into the Citroen, leaving the British captains to reflect on the contemptuous manner in which the Fascist bombers were holding the Union Jack.

About 10 miles out of Tarragona, the Citroen suddenly released a cloud of oil fumes, coughed loudly and quit. We hailed a passing truck and in a couple of hours were back in the streets of Barcelona, dimly lit with blue lamps.

Conduct of the People.

The writer, who was in Paris during the World War and w witness to the feverish gaiety night life there, was interested notice that in Barcelona there few signs of the moral letdow that usually accompanies the back wash of a war. After nightfal the streets are deserted, as a most of the cafes. There are, course, some places like the Hot Ritz, where there is music an dancing at night, but they are fe There is practically no solicitatio on the streets and I failed to o serve a single case of drunkenne

There is no glitter or glamour this war, no fancy uniforms, bands playing, no parades—unle the last term could be applied a pathetic procession I witness in the streets of Barcelona youngsters of 16, 17 and 18, hig school kids, who had just volu teered for front line service as R publican Spain makes its last stan

It is a war—on the Republican sid at least—fought by men in tered and lousy uniforms, by suffering from nervous and physi exhaustion. It is a war where th Fascists machine-gun young wome riding in little automobiles. Whe they mutilate defenseless civilian and crush the bones of children lik Carmen Ferrer, the one with th black eyes and pigtails.

Science Studies the Possibility of Foretelling the Future

Experiments Carried On at Duke University Suggest That Certain Individuals May Have the Ability to Make Limited Predictions.

Dr. J. B. Rhine (right) recording a student's prediction of the order of "ESP" cards. The deck, shown face down on the table, was shuffled and then compared with the listed order of the prediction.

Professor George Zirkle of Hanover College, who scored the record high in tests for telepathy and precognition at Duke University.

A screened test of ability to foretell the order of cards, conducted at Tarkio College, Missouri.

DOWN through the ages soothsayers and crystal ball gazers have had a powerful hold on popular imagination. Even today fortune tellers abound in some communities, Wellston, for example, where they are as thick as filling stations. But learned men usually have looked down their noses at anyone claiming to be able to predict the future. Now, however, a scientific laboratory has come to the support of those who think there is such a thing as prophetic ability. And the laboratory, at Duke University, is headed by Dr. J. B. Rhine, the same Dr. Rhine whose reports on the possibility that there may be something to telepathy (mind reading) and clairvoyance (second sight) have kept the psychological world embattled for five years.

Dr. Rhine is quite cautious in his first report, published last Monday in the Journal of Parapsychology. And well he might be, since his earlier announcements have met with such a storm of disagreement.

Although the report is only just now being published, Dr. Rhine has been studying precognition, as he calls it, since 1933. He apparently waited until now to start publishing his results in order to be sure of his facts and to wait for supporters to come to his aid in the controversy stirred up by his studies of telepathy and clairvoyance. His critics among psychologists have maintained that his previous studies were in error because they were mathematically unsound. But now prominent mathematicians have come to Dr. Rhine's defense, saying that his mathematics are correct. Having somewhat squelched the opposition, temporarily at least, Dr. Rhine is ready to go ahead with periodic reports on what he has found out about ability of some persons to tell in advance what is going to happen.

He tested them in his parapsychology laboratory at Durham, North Carolina, with decks of cards, not ordinary playing cards, but extra-sensory perception (ESP) decks of 25 cards marked with a circle, a rectangle, a plus mark, a star or wavy lines. The card-guessing game was necessary because that is the best method found by the Duke investigators to measure extra-sensory perception for check-up by standard formula.

Forty-nine persons who had previously demonstrated perception outside the senses —"extra sensory"— were asked to predict how cards would appear after a deck was cut or shuffled. They proved to Dr. Rhine's satisfaction that they could foretell the future by guessing correctly the order in which the cards would appear far more accurately than mere chance would allow.

Fully aware that what satisfied him may not satisfy others, Dr. Rhine said about his research: "The reader is not asked to believe it; but he is earnestly invited to consider it. If he cannot himself help to test these hypotheses, or offer constructive suggestions for better test procedures, he should await the further repetition of those who can. The truth must come ultimately from the laboratories, not from public disputation. In brief, less speculation, more experiment!"

He began his own experimenting, he said, because there had been no convincing scientific study and verdict on prophecy, in spite of the widespread popular belief in it. "It is true, of course, that scientific thought in general would tend to discourage belief in precognition, but likewise would it at different stages of the history of science have discouraged belief in most of the important subsequent scientific discoveries," he wrote.

"It is therefore a question for scientific consideration if only in the interest of social enlightenment and mass mental hygiene. The mere remote possibility of the occurrence of precognition is serious enough to fire the dullest imagination."

AND having been imaginative enough to undertake study of clairvoyance, he felt he had to go on with a study of prophecy, since the two subjects have always been intimately associated. He felt he had proved there was some possibility of the existence of second sight, therefore he felt justified in studying precognition in the laboratory.

He began in December, 1933, and has continued the study down to the present. A young man who had had remarkable success in the earlier experiments in extra-sensory perception was asked to try to predict the order of a pack of cards as it would be after shuffling. He wrote a list of 25 card symbols as he thought they would appear, then cut the pack of cards five times in random fashion. Working alone, he ran through the deck 106 times. His average score was 7.1 hits per run of 25. This was significant because the law of chance would have given him only five hits out of 25.

Then five other persons experienced in extra-sensory perception tests were encouraged to play the new variation on the old Duke card game, except that they were asked to record their guesses, then shuffle the pack, instead of cutting it. All but one obtained significant scores, that is, better than chance would allow. Three of the six persons in this preliminary testing, incidentally, were graduate assistants in the psychology department at Duke.

The next step was to introduce an observer into the situation, instead of allowing each subject to work alone. Dr. Rhine became the observer. He cut a pack of cards and the first young man whose score had been significant recorded 25 predictions—his guesses of the future order of the 25 cards. The subject made five random cuts in the deck with the cards still face down. They were turned over one by one and compared with the prediction. The score again was beyond the realm of chance.

After that further tests were made involving various methods of cutting and shuffling cards, but it soon became apparent that it did not matter whether the cards were cut or shuffled or just how the shuffling was done—the scores with these superior "guinea pigs" were still better than mere guesswork.

Just to make sure that the first six tests weren't accidents, three other persons who had demonstrated ability at clairvoyance and telepathy were tested at prophecy. Their scores, too, were termed "highly significant."

Convinced by these preliminary tests, the Duke parapsychology department began a large-scale experiment. Forty-nine subjects were selected, all normal persons. Thirty-two of them were children chosen from a grade school on the basis of superiority in earlier ESP tests. Nine were students at Duke University who had also shown marked extra-sensory perception ability. One was a professional medium, three were housewives and one a city engineer. Part of the series conducted with the medium was done with the subject in trance, the so-called control personality co-operating, with no difference in results.

The 49 persons took 113,075 trials. Their average score was only 5.14 hits per 25 cards. However, over so long a series the total gives a deviation of 614 above the mean chance expectation, Dr. Rhine pointed out. "This means a critical ratio of 4.5, which represents approximate odds of over 400,000 to one that such a deviation would not occur by chance alone," he declared. "The chance hypothesis is therefore excluded from further consideration."

Having disposed of the hypothesis that the scores were no better than simple luck, he went on to describe how another possible source of error was eliminated. The subjects were not allowed to handle the cards. Usually they were shuffled face down by an examiner who sat far away from the subject.

In making his guesses, the subject either wrote down the symbols or called them orally to a recorder. After the calls were written down, the pack of cards was shuffled and checked against the record of the guesser's predictions.

In spite of these precautions, there was one very disturbing element, Dr. Rhine admitted. The more the precautions the lower the scores, that is, when the experimenter took over the card shuffling, scores dropped. But there are other possible explanations for the decline, he asserted. One is that some subjects believed they were helped in some mysterious fashion by contact with the cards, and liked to be allowed to shuffle the pack. They didn't know why holding the cards face down helped them guess better; they only knew that it did.

"The results are sufficiently peculiar not to be due to chance," Dr. Rhine asserted. "It might be said with equally good ground that sensory cues were not guiding the subject in making his calls, since sensory cues of future events are not conceivable.

"If the experiments were conducted properly and the results handled with due care, there is no alternative to the conclusion that extra-chance pre-shuffling calling of card order has been shown by some subjects. Whether the number of investigations suffices to assure ample confirmation and elimination of possible error and to allay sufficiently any concern as to the experimenter's good faith is a matter for individual judgment.

"IN ANY case this report adds further strength to the case for extra-sensory mode of perception. That is, against the background of the great amount of work already reported, in which the ESP hypothesis has been confirmed, the weight of these further 113,075 trials which are safeguarded even better against sensory cues by the subsequent shuffling is very considerable indeed.

"If the results are not due to chance, or sensory cues, or persistent error, or deception, there is no ready-to-hand alternative to the view that ESP is not time-limited," he declared.

And, in the midst of the study, new questions arose in the minds of the psychologists. Was it possible, they wondered, that the testers by extra-sensory means were stacking the cards in favor of the subjects? Were they aware of the concealed card order as well as of the call order to a degree sufficient to stack the deck somewhat favorably? Only a little favoring by the tester was needed to change the score considerably. Although the possibility of knowing how the cards were arranged, even though their faces were concealed, may seem far-fetched to the layman, it didn't to those in charge of the experiment. They therefore began studying to see if there is such a thing as an "ESP shuffle."

They have not finished that investigation. "Whichever hypothesis proves to be correct —precognition or the ESP shuffle—a new advance may properly be claimed for the research," Dr. Rhine wrote.

But he was disturbed about publishing his results and rousing a new critical storm. In an editorial note, he said: "Although we regard the report as a very tentative and far from exciting one, the importance of the question makes the venture of publishing it seem somewhat bold. Possibly it may be regarded as rashly inviting incredulity upon a field of research only just emerging from the shadow of the gruelling criticism incident

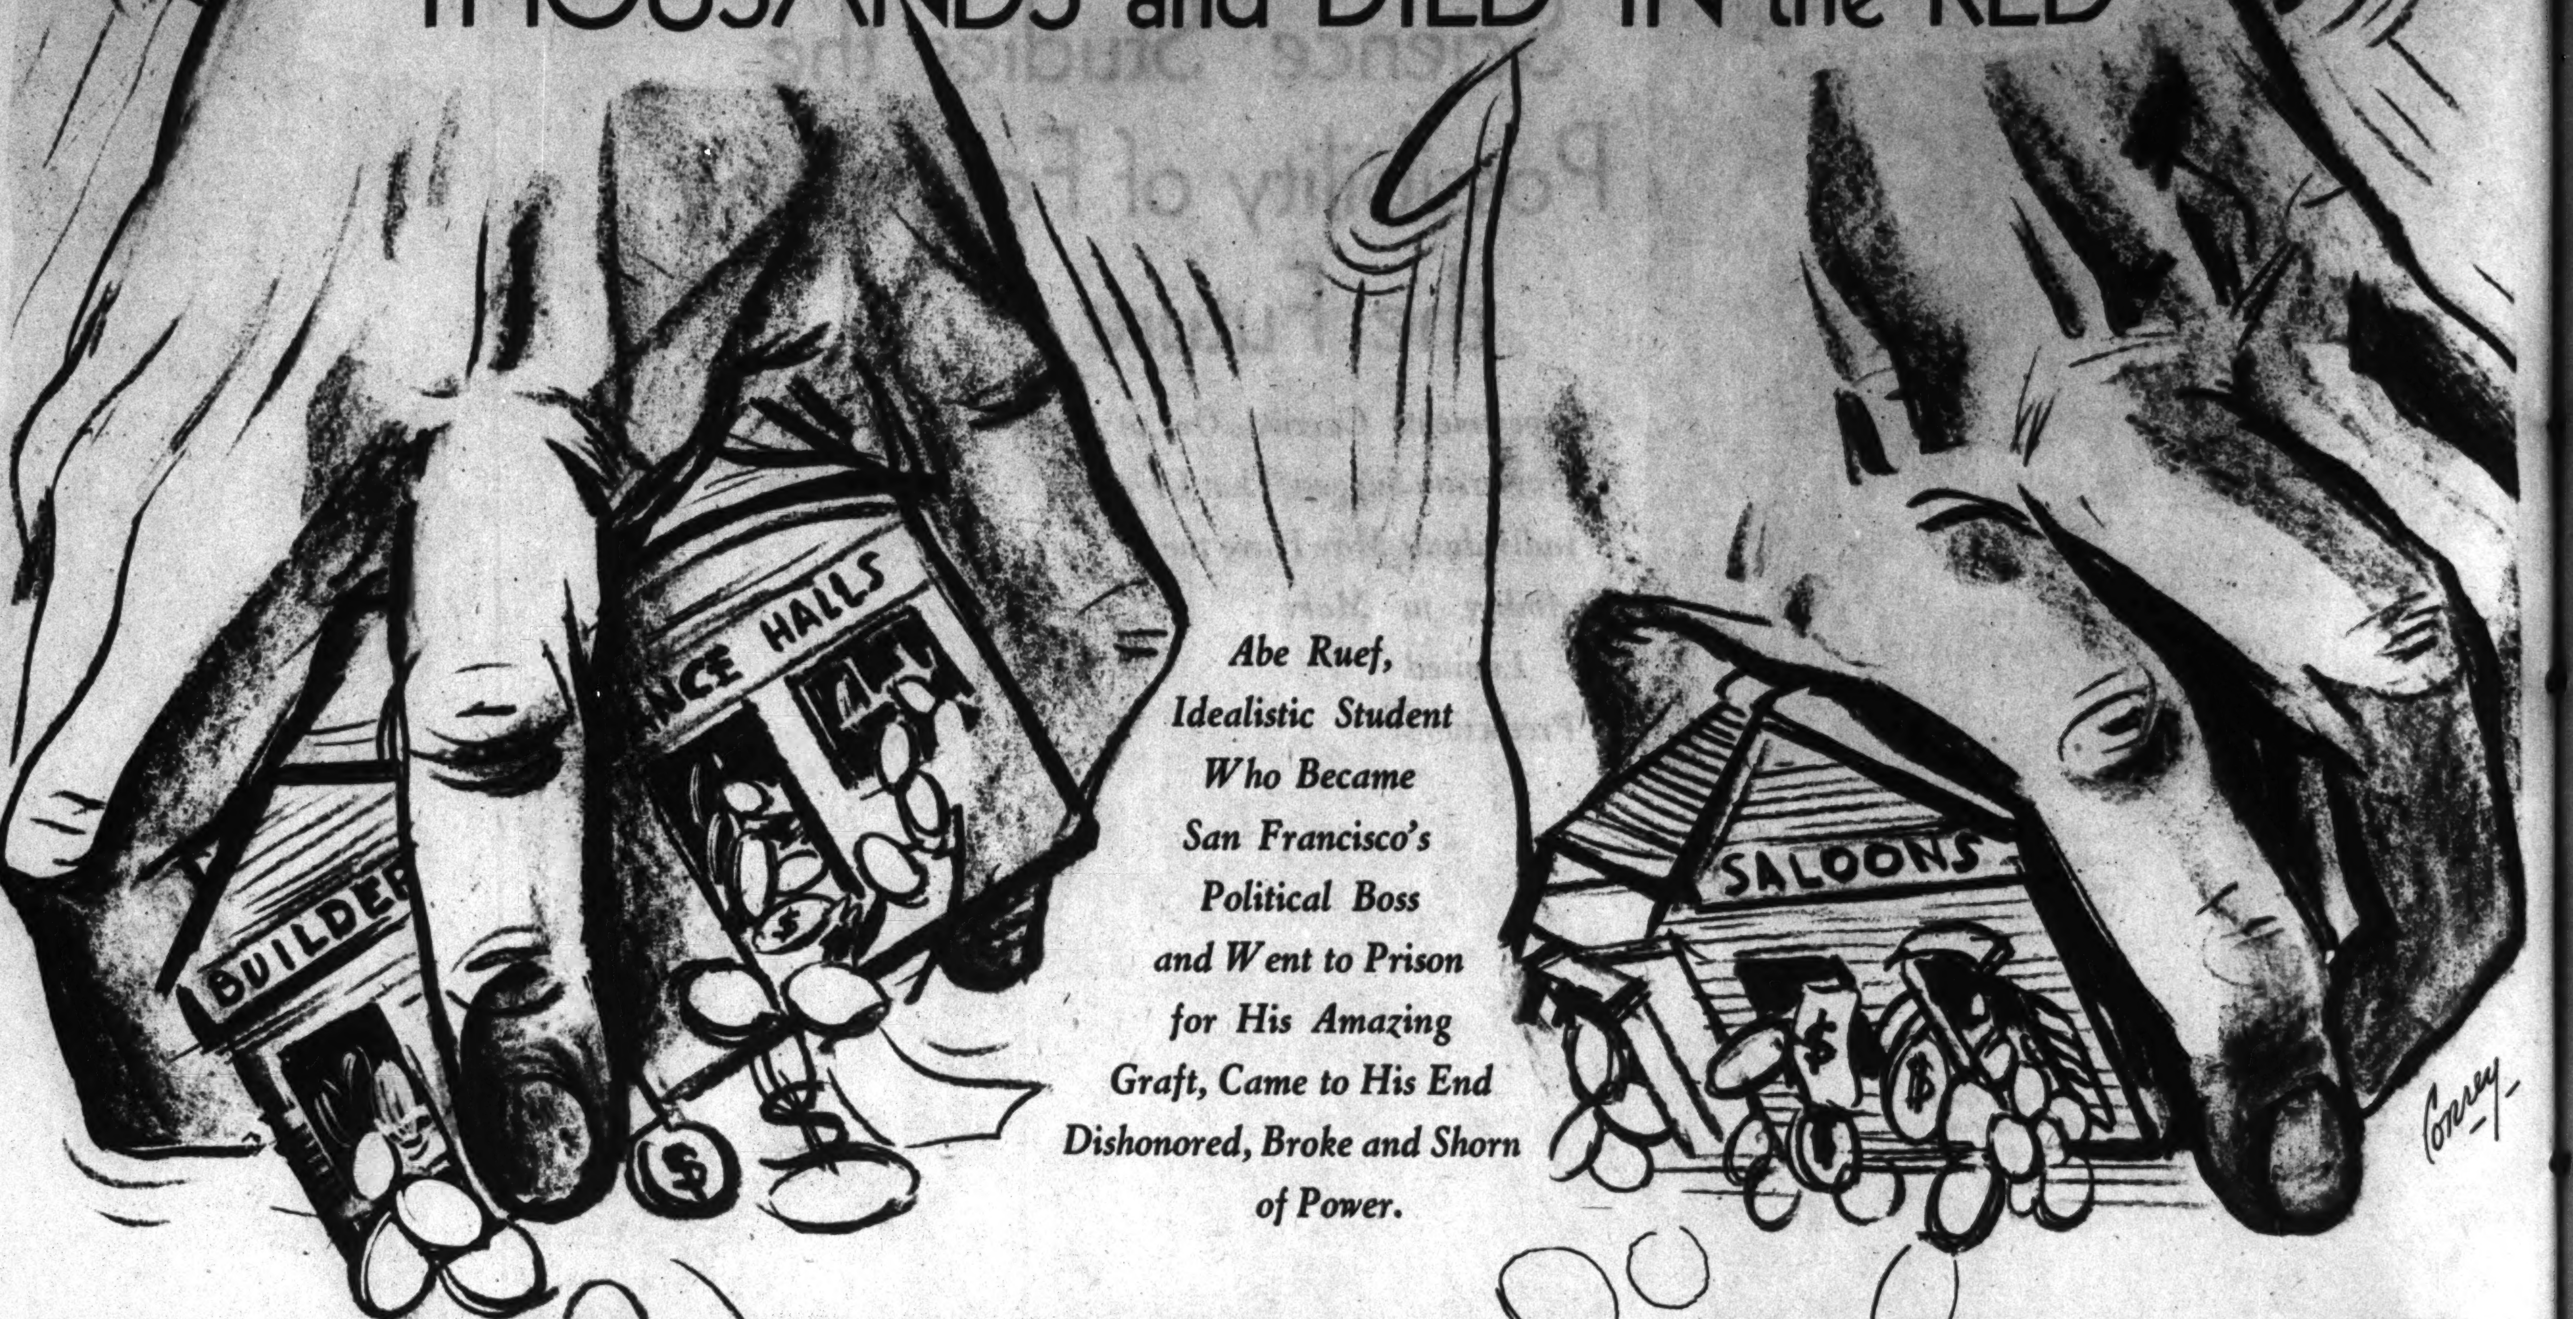
The BOODLER who GRABBED THOUSANDS and DIED 'IN the RED'



Abe Ruef, Idealistic Student Who Became San Francisco's Political Boss and Went to Prison for His Amazing Graft, Came to His End Dishonored, Broke and Shorn of Power.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

SAN FRANCISCO.

BEFORE good citizens in San Francisco had regained control of their city, Abe Ruef came to power and created a political Frankenstein that first poured the public's gold into his private coffers, then cast him in prison, stripping from him not only honor, which he despised, but wealth, a thing he loved. An inventory of his estate filed last month disclosed that assets were wiped out by debts of $100,000.

To account logically for the amazing rise of Ruef, it must be recalled that San Francisco was "Big Town" when the rest of the West Coast was rancho, mining camp and desert. Money was cheap, as cheap as life, and both were held lightly by the early residents of this thriving seaport, who tolerated a district so shameless for squandering sailors, world travelers, gold miners and profligates, that the morality of the world is shocked in retrospect.

No product of the Barbary Coast or slums was Abe Ruef. At his trial for extortion—after the rats he had placed in office had bared their teeth at him from the witness stand—no plea was made to the jury that he was a product of evil environment, tutored only in the Fagin-staffed school of machine politics.

Ruef, son of honorable parents, attended the University of California, winning reputation there as a liberal-minded idealistic student, happily endowed with wit and imagination.

He began as a lawyer, and a good one. His practice grew, but was not lucrative as the young honor graduate had expected. His opportunity, in the form of a bitter strike lost by labor, came in the door and his idealism flew out the window. A teamsters' walkout had fallen short of its objective; labor, disgruntled, dissatisfied with its leadership, blamed intervention by city officials. Ruef struck while the iron was hot, and organized almost single handed the independent "Union Labor Party," later referred to as the Workingman's Party.

Ruef, who never held or sought political office, guided politically by instinct alone, thereby created with his bare hands a monster that kept the feet of his hirelings on public desks and their hands in public pockets for nearly eight years. The lion's share of the graft he appropriated for himself. He became rich, power beyond normal comprehension was his—ruler virtually of all he surveyed.

Blinded as other false gods by faith in his invulnerability, he failed even to slow the pace of his greedy henchmen when an investigation, backed by the President of the United States, was begun into the incredible mess of San Francisco graft and corruption. Before he had swallowed the last bitter pill, most of his gains had gone to lawyers in a futile effort to escape conviction. The remainder was spent in his ultimately successful attempts for pardon. Strangely enough, the same newspaper editor who had inspired the public to rise against Ruef led the movement to obtain the pardon. Perhaps it was because Ruef was the only one of a dozen or more inflicted who went to the penitentiary.

The late Abe Ruef.

Heedless Republicans had turned down Ruef's offer of labor support before he organized it as an independent faction, and old line Democrats never heard of him. They were astounded in 1901 when the Workingman's candidate for Mayor was elected. The new Mayor was Eugene E. Schmitz, a black-bearded orchestra leader at a downtown theater, other qualifications unknown. "When he was elected every burglar alarm in town went off," a sage later remarked.

The boodling was held in check for nearly two years by virtue of the fact that there were several holdovers on the Board of Supervisors who failed to see eye to eye with Schmitz and Ruef. This obstacle in the path of the Boss's progress was removed at the next election when his party gained a majority on the Board. With them into office went an assortment of nonentities and worse, who soon had things running the way they should—for them. One supervisor, as a sad example, was Tom Lonergan, who occasionally drove a bakery wagon.

Tom was playing billiards when he learned that he had been selected for the Ruef ticket. Tom was playing billiards when he learned that he had been elected. It would appear that except for visits to the bank, which increased after his elevation to public office, Tom kept right on playing billiards until reform swept him back to anonymity from the expensive Cliff House, where he was wont to tempt his palate with breakfast of champagne and eggs and other odd combinations.

Subsequent investigations disclosed that after 1903 the municipal government gouged any and all who were so unfortunate as to deal at City Hall. Builders were shaken down for permits. Utility franchises were sold for as much as the boys at the Hall could get.

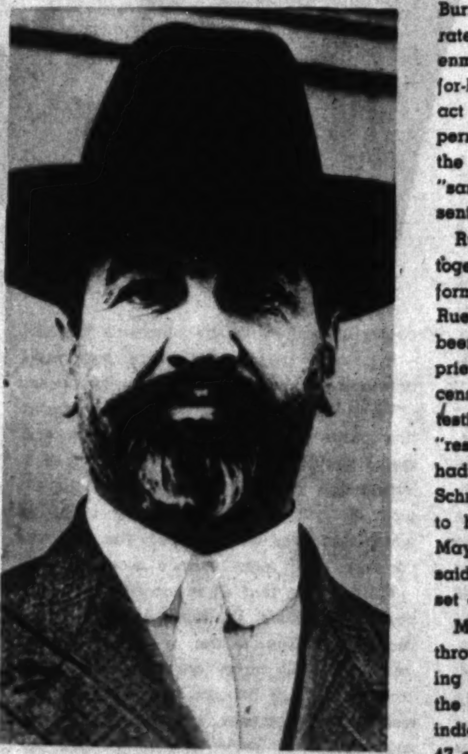
Not a single beer sign was hung, it was said, unless someone "inside" received a bribe. Some ordinances were put on the books for the sole purpose of exacting tribute. Each city inspection was accompanied by graft.

Then there was the "municipal crib." That noted brothel, it was disclosed, had so many partner-owners who held public office that it was virtually recognized as a city institution. Other immoral establishments, barrooms and gambling houses ran unmolested—for a price.

Even Ruef was contemptuous of his grasping associates who ever sought new ways to peel the public's hide. Once he remarked that his supervisors were so hungry for graft "they would eat the paint off of houses." The boodling went on without restraint, the boodlers undisturbed by whispering campaigns among honest citizens and hints of grand jury investigations. The corruption was completely over-shadowed by the 1906 earthquake. Mayor Schmitz almost justified his existence by his surprising competence in the emergency. He personally directed reconstruction committees, exhausting himself physically at the task. Mayor Schmitz's relief lines received his personal attention; he provided shelter for the homeless.

But as soon as the paint was dry on the newly erected houses, the "paint eaters" got busy again. Before distracted citizens were able to direct attention to public business, an unwanted street car franchise was "sold" to the company, a telephone company franchise which had been bitterly opposed was jammed through. After these loads, straw upon straw was saddled on the camel's back until, finally, the breaking point was reached. A Sir Galahad appeared to lead knights of reform against the dark forces of corruption.



The late Mayor Eugene E. Schmitz.

THE shining armor was donned by Francis J. Heney, formerly the fighting Attorney-General of Arizona, who had made a name as an enemy of public enemies. His efforts nearly cost him his life, but he recovered from a wound inflicted by an assassin and lived to serve honorably as Superior Court Judge at Los Angeles. His followers and financiers were the "Committee of Civic Regenerators," including Rudolph Spreckels, sugar tycoon. At the direction of President Theodore Roosevelt, the United States Secret Service placed William J. Burns at his disposal. Heney made public oath to put Ruef in prison.

Somewhat flabbergasted by this show of opposition, Mayor Schmitz made hasty departure for Europe "to get ideas" on further reconstruction activities, leaving Ruef to carry on the defense. The Acting Mayor, a cog in the Ruef machine, with characteristic gall ordered the removal of District Attorney William H. Langdon, who had armed Heney with authority by appointing him as assistant. Then Ruef was appointed to succeed Langdon. It was as simple as that to stop the grand jury investigation, although the jury remained in session, idly waiting for Ruef to bring in evidence against Ruef. Schmitz, violinist-Mayor, returned from Europe to have a good laugh with his boss.

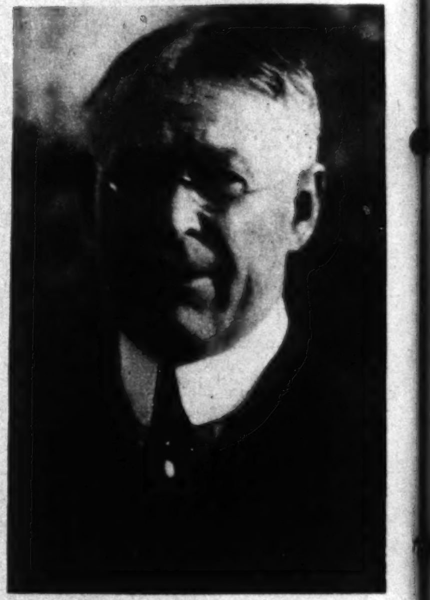
Later Langdon was restored to office when his removal was declared illegal.

Unable to control their greedy impulses until the heat abated, the ring continued to graft, sneering meanwhile at the impotent Burns and Heney. One night the two underrated investigators spread the net that later enmeshed Ruef. Lonergan, the champagne-for-breakfast supervisor, was caught in the act of accepting a bribe for a skating rink permit. He, and an accomplice member of the board, seized the straw of immunity and "sang" to the grand jury. The vocal chorus sent detectives in search of Ruef.

Ruef and Mayor Schmitz were questioned together. No admissions passed through the former band leader's black beard, but after Ruef learned that he and his puppet had been indicted for accepting $40,000 from proprietors of "French restaurants" for liquor licenses, he showed the white feather. He testified that the money was paid by the "restaurant" owners because their permits had been revoked on moral grounds. Schmitz had to change the police commission to have the permits issued. He and the Mayor divided the money between them, he said. Each received a five-year term, later set aside on technicalities.

Meanwhile, informers continued to stream through the grand jury room, leaving damning evidence, in return for immunity, against the men who had given orders. Stacks of indictments were returned, 129 against Ruef, 47 against Mayor Schmitz, 207 in all, including some against officers of the street railway, gas and two telephone companies, in connection with franchise "deals."

Supervisor James Gallagher, one of Ruef's go-betweens, swore that $200,000 had changed hands before the street car franchise was put over: Gallagher kept $15,000, Supervisor Andrew Wilson got $10,000 and $65,000 was divided among 14 other supervisors; to Schmitz and Ruef went $110,000.



Francis J. Heney.

The time-worn defense device of attacking the prosecution was pressed in service by the harassed boodlers: Burns and Heney had obtained confessions by third degree methods, Spreckels had a personal ax to grind, it was a "newspaper case" because one paper had published secret grand jury proceedings. The propaganda had some effect, but it was dissipated quickly when Supervisor Gallagher's home was bombed after he went to the grand jury.

DURING Ruef's extortion trial, Heney was shot, and gravely wounded. He was never convinced that the assassin, Mooris Haas, a rejected juror, had not acted for others. Unbiased conclusions, however, were that Haas was driven by a grudge. He had sought excuse from service when summoned to act as juror in the Ruef case, because years before he had served a term in prison for embezzlement, and had lived it down. The trial Judge thought that Heney would strike him off because both Haas and Ruef were Jewish.

Instead, the prosecutor disqualified him by recalling the prison stripes, and flaming with chagrin and humiliation Haas left the courtroom. After months of brooding he came back, drew a pistol and shot Heney at counsel table. He effectively quieted lynch talk, by ending his life several days later in his cell.

The echo of his shots hardly had died away when Ruef's Chief of Police, William J. Biggy, disappeared in the bay on his return from a launch trip to Oakland, where he had told a friend he intended to resign. Three years later, William Murphy, driver of the launch, went mad, shouted again and again: "I don't know who did it, but I swear I didn't."

Heney was succeeded as graft prosecutor by Hiram Johnson, who went on to the United States Senate. Later Heney was defeated for District Attorney by Charles M. Fickert, who went down in history as the man who prosecuted Tom Mooney. Ruef went to San Quentin in 1911, came out in 1915, and lived, hook or crook, by dealing in promotions and real estate until 1936. There still were thousands of dollars in his name—but the debts of $100,000 liquidated the assets. Abe Ruef, boodler extraordinary, died broke. Mayor Schmitz was tried, and acquitted when Gallagher failed to appear. He served a subsequent term as City Supervisor and died in 1928, shorn of his power, his good name and his black beard.

How Federal Operatives, in Painstaking, Step-by-Step Fashion, Dammed the Flow of Bogus Money That Had Its Source in St. Louis.

By KEITH KERMAN

A Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

WITH the sentencing of three men in Federal Court here the other day, there came to a conclusion an important counterfeiting case and a masterly job of espionage. The battle of the Secret Service against the counterfeiting ring began and ended in St. Louis, but it was waged along a front extending almost halfway across the continent. From Kansas City to New York, alert but unobtrusive men watched, followed and listened to other men until they knew enough. Then, all along the line, the watchers closed in simultaneously. Arrests were made in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Michigan as well as here. And the thoroughness with which the espionage job was done was attested by the fact that of 12 persons indicted, 11 have been sentenced; one of the culprits died while awaiting trial—and after confessing his guilt. Six of the accused men pleaded guilty.

The roundup of the gang and seizure of its counterfeiting paraphernalia occurred in time to frustrate a scheme to fleece the public out of $100,000 with spurious $20 bills. Approximately 100 of the bogus bank notes had been put in circulation, and more than 1000 of a new issue were ready for passing when Treasury Department operatives stepped in and grabbed the handsome certificates, the plates and press with which they were made, and the men who made them.

Victory for the law enforcers was accomplished largely by steady, patient, painstaking work and close co-operation among the many officers engaged in the job. But along with the day by day drudgery there were such detective thriller elements in the work as impersonation, code letters, and the surreptitious movie photographing of suspects. And a special, almost fantastic interest was given to the case by one of its principal figures, the Reverend Sophrony Balaban, priest of the Serbian Eastern Orthodox Church. Bearded, dignified, spectacled, Father Balaban had served Holy Trinity Church of St. Louis as pastor for 13 years when he was exposed as a leader of the counterfeiting ring—an exposure which has resulted in his losing his pastorate, his priesthood and his freedom.

This case may be said to have begun before it actually started. Months before its first phony bill was turned out the Secret Service had two of the makers under surveillance.

That came about in this way: Late in 1936 the St. Louis office of the Secret Service heard—from one of those confidential sources of information which all law enforcement agencies have—that there was a fellow in town who was preparing to manufacture some bogus money. Raymond A. Horton, then agent in charge here—later transferred to New York—got a look at the fellow and recognized him as Mike Markalj, an experienced counterfeiter. Agent Horton was surprised. Mike was supposed to be in his native Yugoslavia, to which he had been deported in 1926 for a bit of counterfeiting in New York. It was to be discovered presently that Markalj—known to officers here as Maslek—had slipped back into this country from Canada in 1934, with the assistance of friends.

A watch was placed on Markalj and it was soon discovered that he was exceedingly chummy with a fellow-countryman named Pete Klickovich—who also chose to be known here by another name than his own; Pete Osula he was called then. Secret Service agents trailing the hard-faced pair noted that they appeared to be domiciled in a house on Park avenue. Lacking conclusive evidence as to what progress had been made in the counterfeiting plot and the extent of its ramifications, the guardians of the honor of the currency awaited developments. They could have reported Markalj to the immigration authorities and had him deported again, but that would have left them with the task of trying to discover the identity of the man who would take Mike's place as technician for the gang. They preferred to let Mike linger a while and unwittingly help them unravel the entire plot.

A photograph made of Majatich (left) in a St. Louis filling station by a Federal operative who pretended to be reading a newspaper in a nearby car.

ON August 14, 1937, the case came to life again. A new counterfeit $20 bank note was spotted by a bank here and traced by Secret Service agents to a merchant on South Broadway, Sam Silverstein. He had accepted it in good faith from a customer, whom he described. Except that he said the customer spoke with a foreign accent, the description didn't exactly fit anyone who had come under suspicion thus far.

But the bill, the agents felt sure, was one of Mike Markalj's custom-made certificates. Its seductively genuine appearance was a testimonial to his misdirected skill as an engraver. The paper was genuine bank note material; the $20 bill, purportedly issued by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, had been made from a $1 bill whose original impression had been bleached out. And a practiced and suspicious eye was required to detect that the serial number was not quite as evenly spaced as it was on genuine notes; that the shrubbery and certain architectural details in the view of the White House were a shade too dark, and that the shading in President Andrew Jackson's hair had not been exactly reproduced. Most people would have accepted the bill without question and been pretty glad to get it.

Four days later the second note of the new illicit issue was detected at the Mercantile-Commerce National Bank. This spurious bill proved to have been deposited by a druggist, who had made change for it for a nearby tavern keeper. The tavern keeper had received it from a customer who happened to be his parish priest, a man he had known for 15 years, the Reverend Sophrony Balaban.

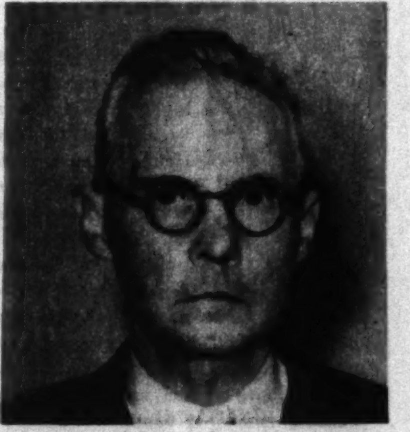
Where did Father Balaban live? He might be able to carry the tracing a step farther back. The address was given—and the agents decided they would not go directly to the priest just yet. For the address was that of the house on Park avenue to which Markalj and Klickovich had been trailed the previous winter. It was difficult to believe that a man of Father Balaban's calling would be mixed up with counterfeiters, but the agents set about checking up on him.

It appeared that Balaban came to this country in 1910 from what was then Serbia and now is Yugoslavia. He had said that he had three children in the old country, two boys and a girl, and that his wife was dead. He had worked as a coal miner in Indiana, then had attended a church school in Pennsylvania and been ordained in the Serbian Eastern Orthodox Church. He had come to St. Louis as pastor of Holy Trinity in 1918; after about 10 years' service here he had moved to New York, then returned here in 1934 at the request of his old congregation. He was 58 years old, had no criminal record, and was esteemed by members of his congregation.

BUT it presently developed that not only had a known counterfeiter been at the house where the priest lodged, but Father Balaban had gone to a Chestnut street hotel where Markalj and Klickovich stayed for a time to see them. Investigators learned that a little bearded man who carried a neat cane had visited the two suspects, and when the informant was taken to observe Father Balaban as he was leaving his church one day, he nodded and said, "That's the man."

A constant watch was placed on the priest, his comings and goings were minutely observed, note was taken of everybody he talked with. Agents Carl Dickson and Charles A. Ellis discovered that the Reverend Sophrony, despite his clerical collar, his beard and his slight contemplative stoop, was a fun-loving fellow. He liked to go around to taverns, drink and be sociable. One of his favorite haunts, it was discovered, was a saloon known as "the Omaha," run by John Majatich. Here was something that fitted into the forming pattern. Majatich had been accused in a counterfeiting case some years before, but had been freed. And Majatich also had visited Markalj and Klickovich at the Chestnut street hotel. The informant on this point had not known Majatich's name, merely that he ran a saloon which was named after some city. Several cities were mentioned by questioning agents, and when "Omaha" was reached, the informant said that was it. After that he picked out Majatich's photograph from a group.

Frank Lehecka.



Robert Davis.

Silverstein also identified Majatich by a photograph. He was the man, said the storekeeper, who had passed the phony $20 bill to him—the first of the spurious issue to appear.

At about this stage of the affair, Leo A. Smugai, agent in charge of the St. Louis office of the Secret Service, asked for reinforcements. Frank J. Wilson, chief of the Secret Service Division of the Treasury Department, and Supervising Agent William H. Davenport of Kansas City, who already were active in direction of the investigation, came to St. Louis for a close-range inspection of the situation. In the course of the next two months they were to make other visits here. And within a few days a supplementary crew of T-men—as the Treasury Department's Secret Service operatives are sometimes called since G-man has become a popular term—from other towns were on the job in St. Louis. Fourteen Secret Service men and six men lent by Chief John Glassco of St. Louis Police conducted a night-and-day espionage of suspected men. Other agents were doing the same thing in Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

Michael J. Murray.

Nikola Zrnic.

More suspects came into the picture here. Nick Bulyat and Robert Davis were buying inks for the ring and distributing some of the bad bills already made. Frank Lehecka also was buying and mixing ink—at the instance, it was reported, of Davis, whom he had known for 40 years. A former policeman, Michael J. Murray, was seen to pass a bogus note. Elsewhere, too, additional men had been identified with the ring's activities. Among them was Nikola Zrnic of Monroe, Michigan, reputed to be an expert engraver as well as a passer of counterfeit bills, and sometimes known as Zrnety.

Markalj had left St. Louis, but was being kept under observation in the East. When Klickovich departed, T-men "carried" him to Chicago—that is, rode on the same train with him and kept an eye on him. But before he left here, an agent had taken motion pictures of him unobserved, and his fingerprints had been "lifted" from objects he had touched.

A meeting between Klickovich and Father Balaban in a secluded spot in Lafayette Park had been closely observed by a hidden detective. Nick Bulyat's visits to a young woman were officially but surreptitiously chaperoned. When John Majatich suddenly drove out of town one night in September,

How a Sleepy but Keen-Eyed Scotland Yard Man Stumbled on a Clew That Led to Paris.

PARIS.

A SCOTLAND YARD detective at the British Channel port of Folkestone was checking passports on a rainy day last October. Everything was going according to routine; he was having a difficult time keeping awake. Near the end of the passenger list he came on one from Denmark. The woman who handed it to him was about 30 years old, brunette, well dressed. The document gave her profession as "circus artist." The detective noticed that the typewriting on the passport didn't look exactly right. The sections typed in by Danish authorities and the British consul at Boulogne were of a type different from the usual.

However, the detective was content with merely asking her a few questions. She told him, among other things, that she was going to join a small traveling circus just outside London. The detective waved her on. Then he telephoned London police to check up on Mrs. Paula Kantorowicz, the circus artist.

In a few days, a Scotland Yard man called on the circus manager and asked him what he knew about Mrs. Paula Kantorowicz. The manager explained that Madame Paula, his star trapeze artist, had gone to France a few weeks ago for a short vacation and had not returned. And this was quite disconcerting because she was one of the main attractions in his circus. It was even more disconcerting to the detective, who hastened back and reported to his superiors that there was no trace of Madame Paula.

The next step was to trace Madame Paula back to Denmark. This resulted in a report from the Danish police that the passport was faked. So, as a routine matter, the London police notified the French police to be on the watch for Madame Paula, the aerialist.

Several weeks later, two Paris detectives were walking along a street in a quiet residential district. Three men strolling a short distance ahead of them attracted their attention, for these men were looking carefully at all the windows they passed. The two detectives recalled that in this very district there had been many robberies. These robberies had been attributed to a criminal known as "Charles the Stiffarm." One of the trio ahead of the detectives had a most obvious stiff arm.

The trio, however, noticed the detectives and jumped into a taxi which shot around the next corner. The detectives hailed another car and followed closely. They saw the car stop in front of an apartment hotel at No. 5, rue Ernest-Lacoste. Not wishing to make an arrest then, the detectives returned to headquarters and reported the incident.

Immediately the Surete set the wheels in motion. A 24-hour watch was kept on the hotel and the concierge was sharply questioned. He told the officers that in the house lived a young woman named Paula Chmielnicki. Often, he said, she received visits from a man with a stiff arm. The young woman did not go out at regular hours. Now and then she was absent on long trips from the city.

This made Miss Chmielnicki an object of interest to the police. But the Surete decided to try and grab Stiffarm first. A few days later he was shadowed on leaving. Stiffarm went to his luxuriously appointed apartment nearby and here he was arrested.

A search of the apartment revealed interesting things. Stiffarm, whose real name turned out to be Charles Chmielnicki, had an apartment stocked with stolen silverware, jewelry and rugs. The police also found complete equipment for the manufacture of fake Danish passports. There were stamps with the signatures of consular officials, blank passports, forms for identification cards and other documents, such as military discharge papers from the Danish army.

With Charles the Stiffarm under lock and key, the police next grabbed Paula Chmielnicki. She turned out to be none other than Paula Kantorowicz, bearer of the Danish faked passport on which she had entered Great Britain.

Immediately the Surete communicated with the police of other European countries regarding the faked passports. The result was an international roundup of members of the gang. All in all, 22 arrests have been made in France, Italy, Germany, Holland and the City of Danzig.

Paula Kantorowicz, nicknamed in criminal circles "La Belle Paula," was the real head of the gang. For two years they had specialized in faked Danish passports. After her arrest, Paula herself boasted that her documents were the "best on the market." The gang got anywhere from $25 to $500 for each passport.

ASIDE from dealing in faked passports and other documents of identification, "Chtarles the Stiffarm," who was Paula's admirer, headed the burglary department. After Paula, he was second in command. Within two years, their operations had netted the gang 2,000,000 francs of which Paula and Charles got the lion's share.

Directly connected with the gang's business had been Paula's English trips as well as her circus career. Child of a family of traveling vaudeville artists, she had been instructed by her father in the trapeze. She came to France in 1935 and became connected with Charles the Stiffarm who already had gathered much underworld experience. Together, they decided that Paula would work in England, in order to get a hold on the market for faked passports there. So she got a job with a traveling circus, in order to mask her real activities. When her passport was scrutinized in Folkestone, she headed back for Paris. Aside from the 22 persons already arrested, 30

Paula and Charles the Stiffarm are now in jail in Paris, together with Paul Chmielnicki, Charles' brother, and Isadore Jacubowicz, another henchman. Trial awaits them.

Carrying on During Night Air Raids with the 'Invisible Light'

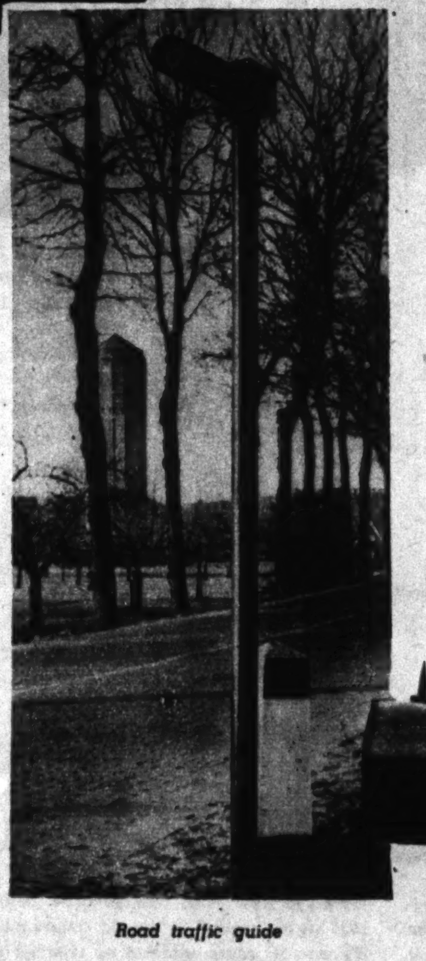
By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

A Dutch Soldier's Invention Will Make It Possible to Man Defenses and Aid the Injured Without Revealing Targets to an Enemy.

AMSTERDAM.

ALARM sirens scream. Night bombers approach. People dash for safety. Lights are extinguished. Darkness and horror. Traffic is disorganized. Motorized air-defense patrols and Red Cross cars slowly feel their way. Much too slowly. If only there were light! But any pinpoint of light means a chance for an observer thousands of feet above to line up his sights for a whizzing missile of death.

And now an officer in the intelligence service of the Dutch Army comes forward with his "invisible light" which he says will eliminate all this, enabling motorists to flee from the city, anti-aircraft units to move with rapidity from point to point and Red Cross workers to carry on during the actual attack. This invention, which keeps the enemy in perfect darkness but allows motorists to have the advantage of guide lights on the streets, and head and tail lights on their machines, was devised by Captain J. Bikker.



Road traffic guide

It consists of a lamp which throws forward a light which can be seen only by a person standing directly in the beam. Neither the light beam nor the lamp itself can be seen, however, by anyone not in the line of the beam. No ray, not the slightest reflection, betrays, even in the deepest darkness, that a lamp is shining.

The beam of an ordinary automobile headlight is visible for several-miles in the darkness. It is reflected by road as well as by the night sky. But fit that same car with "invisible" headlights and it is difficult to decide whether or not the lights are on when standing at the side of the car. Still, the light is sufficient to allow the driver to travel at a speed of 40 miles an hour along a known road.

In night travel, the new "invisible" taillight serves as a connecting link for motor columns. All following cars can switch off their headlights and follow the leader's car with safety. Thus—in total darkness—a motorized division can travel at good speed, according to the inventor.

The small red light beam of the rear light shines at an angle of 25 degrees—up. The driver of the following car who is too far behind his leader cannot see the light for he is out of the angle. If he goes closer, at a certain point he will cut the gleam and the light becomes visible to him—but to no one else. If he speeds up too much, he loses the beam again when he is about 10 yards behind the car in front and must reduce his pace to keep his guiding light visible.

Signal apparatus equipped with the "invisible light."

For road orientation, building lamps are placed every 300 yards along the right-hand side of the road. As long as the driver sees the light—and he can never see more than one—he can be sure that he is on the correct side of the highway. At every corner, pavement lamps warn of turns. A new guiding lamp is aligned so that it becomes visible immediately after the turn is made.

With this system, it has been proved that it is possible to conduct traffic in total darkness with such efficiency that drivers who have never been trained with the new equipment can find their way through the center of a town at a speed of 20 miles an hour.

For room illumination—in barracks as well as civilian houses—a lamp has been devised which makes writing and reading possible. The light cannot be seen from the outside—even though the curtains are left open.

The military experts of Holland have adopted this invention. In the Navy port, Den Helder, signal lamps have been mounted on the tops of the barracks and installed in the Army Munitions Factories,

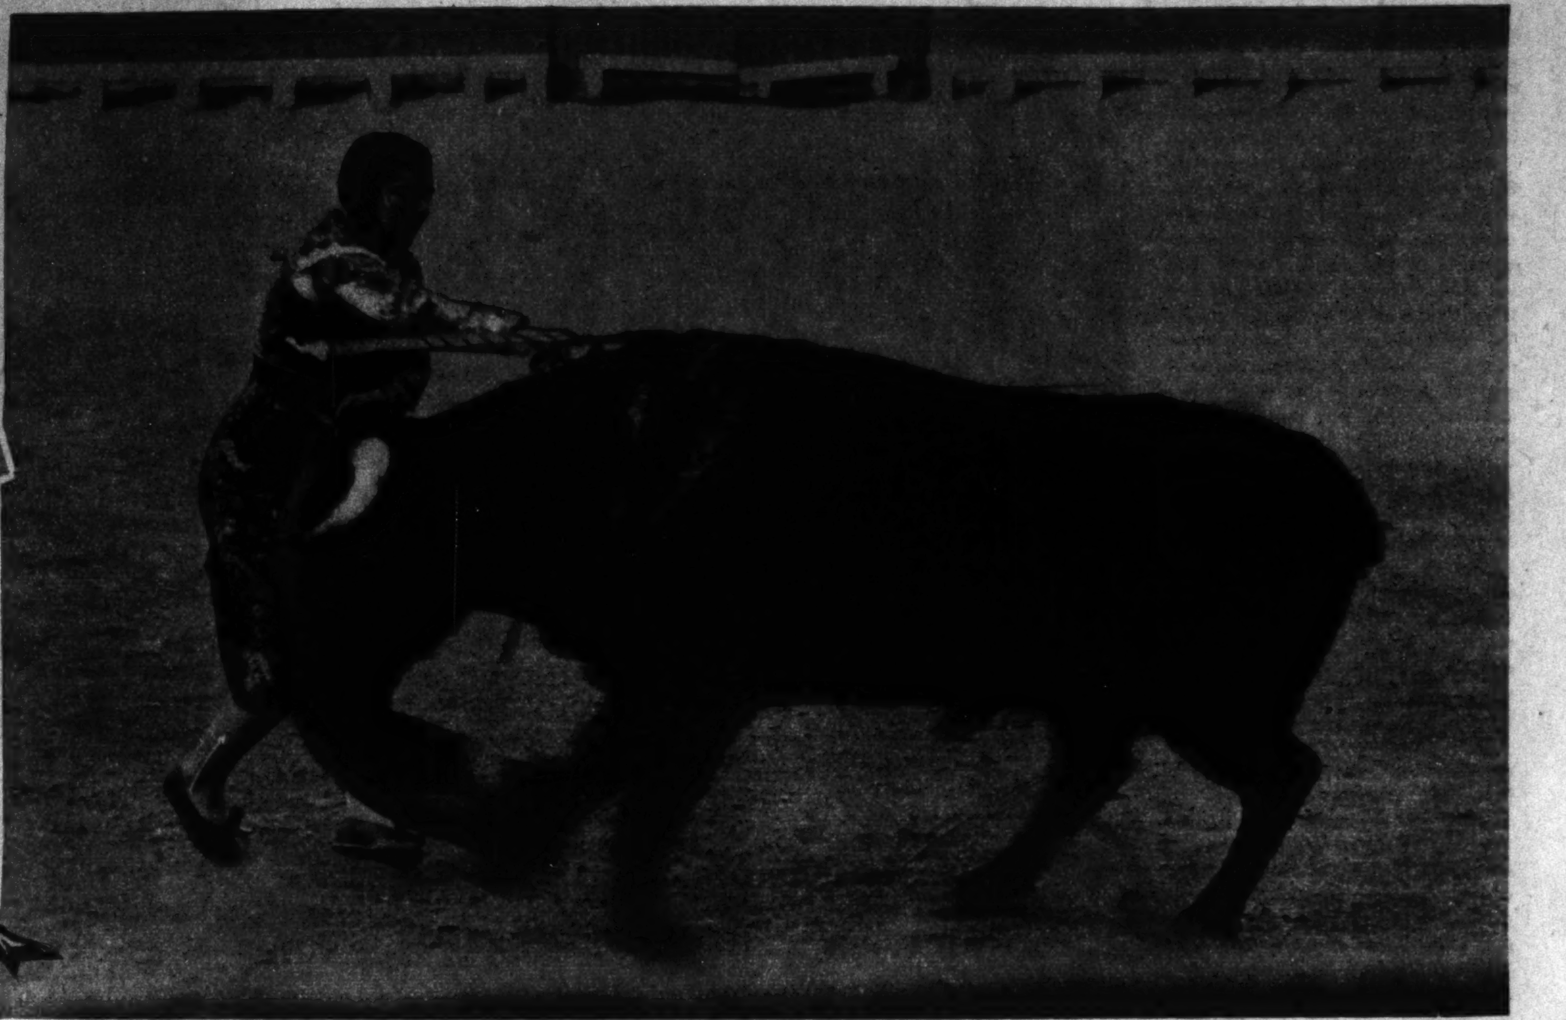
SKETCHES FROM LIFE

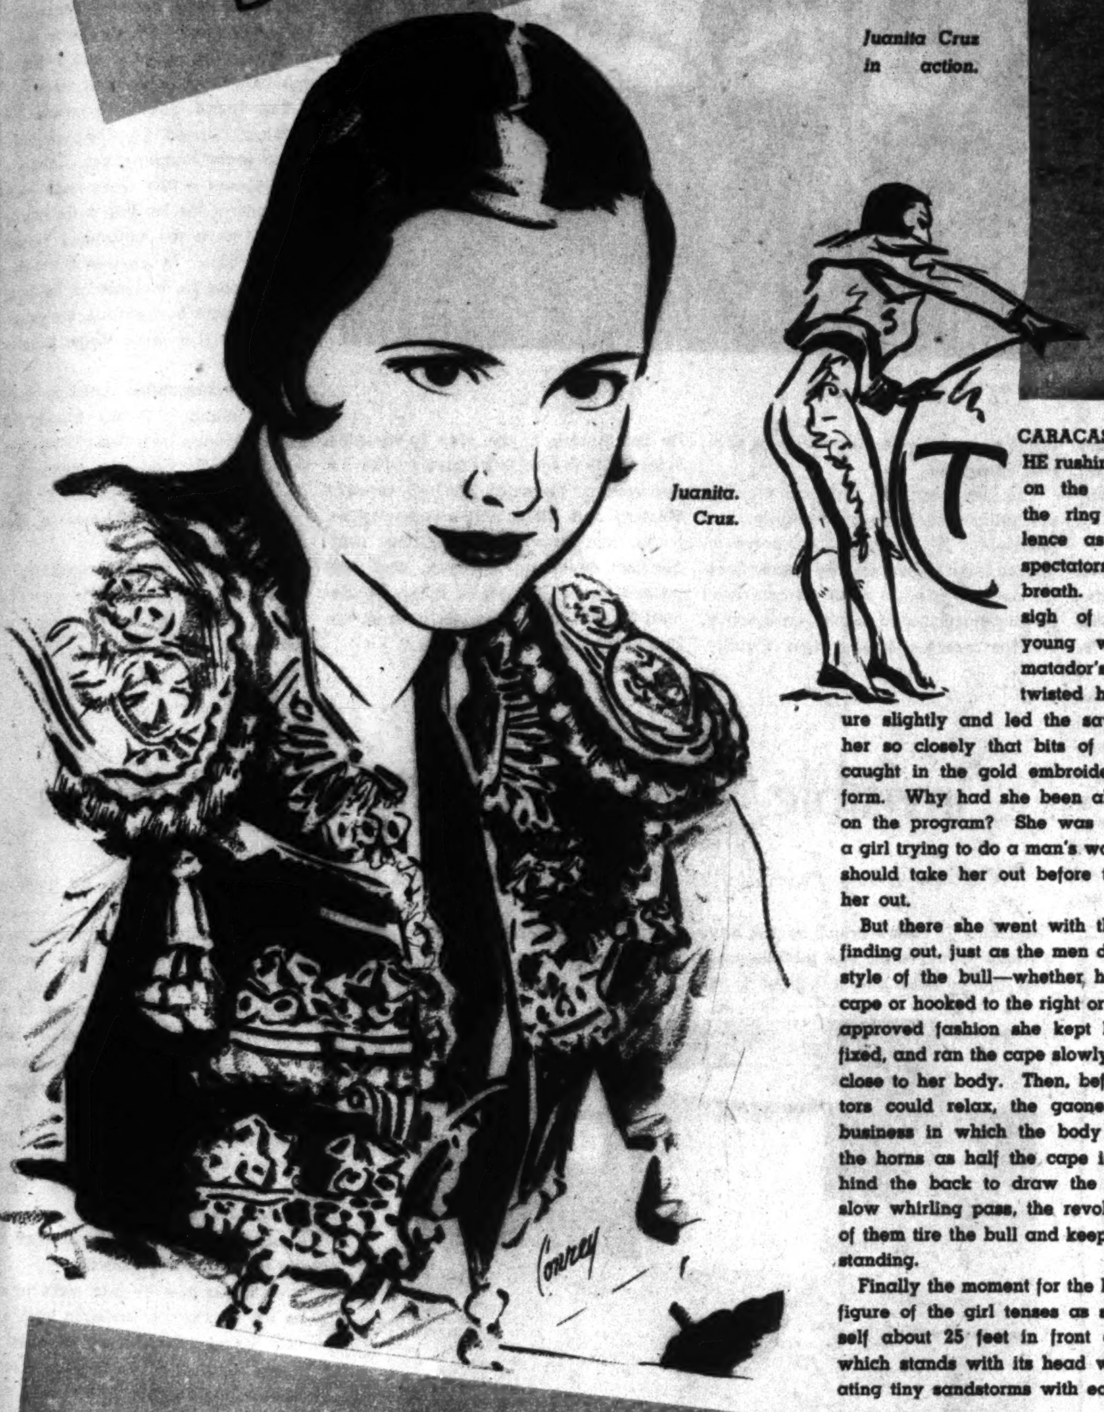
High Lights on Unusual Personalities

(JUANITA CRUZ GUSTAV REGLER)

HER 'ONLY LOVE IS A BULLFIGHT'



Juanita Cruz in action.



Juanita. Cruz.

CARACAS, Venezuela.

THE rushing thud of hoofs on the sunlit sand of the ring broke the silence as thousands of spectators held their breath. There was a sigh of relief as the young woman in the matador's costume twisted her slender figure slightly and led the savage bull past her so closely that bits of his black hair caught in the gold embroidery of her uniform. Why had she been allowed a place on the program? She was a mere chit of a girl trying to do a man's work. Somebody should take her out before the bull tossed her out.

But there she went with three veronicas, finding out, just as the men did, the fighting style of the bull—whether he followed the cape or hooked to the right or the left. In the approved fashion she kept her feet firmly fixed, and ran the cape slowly with her arms close to her body. Then, before the spectators could relax, the gaoneras—a ticklish business in which the body is exposed to the horns as half the cape is extended behind the back to draw the bull. Next, a slow whirling pass, the revolveras. A few of them tire the bull and keep the spectators standing.

Finally the moment for the kill. The slight figure of the girl tenses as she poises herself about 25 feet in front of the animal, which stands with its head well down, creating tiny sandstorms with each snort. The gaily colored banderillas give a porcupine effect about the bull's bloody neck. The girl holds the cape in her left hand directly across her body and near the ground. The sword, in the right hand, is pointed at the bull. The matador rushes forward and at the same time the bull charges. They seemed to meet head on. The long slender sword is buried to the hilt between the great shoulders of the hulking beast. It topples over dead. A perfect thrust straight to the heart.

Pandemonium broke out among the spectators. Men's hats flew into the ring. The crowd roared. White handkerchiefs fluttered from every hand. The director of the bullfight saw at a glance that there were more than enough handkerchiefs in the air to justify the award of both ears and the tail of the dead animal to the young woman matador. Many a matador is pleased with one ear. Award of both ears is most unusual and the award of the tail in addition is something to talk about for a lifetime. Thus Juanita Cruz, torera of Madrid, took the fans by storm.

An hour or so later, talking to reporters on the wide veranda of her hotel here in Caracas, the well-groomed Juanita looked younger than she had in the ring. She said she was only 20. She had laid aside her matador's garb for soft navy blue silk with white vest. Her hair, glossy black, was brushed smooth in a straight bob. She had no makeup. Her eyes were black and sparkling with life. She was slender as a dress model. Her hands were delicate but strong.

Why had she become a bullfighter? How could she help it, having lived across the street from the Madrid bull ring? She had gone to every bullfight she could for as far back as she could remember. She said she had learned most of the matador's art in that manner.

Some of the boys in her neighborhood had a pair of bull horns. They took turns at being the bull or the toreador. Juanita muscled in on their game and showed such dexterity that they accepted her as one of them. Like them, she practiced passes on anything that came to hand—dogs, trees, even cyclists and passersby. Her skill gave her a feeling of superiority over the clumsy boys who were so much stronger than she. Her five brothers and sisters, all older, regarded her with tolerant amusement and referred to her as "La Torera," feminine form for "the bullfighter."

SHE hadn't been in her teens long before she got a chance to practice with baby bulls. And in 1933, about the time that the aficionados of the game were being scandalized by the introduction of the first woman bullfighters, she made her appearance in a ring at a small country town.

Thinking that her family would object, she fought under another name. When reporters called on her in Madrid she had her picture taken wearing a mask and insisted that her right name not be used. But when the picture appeared in the newspaper, her family recognized her. To her surprise, she did not have the difficulty she had anticipated in persuading them that it was proper for her to fight bulls.

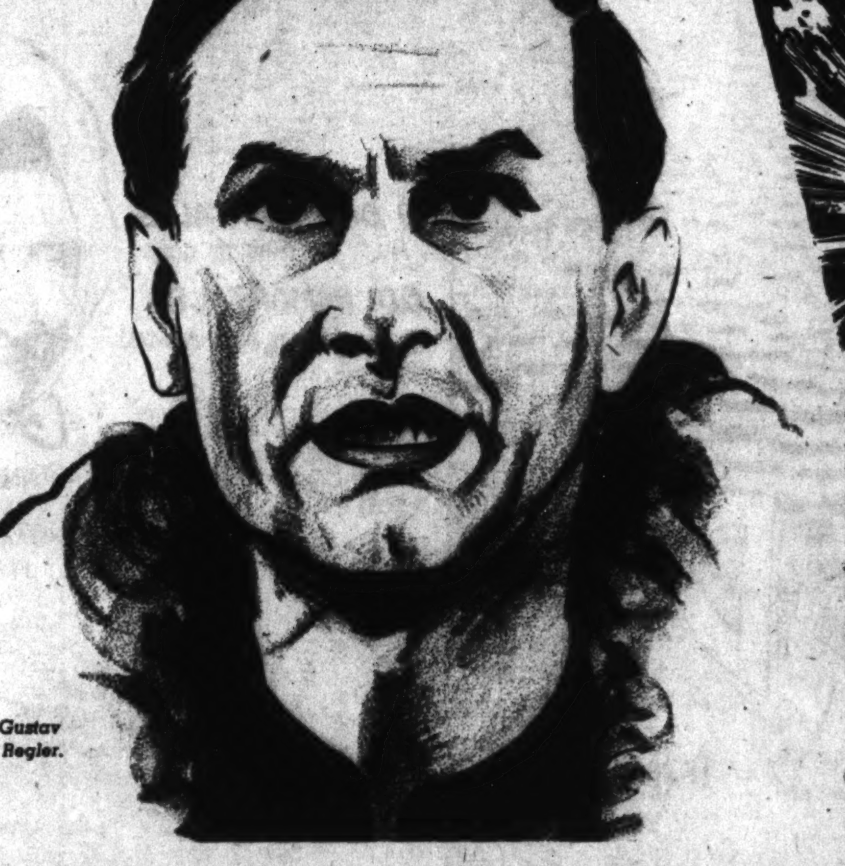
The bullfight fans of Madrid were the ones she had difficulty with. They wanted the best bullfighting and they felt sure that a woman couldn't give them that. They gave her cold receptions until she proved beyond a doubt that she could hold her own with the men. She felt that she was becoming a favorite in Spain and then the civil war broke out. Since then she has worked in South American nations. Next month she is going to Mexico for the bullfighting season. Already she has more than 400 bulls to her credit.

On the day of a fight Juanita rises late and dines on a small piece of beefsteak. That is all the nourishment she takes until late in the afternoon when her performance is over. After her beefsteak breakfast she spends the time resting and sewing until time to go to the ring. She enjoys embroidery almost as much as bullfighting.

When she goes into the ring, she wears exactly 25 pounds of gold braid on her costume. She designed the split skirt that she wears. Underneath she wears heavy black tights. The low shoes are always chosen with great care. She likes to feel that they are nearly as pliable as gloves on the hand.

After every fight the fan mail comes in by the basket. Most of the letters are from men, practically all of them of a romantic nature, many of them proposals of marriage. Some of the letters are ardent and run along for 10 to 12 pages. Her answer to marriage, thus far, has been: "My only love is the bullfight."

'The Man Who Should Be Dead'



Gustav Regler.

NEW YORK.

THE man who will speak to you this afternoon has no right to be here. He should be dead."

These sentences are the opening statement of an introductory address which Ernest Hemingway wrote recently in Key West, Florida, before he went back to Spain, for his good friend, Gustav Regler, writer, editor, lecturer, fighter and German exile.

In this introduction, which was read at a luncheon in honor of Regler given by a group of New York theatrical celebrities recently at Sardi's Restaurant, Novelist Hemingway goes on to describe, in his typically realistic and moving manner, just why his friend has no right to be talking to an audience of living persons.

Last December, at Huesca in Spain, Gustav Regler, a Lieutenant-Colonel in the International Brigades of the Spanish Republican Army, was wounded by the same exploding bomb which killed his commander, the Hungarian, General Lukacz. A piece of metal hit Regler in the back and went so deep that it made a hole bigger than a man's fist; the entire kidney was exposed and there are today several pieces of the bomb reposing beside the spinal column.

By some kind of good luck, Regler survived, although, as Hemingway suggests, he had no right to. For weeks his life hung precariously in the balance. He received the best care the front-line hospitals could provide. A blood transfusion was given him by a loyal Catalonian bullfighter of Republican political sympathies; he convalesced at one of the bathing places on the Mediterranean; he was invalided out to Paris and he recently came to America to be the guest of Hemingway at Key West.

In Key West, Regler learned to do two things which he had never done before, although he stayed only a month: He learned to speak English and to swim. He had been reading English books and papers for some time in Europe and had accumulated a good vocabulary, but he had never attemped to speak English until he arrived in America. Now he speaks it excellently and has caught on with surprising quickness to American slang. His swimming style is restricted because of his severe wounds.

Just now Regler is staying in New York to finish a novel about the International Brigades. In it he writes about the men who were in his battalions, mainly Frenchmen, Poles and Germans; about gallant Spaniards for whom Regler has great respect and fondness; about such men as that doughty fighter, Andre Malraux.

The exiled Regler, slender and of medium height, is not yet 40, but he is old in experience. He won the Iron Cross in the World War, in which he took part as a member of the last class to be called to the colors of the German Empire; he was only 18 then. After peacetime years in which stirring events continued to crowd around him, he so comported himself on battlefields of Spain as to win Hemingway's praise, as "one of the real heroes of the Spanish War."

Born in a small town in the Saar Valley, Gustav Regler got his early education in a Catholic convent. His father and mother were deeply religious people; they were middle class tradesmen, they were cultured and liberal in their outlook. Young Regler was sent to the University of Munich and then to the University of Heidelberg. At Heidelberg he took his doctor of philosophy degree. Curiously enough, he studied under and wrote his doctor of philosophy thesis for the same professor under whom Paul Goebbels, of Nazi fame, prepared his—Gundolf, the German who wrote a book on Shakespeare which is the accepted authority on Shakespeare in Germany. Regler's thesis topic was "Irony in the Works of Goethe."

HE BEGAN in school to break away from his more conservative forebears. He was one of the founders of the German Socialist Student Association. For a time he edited a paper which was a rival of Julius Streicher's then new and budding "Der Stürmer," the best-known anti-Semitic newspaper of Hitler's Germany today. He wrote many articles on political and economic subjects and made an extensive study of the agrarian problems of the people of the Saar and of other parts of Germany.

For a time Regler worked in the textile manufacturing business, but he found out soon that he wanted to devote himself to writing and teaching. He wrote several novels, two historical and two dealing with Germany's land problems.

When the time came for the Saar plebiscite, Regler took an active part in politics—the plebiscite was of special interest to him as a native of the Saar. He sought freedom for the people to vote the way they wished, and honest counting of the votes. He says there was neither—the Saar plebiscite was a farce and the entire vote was fixed by Hitler's agents.

After the voting on January 13, 1934, Gustav Regler was deprived of his citizenship. As a native of the Saar, he went to the League of Nations to protest against this illegal act of the Hitler government. He felt he had a perfect right as a native of the Saar to vote as he pleased and to tell other people of his opinions; the German Government had no specific accusation against him except the fact that he had, according to officials, propagandized for pacifism.

The League of Nations gave Regler a hearing, after which the League told him that Hitler had had no right to take his citizenship away. Then, according to Regler, "I was free to go back to Germany and get executed."

Instead, Regler went to Paris. He intended to become a French citizen. But the armed insurrection of the military against the government of Republican Spain changed Regler's plans. Like other intellectuals who had been exiled by the Nazi regime because of their desire for freedom, Regler decided to go to Spain to help the Spanish people. He left Paris in October, 1936, just two months before he would have become a French citizen. He fought on several fronts, taking part in the battles of the Jarama, on the Guadalajara front, and spending some time in Madrid. He spent most of his time in Spain training members of the International battalions, but he did get time off to get a few days' rest now and then in the Hotel Florida in Madrid, where he met Hemingway. The Hotel Florida is, incidentally, the setting for Hemingway's forthcoming play about Spain, "The Fifth Column."

WHILE he was in Spain, in constant danger of death from the enemy across the lines as well as from the planes above, Regler was ceaselessly collecting material for his novel. Because of his linguistic talent, which enables him to gain a working knowledge of a language in a few weeks, he was able to converse with men of various nationalities among his comrades in arms. He tells particularly moving stories about the bravery of the Poles, who came enthusiastically to help the Spaniards in their fight.

Before he left Spain for France, after his wounds were fairly well healed, Premier Juan Negrin invited Regler to become a Spanish citizen. Regler accepted and today he is a Spaniard by adoption. If he is strong enough, Regler hopes to make several speeches in America on behalf of the Spanish Loyalists.

MADELIN BLITZSTEIN.

Closed in on the Counterfeiters' Ring — then Smashed It

T-men followed—not to return for a week, during which they visited Chicago, Gary, Toledo and Monroe. Majatich's call at the Michigan town brought Nikola Zrnic under surveillance.

Motion pictures were taken of the St. Louis conspirators both to use as evidence if necessary and to send to other cities as an aid in identifying members of the ring who might show up there. One of the sequences of Klickovich was taken as he crossed Twelfth boulevard at Chestnut street, casting frequent glances over his shoulder; the operator of the camera was stationed in a nearby store. Majatich was photographed on a used-car lot, where there is also a filling station, by Robert A. Steuart Jr. of the St. Louis Secret Service office. Knowing that Majatich bought gasoline there, Steuart set up his camera in one of the used cars, focusing it on the filling station through the rear window. He was sitting in the machine, apparently reading a paper, his back to the filling station, when Majatich appeared. A slight movement set the camera in operation.

One of the out-of-town T-men who reported here was Edward Jones of New York. He was assigned the task of getting in the confidence of Davis. The latter, an elderly man who had seen better days, was living in hand-to-mouth fashion, lodging in a cheap rooming house. Jones, a dapper fellow, fond of the niceties, abandoned his excellent clothing for mongrel raiment and took quarters with Davis after becoming chummy with him in a handbook establishment. The agent represented himself as a professional crap-shooter who was on the lam from New York. He made small loans to Davis and bore more than his share of the living expenses. When the nocturnal attacks of insects strained his endurance to the limit he induced Davis to move with him to more comfortable lodgings. Accepted by his roommate as a man with little regard for the law, he was able to pick up scraps of information which threw light on the activities of the counterfeiters.

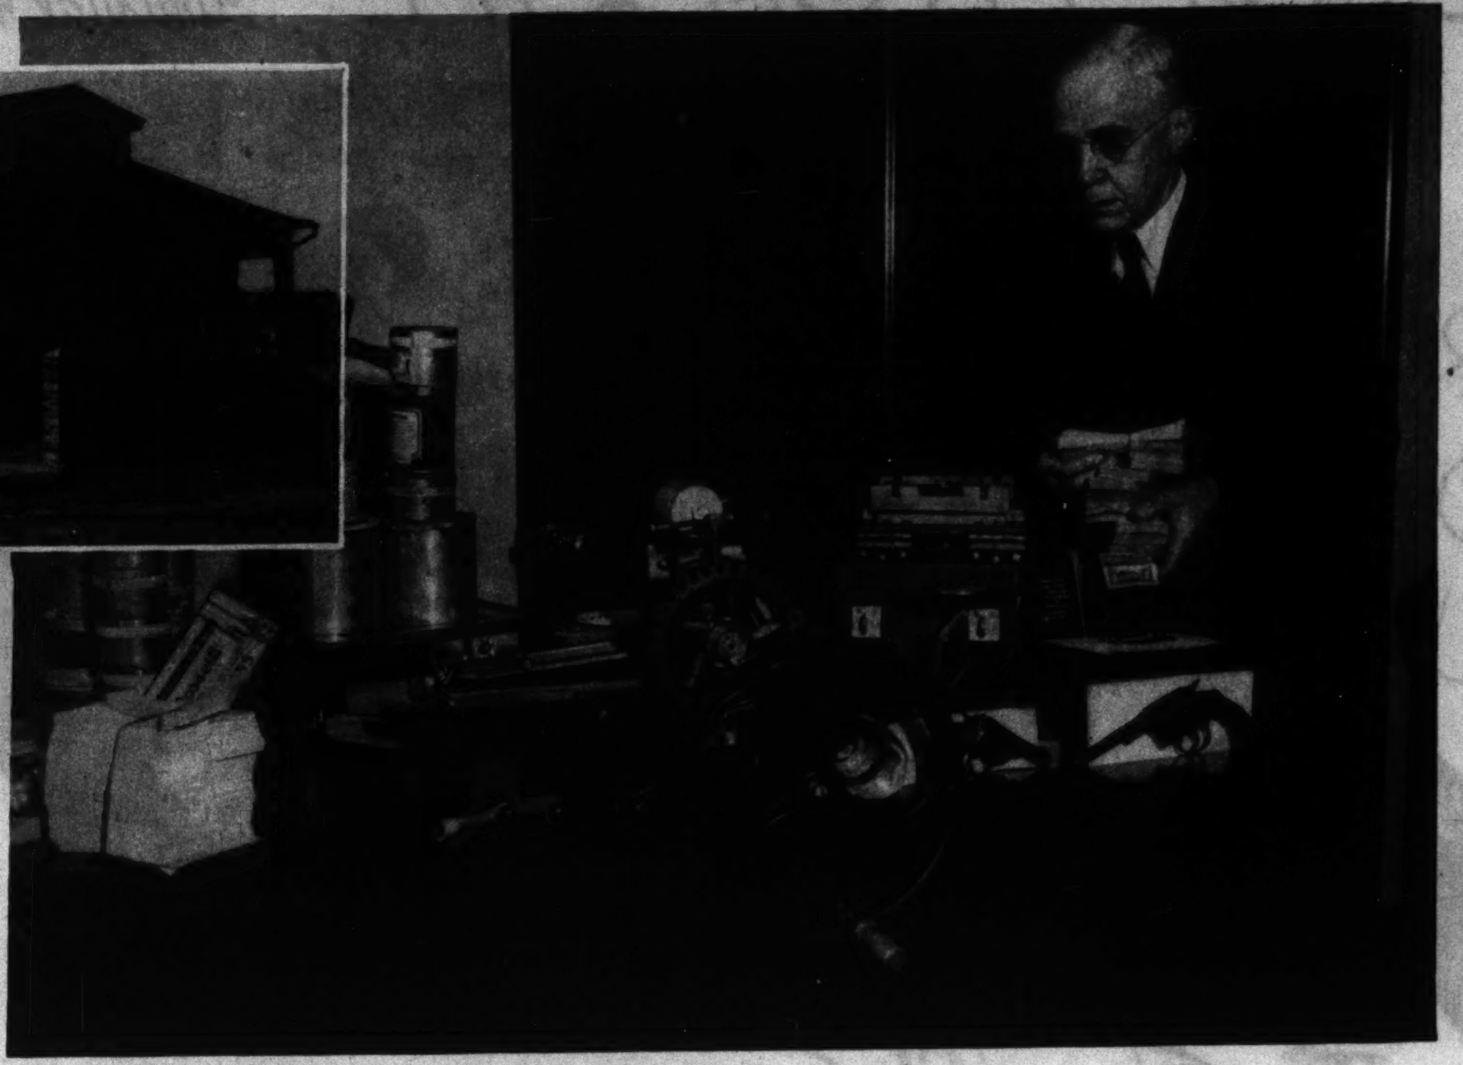
Meanwhile, more of the bogus $20 bills kept showing up, although warnings against them had been issued as soon as the first one appeared. They were still appearing, in fact, when the case was ended by the imposition of the last three sentences; about 80 of the 100 of this "edition" had appeared by that time, most of them in St. Louis and environs.

The house in Monaca, Pennsylvania, where the bills were turned out.

Work on these counterfeits had been begun in St. Louis, Markalj etching the plates while living in the same rooming house with Balaban; Balaban paid his rent. When the time came for printing, the plant had been moved to Pennsylvania, and there the press work was done.

THE plant was established in a house occupied by relatives of Klickovich in Monaca, near Pittsburgh. It was discovered through the close watch kept on Markalj and Klickovich. After they had been seen going to the place and it was noted that suspected supplies were being delivered there and lights burned behind drawn shades far into the night, Government agents felt sure they had located the gang's headquarters. A watch of several weeks on the house strengthened the belief. Chief Wilson decided the time had come to strike. Secret Service men in cities where there were suspects were warned to be ready to arrest their quarry on short notice. Warrants were obtained.

Shortly after midnight on November 3 a group of agents raided the house in Monaca. They found the complete counterfeiting plant—in operation. Markalj and Klickovich were working there. They found 1174 of the new bills, which were even better counterfeits than the previous batch except that they were printed on bond paper instead of actual bank note paper. The plates had been chromium-plated to increase their durability.



Part of the equipment used in making the counterfeit bills.

News of the raid was quickly telephoned to agents in other cities and they seized the conspirators whom they had been watching. Word came to Smugai in St. Louis about 1:30 in the morning; a few hours later five men had been arrested here, a sixth was picked up a few days later. The six were Bulyat, Davis, Lehecka, Majatich, Murray and Father Balaban.

Six men also were rounded up to face court action at Erie, Pennsylvania. Markalj and Zrnic pleaded guilty and each drew a 15-year sentence. Klickovich pleaded guilty and got five years. Peter Janus, Anton Sikicif and Anthony Ziets were convicted by a jury and sent up for five years.

Early this year, Bulyat and Davis pleaded guilty; Bulyat got six years, Davis five, the difference in sentences being due to Bulyat's greater activity in the conspiracy. Lehecka died of tuberculosis less than two months after his arrest; he made a confession shortly before his death. Majatich and Murray stood trial and were convicted this month. Majatich drew two years in prison and a $7000 fine; Murray was let off with a day in the custody of the United States Marshal, as the jury had recommended leniency for him because of his apparently small part in the criminal enterprise.

The Reverend Mr. Balaban pleaded not guilty when arraigned shortly after his arrest. A few days later, however, having been questioned by Secret Service agents for eight days, he confessed having participated in the conspiracy, and last month entered a plea of guilty. He had known of the plan to smuggle Markalj back into this country after his deportation, he said; he had brought Markalj and Klickovich together in St. Louis, had provided the former with quarters in which to work, and had passed one of the bogus bills. He denied he had taken any profits from the ring's operations.

Suspended from his pastorate soon after his arrest, Balaban had been unfrocked by the time he appeared before United States District Judge John Caskie Collet for sentence. He was a rather forlorn looking figure, already a broken man, and Judge Collet, not having been fully informed of the ex-priest's prominence in the conspiracy, at first pronounced sentence of a year and a day in prison.

WITH additional information, the Judge set the original sentence aside and made the penalty five years.

The Secret Service had obtained evidence that Balaban had been connected with counterfeiting as far back as 1925; that Markalj, in that year, worked at counterfeiting in Balaban's St. Louis abode. There was evidence that Balaban took an active part in the conspiracy to get Markalj back into the United States, and that he wrote code letters to Klickovich after the latter had gone to Pennsylvania giving warning that the Secret Service was carrying on an investigation of the spurious bank notes in St. Louis.

The Judge also was informed that Balaban carried a pocketbook containing a secret compartment. Balaban, in the opinion o fthe Government agents, was one of the leaders of the ring, and aspired to be the undisputed "big shot" of the outfit. In the face of this showing, a plea for leniency on the ground that Balaban had paresis and probably would not live much longer proved futile.

The workmanlike crushing of the counterfeiting plot has brought forth commendation from Chief Wilson for all the Secret Service men engaged in it, and expressions of gratitude for the co-operation given the T-men by police, banks and merchants.

It has also taken a weight off the minds of those who like to believe that United States money is good if you can get it.

'Invisible Light' in Night Air Raids

"Hemburg." These signal beams have a range of four miles and the messages sent can be seen only by those in the small sector in the direct line of the light—thus keeping military signals secret to a considerable degree. The invention has also been applied to the Army's automobiles and armoured cars and to guiding lamps for traffic and harbor regulation.

"Invisible Light" for street corners.

Perhaps the greatest importance of this new light is its use during a "black-out" in case of air raids. The complete invisibility from the air was proved on the occasion of a "black-out" of the Dutch town of Hilversum. As a consequence of the good results during this test, the municipality has mounted signal lamps, which are independent of the town electric current, on the high points of the town, insuring communication between the different quarters in case of the destruction of the regular power stations.

In telling how he had come to work on the idea of an "invisible light" Captain Bikker said that he had had frequent experience in night maneuvers and time and again he had seen whole columns delayed by accidents. Drivers with extinguished lights collided or drove into ditches. When skirmishing in the open fields, the Captain had observed that—taking an illuminated window of a farmhouse as a guide—the way would often lead to the house in a zigzag line. This was obviously due to the fact of the wide open space around the light from the window in every direction. So—he decided that a directed narrow beam of light would change this. In a small metal tube he encased a small light, using it as a tail light on a motor car, the first step in his invention of "Invisible Light." The rest is a military secret.

Studies the Possibility of 'Precognition' to its first impact on a psychological world unprepared with theory for its explanation and acceptance.

"This new series is launched with a plea for greater objectivity and for recourse to more actual investigation instead of the dogmatism and ridicule which have been the rule in the history of this subject.

"On the whole, psychologists of today have shown a reasonable amount of openmindedness and a willingness to consider, though in properly guarded fashion, the results of the ESP experiments. The present barrage of hastily composed critiques running through the journals is not, as far as we can judge, representative of the leadership in psychological thought today. This leadership is (happily for all new developments) a more careful and tolerant one."

Apparently when he wrote that he was thinking, too, of the mathematicians who have come to his defense, supporting the statistical side of his studies on telepathy and clairvoyance. In a recent letter, he wrote that "the mathematical big guns have now begun to boom and they are on our side."

One of the big guns booming for him is Burton H. Camp, professor of mathematics at Massachusetts Institute of Technology since 1914 and president of the Institute of Mathematical Statistics. In a statement which was reprinted in the Journal of Parapsychology, he said:

"Dr. Rhine's investigations have two aspects, experimental and statistical. On the experimental side, mathematicians, of course, have nothing to say. On the statistical side, however, recent mathematical work has established the fact that, assuming that the experiments have been properly performed, the statistical analysis is essentially valid. If the Rhine investigation is to be fairly attacked, it must be on other than mathematical ground."

Having received support from mathematicians, Dr. Rhine felt the time was at last ripe to announce his new studies on prophecy. He made the first announcement at the recent New York Times National Book Fair, saying that nothing is being claimed for the prophecy experiments just now. It may take a long time to interpret them, he asserted.

"But if they are not chance and if they are not explained away by any of the simpler explanations, I do not see how we can escape the feeling that we are standing on the threshold of an entirely new world of thought about ourselves, nature and personality in the natural world."

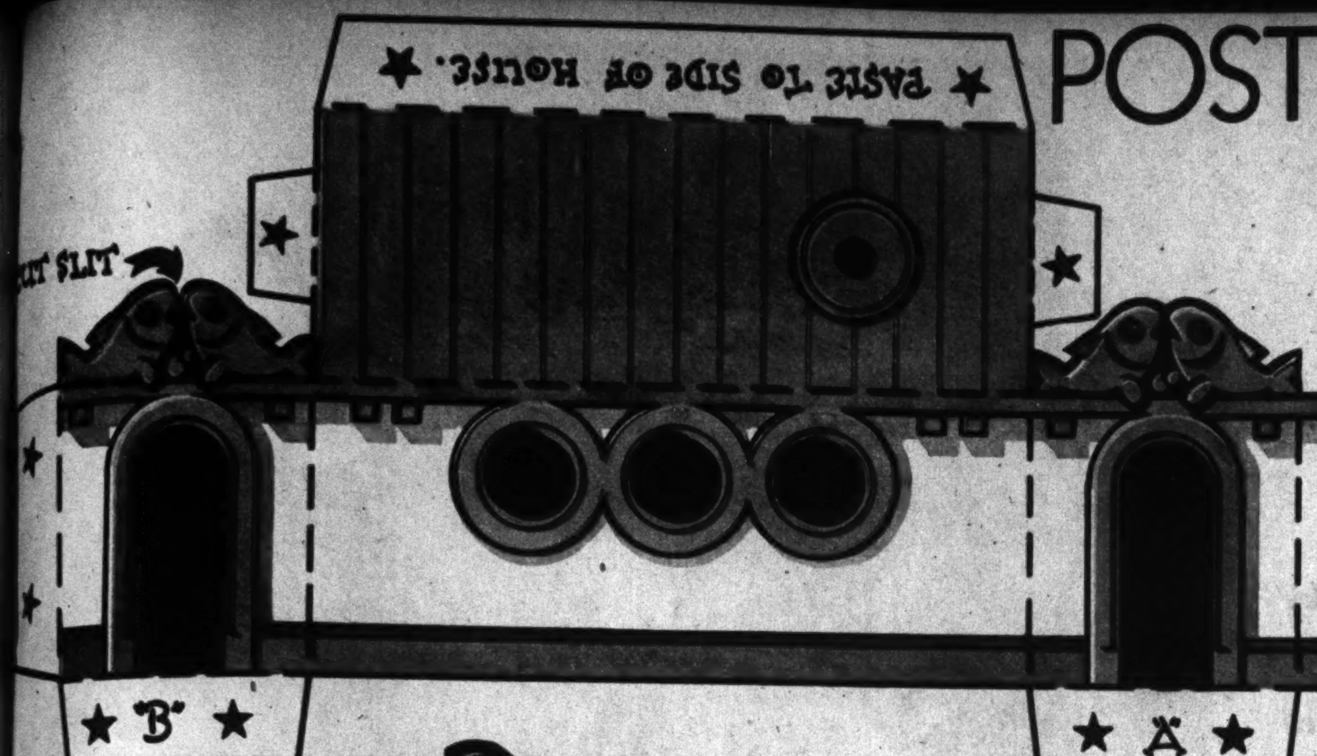
POST- DISPATCH PASTE-UPS

A FISHING SMACK

By WALTER DAHLGREN



This is the first of a series of three. Next week will bring a crew of fishermen and the following week a lighthouse. So save them all for an interesting set of Paste-Ups.

DIRECTIONS ● Mount the page upon thin cardboard and then cut out the pieces. In cutting be sure to cut the two slits at the bottom and punch out the two small black holes for the mast. Folding on the dotted lines will bring the parts into proper position to be pasted (stars indicate where to put paste). Paste up the hull first then the deck house—insert the tabs "A and B" into the slits "A and B" and paste to bottom. Next obtain a soda straw, split it for one-half inch at one end, spread apart, insert it up through the two small holes and paste split ends below decks. Follow the diagram! The sail will be in next week's Paste-Up.

HICKORY HOLLOW FOLKS

And the Things They Do

By WALTER QUERMANN

THE WELL-WISHERS

THE CHARACTERS

GRUMPY—A bossy old bear.

RIP RACKEY—A determined raccoon.

HARRY AND HILDA HOARDER—A pair of thrifty squirrels.

O. HUM—A talkative opossum.

BILL AND BETTY BUNNY—Two unselfish little rabbits.

OLD BUZZ—A watchful bumblebee.

Bill Bunny never should have told O. Hum that the Mighty Presto, King of Magic, promised him anything he could wish for in one wish. Then O. Hum couldn't have told all the folks in the Hollow about it. Nor could he have told them that Bill intended to make a wish that would do everyone the most good. But he did, and the selfish natives, each fearing he or she might be overlooked, decided to help Bill make the wish. They all agreed to think the matter over for one week and then to meet at Bill Bunny's house with their suggestions. This was last Sunday. So today we see them all assembled in front of the surprised rabbit's house.

THE PLAY BEGINS

BILL BUNNY—Well-l, this is indeed a surprise. I'm glad to see you all.

GRUMPY—We're glad to see you too, Bill. O. Hum told us about that wish you are going to make. That's why we're here. We're going to help you make it. Each of us has some suggestions for you.

BILL BUNNY—(Surprised.) How kind of you! What are your suggestions? (O. Hum suggests ripe persimmons all year, the Hoarders mention ripe nuts and acorns all the time, Rip Rackey wants milky corn, and the others ask the things that they like best. When they have finished, Grumpy speaks up.)

GRUMPY—Now you listen to me, Mr. Bunny. I'm bigger than all of these folks put together, so when you wish for what I want, you do the most of us the most good. I'm the "most" of us. And I want all the honey in the world—and you better wish for it if you know what's good for you. (Now Old Buzz has been listening to everything that has been said, and when he hears Grumpy's demand, he picks up his buckets and flies away. And, after everyone has gone home, a long line of bumblebees fly to Bill's house. They fly into his chimney and out of the open stove door and surround the startled rabbit.)

OLD BUZZ—Don't you dare to wish what Grumpy told you to wish. Instead, you wish that all bears grow as small as we are. And that they have wings so they can make their own honey. (Poor Bill. He is so frightened he can't talk. So he can't make any wish. He just stands there and stares at the bees.)

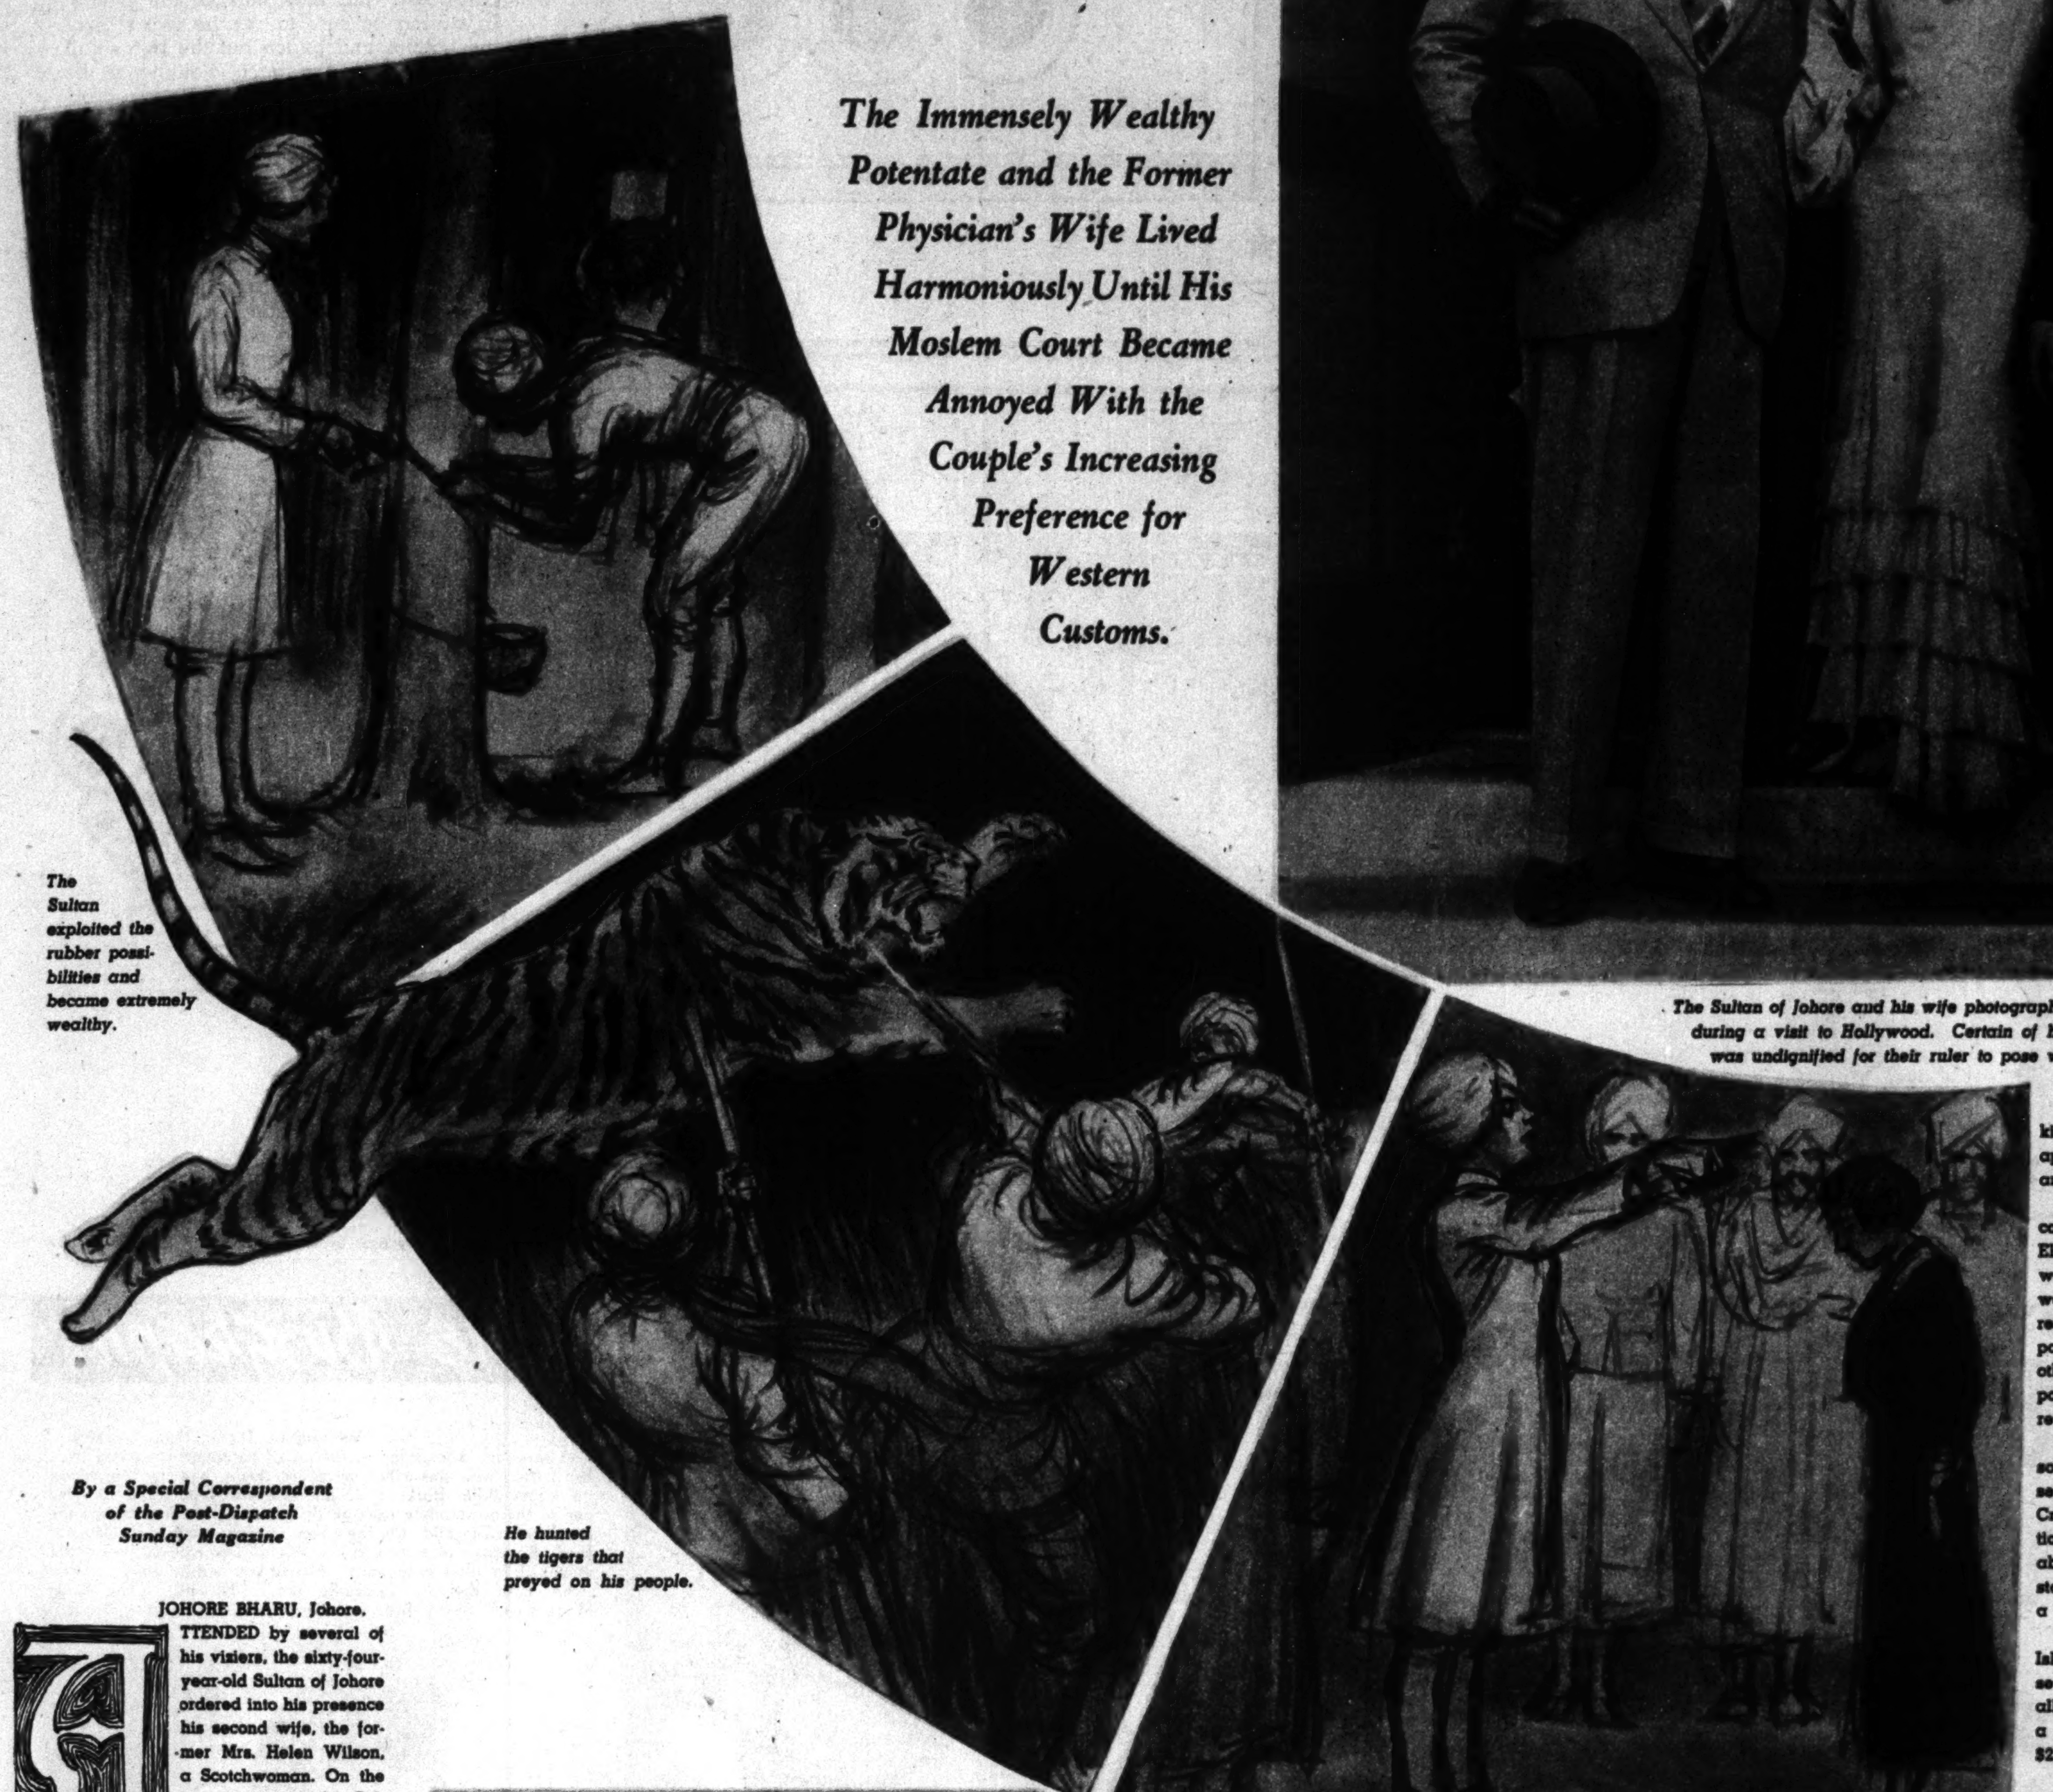
Why the Sultan of Johore Divorced His Scotch Wife

The Immensely Wealthy Potentate and the Former Physician's Wife Lived Harmoniously Until His Moslem Court Became Annoyed With the Couple's Increasing Preference for Western Customs.

The Sultan of Johore and his wife photographed with Mae West (center) during a visit to Hollywood. Certain of his subjects considered it was undignified for their ruler to pose with the movie actress.



The Sultan exploited the rubber possibilities and became extremely wealthy.

He hunted the tigers that preyed on his people.

But despite his wealth and popularity he divorced his wife when his subjects objected on Moslem grounds.

JOHORE BHARU, Johore.

ATTENDED by several of his viziers, the sixty-four-year-old Sultan of Johore ordered into his presence his second wife, the former Mrs. Helen Wilson, a Scotchwoman. On the appearance of the Sultana, her Oriental husband cried at her four times: "Talak!" (Get out.)

Thus, according to the law of Islam, the Sultan divorced himself from his wife. Had Mrs. Wilson been a Mohammedan woman, the command of "Talak" would have meant to her that she was to return to the house of her father. As it was, she made plans for catching the first liner to London.

Sultan Ibrahim of Johore has been on the throne of his semi-independent country since 1895, when he followed his great father, Abubakar. It was Abubakar who in 1885 closed a treaty of friendship with Great Britain by which the country became a protectorate of the English Empire. Finally, Abubakar built the beautiful palace that rises in this capital of the Sultanate, near the straits of Singapore.

When the present ruler mounted the throne in 1895, Johore was little more than a backward, native state that had chiefly military importance for Great Britain. Soon, however, the progressive Sultan Ibrahim began to exploit the rubber trees of Johore and, as a result, he is today one of the wealthiest rulers of the Orient.

For many years, Ibrahim's hobby was to hunt the Malay tiger, which preyed on his people, in the dense jungles of Johore. He is said to have killed hundreds of tigers, often hunting them afoot, instead of from an elephant's howdah.

The Sultan was first married to a noblewoman of his own race. From this union resulted Crown Prince Ismail Tunku Mahkota, now 43 years old.

His second wife, the former Mrs. Helen Wilson, was the daughter of a Glasgow business man. She was first married to Dr. William Brockie Wilson. Dr. Wilson, who had practiced in Singapore before, received a call to be personal physician to the Sultan of Johore. Dr. Wilson accepted, but first went to England for a vacation. There he married Mrs. Wilson, who went with him to Johore in 1925.

The Wilsons were not very happy. And then Sultan Ibrahim took a liking to the young wife of his personal physician. At any rate, in 1928 the couple returned to England, where they were divorced the following year.

As soon as Sultan Ibrahim heard of this he took passage for England. On arrival there, he set to courting Mrs. Wilson. So persistent was his wooing that the staid London Times denied rumors that "the Sultan of Johore, presently in Europe for reasons of his health, would never return to Johore." Instead, it was said, the Sultan would go home as soon as his "state was satisfactory."

In 1930, Mrs. Wilson accepted his proposal for marriage. On October 16 of that year, the Oriental potentate and the fair-haired Scotchwoman were married at Princes' Row Registry Office in London. Huge crowds who had come to see the Sultan decked out in Oriental robes were disappointed, for he appeared in a black suit and striped trousers. After the civil ceremony the couple departed for Woking (a suburb southwest of London), where they were married by religious ceremony in the local mosque.

The following year, on November 18, the Sultana was crowned at Johore Bharu. On that occasion, she promised the head of Johore's Mohammedan clergy that she would adopt Malay custom as well as the faith of Islam. For her coronation, she wore a corsage ablaze with diamonds, a wide collar of jewels, and earrings which fell almost to her shoulders.

The Sultan Ibrahim and his wife (seated) at their marriage in London.

FOR several years, the couple lived happily. The heat of Johore as well as the Sultana's longing for the Occident were alleviated each year by a European trip.

In 1934, while on a visit in England, they went from there to the United States. Arriving in New York in June, they went to Chicago, where they enjoyed the Fair and were greeted with a 21-gun salute. From there they went to Hollywood, where they had their picture taken with Mae West. They went back to Johore the same month.

Gradually, opposition against the white Sultana arose within the palace. Little by little, rumors penetrated into neighboring Singapore's British colony that the Sultan's and his wife's frequent absences from Johore were not liked by the conservative elements at court, especially not by the most orthodox among the Mohammedan clergy. In this connection, these elements were reported as considering the royal couple's pose with Mae West as undignified.

Apparently, the Sultan must have decided upon teaching the diehards a lesson—by giving his white wife some unusual proof of his loyalty. And so, early in 1935, he ordered that a new postage stamp, printed to commemorate the fortieth anniversary of his succession on the throne, should bear the picture of himself and his wife. This was an entirely unprecedented act in this Islamic kingdom, where the women not only do not appear in public, but where even their faces are not seen by other men.

The pair attracted much attention at the coronation of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth in London last May. The Sultana was seen in a gown and coat of gold and wearing the sash of Johore as well as other resplendent crown jewels. At that time, the pair still seemed much in love with each other. Only last November, they both departed for a trip to London from which they returned but recently.

Now, this romantic marriage has been dissolved. Of late, rumors had appeared in several Continental gossip papers that Crown Prince Ismail had joined the opposition toward his white stepmother, who is about his age. And it seems as if this constant friction at court convinced the pair that a divorce was the best way out.

Though this step took the harsh form of Islamic separation, the Sultan is said to have settled upon his second wife a generous allowance. It is said that she is to receive a yearly alimony of $25,000, in addition to $225,000 worth of jewelry.

THUS, another East-West marriage has gone on the rocks. Perhaps the most famous example in this direction, though infinitely more tragic, was the marriage of Mlle. Maggie Meller, beautiful French dancer-actress, to a wealthy Egyptian nobleman, Al Fahmy Bey. After a brief courtship in Paris, they were married in Egypt in December, 1922. Maggie was then about ten years older than Ali, who was in his middle twenties.

The marriage was a failure from the very beginning. Ali wanted to restrict Maggie to the life of a harem inmate. During a visit to England in 1923, Madame Fahmy shot and killed her husband in a London hotel. Tried in a British court, she was acquitted on a plea of self-defense.

Another East-West marriage of recent years that suffered shipwreck was the third marriage of Doris Mercer Hardin Kresge Farid.

Doris Mercer, daughter of a Pittsburgh policeman, had been divorced in 1919 from Percival D. Hardin, publisher of a nationally circulated farm magazine. Next, she married in 1923 S. S. Kresge of 10-cent store fame. She was then his junior by 30 years. They were divorced in 1928 and in February, 1933, Doris was ready for a third matrimonial venture. The spouse this time was the Persian Prince, Farid-es-Sultaneh. Doris said then that the Orient was "so frightfully romantic." But two years later the romance fizzled out and the Prince irately published in a Paris English-language newspaper the following paid advertisement:

"I, Prince Farid of Sadri-Azam, the Nesam-ed-Dowleh of Isahan (ci-devant the Farid-es-Sultaneh and former Imperial Commissioner of Persia and of the Royal House of the last reigning dynasty), declare that, having been divorced in May, 1935, from my wife, the former Mrs. Mercer S. S. Kresge, she has, therefore, no legal right to use my name thereafter.

"Concerning the divorce, I will inform the civilized world, especially the American public, by the publication of a book, my only alternative."

Thus far, the Prince has held out on that promise.

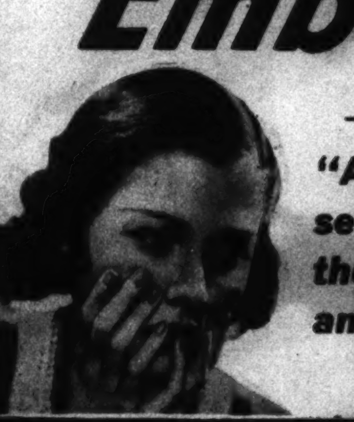
"I WAS NEVER SO Embarrassed"



—A YOUNG MATRON'S STORY

"Acid Indigestion" causes gas, upset stomach, "acid breath". Now there's a way to eat what you like and alkalize right afterward.

Unnoticed You Can Now Alkalize Acid Indigestion as it Starts—Any Time

The effects of acid indigestion are annoying to you—and unpleasant to others. Why risk offending when it's so easy to alkalize and hence be safe.

The quick way to alkalize is this: Take two teaspoons of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia 30 minutes after eating and drinking. Or, when among others—take two Phillips' Tablets that come in a small flat tin you carry in purse or vest pocket.—You do it unnoticed.

Relief is almost immediate. "Gas," nausea, acid breath and other offensive symptoms leave.—That "stuffed" feeling and pains from "acid indigestion" cease to annoy. You feel great.

This is the way, we believe, more doctors use than any other when alkalizing upset stomach. Try it—see if it doesn't work more promptly and effectively than many so-called ALKALIZERS.

Get Phillips' Milk of Magnesia either in the bottle—or in the large new tins of tablets that taste like peppermint and cost only 25¢ for 30.

When you buy, make sure you ask for Phillips'—the same in either liquid or tablet form.

PERHAPS you're trying to squeeze a new hat out of the food allowance. Maybe friend husband is muttering about Cutting Down. All right — we know the answer! Let Borden's help you economize grandly, even on company days. We've just tested some new recipes, figuring costs to the last thrifty cent. And they'll taste like a million, if you make them with Borden's!

Macaroni and Salmon Casserole

(Costs about 6½¢ a portion)

1½ cups elbow macaroni
½ teaspoon chopped onion
2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
1½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups Borden's Evaporated Milk
1 cup water
1 (7 oz.) can salmon (1½ cups, flaked)
¼ teaspoon paprika
1 cup freshly cooked or canned peas
Buttered bread crumbs

Cook macaroni in boiling, salted water until tender. Cook onion in butter until onion is slightly browned. Add flour and seasonings and blend. Add Borden's Evaporated Milk and water gradually and cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Place half of the cooked macaroni in a greased two-quart baking dish; add flaked salmon and drained peas. Pour on half the sauce. Add remainder of macaroni and sauce. Top with buttered bread crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) 30 minutes or until lightly browned on top. Serves 6 to 8.

When you measure out the Borden's Evaporated Milk, notice its creamy color, and rich, full body. Almost like cooking with cream when you use Borden's fine quality Evaporated!

Chocolate Coconut Drops

(Costs about 7¢ a dozen)

1 square unsweetened chocolate
⅔ cup Eagle Brand Magic Milk
¼ pound (1½ cups) shredded coconut

Melt chocolate in top of double boiler. Add Eagle Brand Magic Milk and shredded coconut. Mix well. Drop by spoonfuls on buttered baking sheet. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 15 minutes or until brown. Remove from pan at once. Makes 24.

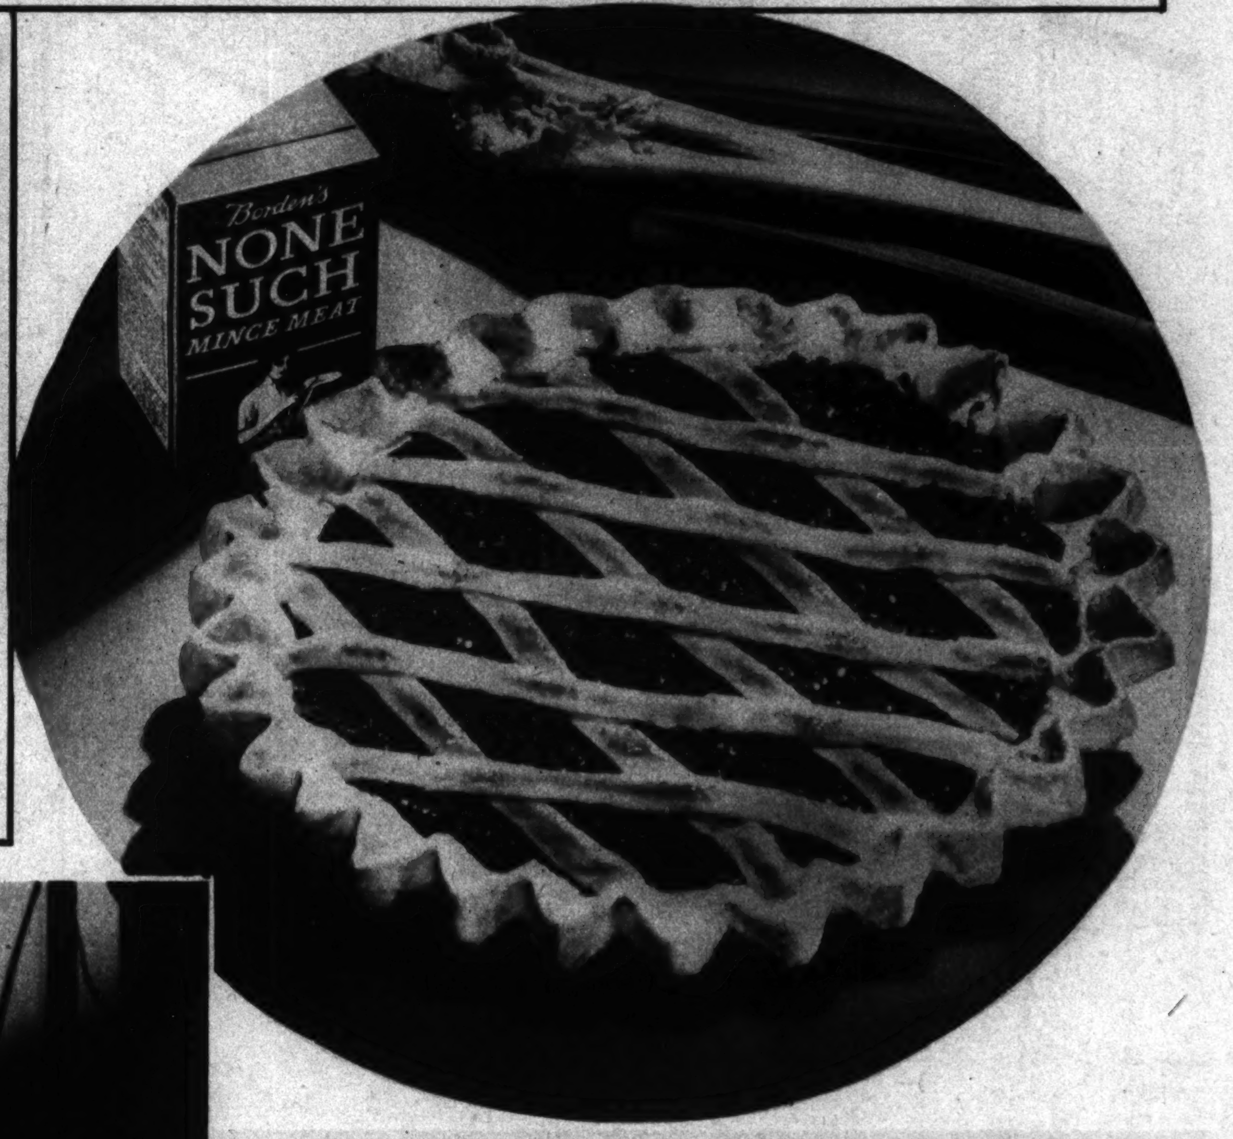
More "magic" tricks are in the Recipe Folder on the top of every can of Borden's Eagle Brand Magic Milk. Look for it—save it!



Rhubarb Mince Meat Pie

(Costs about 4¢ a portion)

1 (9 oz.) pkg. None Such Mince Meat
½ cup water
2½ cups diced fresh rhubarb
⅔ cup sugar
1 tablespoon flour
1 egg, well beaten
Unbaked pastry

Break mince meat into pieces. Add cold water. Place over heat and stir until all lumps are thoroughly broken up. Bring to brisk boil; continue boiling for 3 minutes or until mixture is practically dry. Allow to cool. Combine mince meat and rhubarb. Add sugar and flour mixed together, and egg. Line 9-inch pie plate with pastry and fill with rhubarb mixture. Arrange lattice of pastry strips across top. Moisten edge of pastry with cold water and finish with narrow strip of pastry around edge of pie. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) 15 minutes; then decrease heat to moderate (350° F.) and bake 30 minutes longer, or until filling is cooked.

It's super-luscious the way tender, young rhubarb combines with the fruits and delicate spices of None Such Mince Meat! In fact, your old favorite None Such can be used to perk up many a thrift dessert, come spring. Just read the recipes inside the red package!

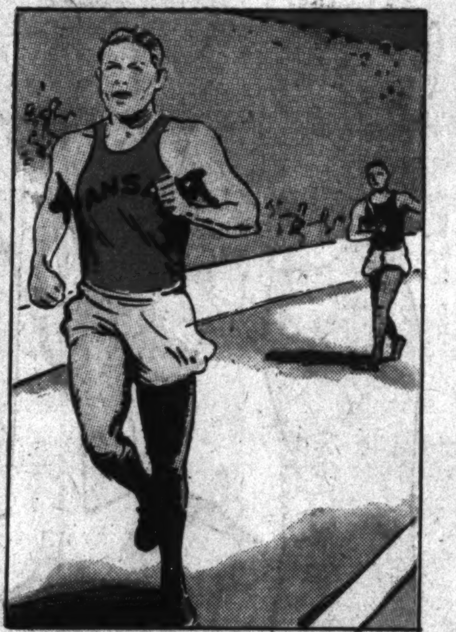
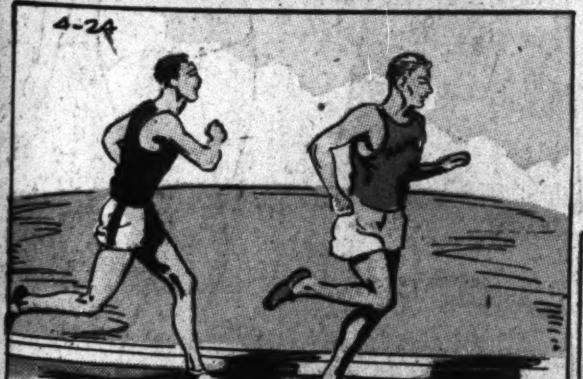
THEY'RE STILL TALKING

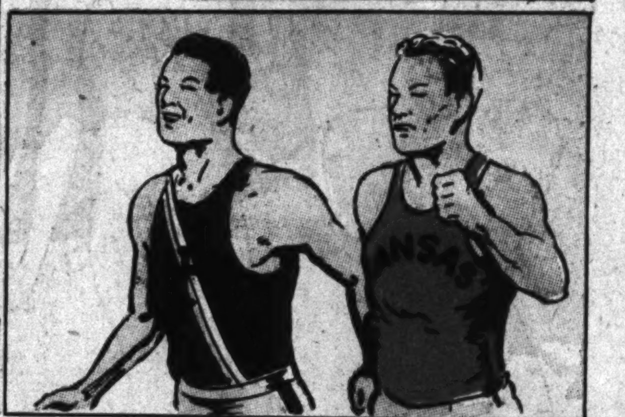
About Bonthron's Thunderbolt Finish

You are one of 17,000 shouting fans as Princeton's Bill Bonthron and the great Glenn Cunningham are running a dramatic 1500-meter classic.

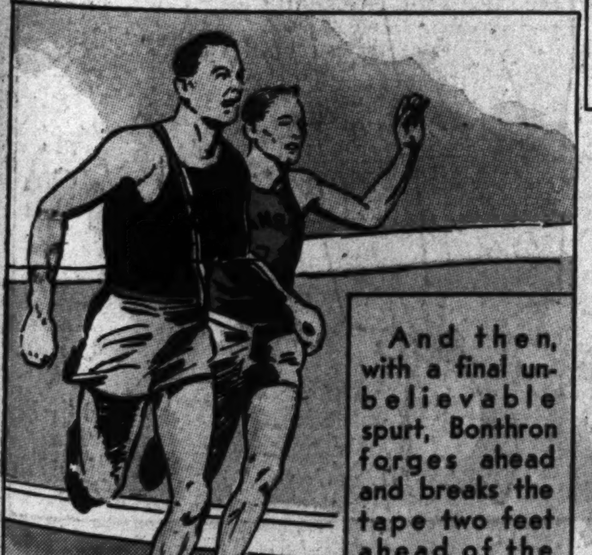




It seems inconceivable that Bonthron, 15 yards behind Cunningham, has a chance to win as he turns on the steam.



But inch by inch along the cinders Bonthron gains, keeps gaining, until he catches the flying Kansan 20 yards from the finish.



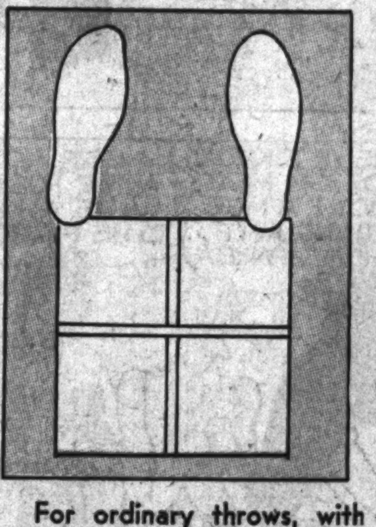
And then, with a final unbelievable spurt, Bonthron forges ahead and breaks the tape two feet ahead of the one and only Cunningham!

It was at Milwaukee, Wis., June 30, 1934, that Bill Bonthron smashed all previous records for that distance when he established the unheard of time of 3:48.8 for the race.

Baseball . . . . by NED BRANT

Playing Firstbase.

Footwook is extremely essential to the proper play of firstbase. He should be conscious at all times of the location of the bag, so that he can locate it with his foot without looking.



For ordinary throws, with plenty of time to get the runner, his heels should be at the inside corners of the sack.

On throws farther to his right, he shifts his left foot to the rightfield side of the bag and then steps far to his right with the right foot. The opposite would be true if the throw were to his left.

If the firstbaseman has to jump for the ball, he should jump so that when he comes down he will land on the base. On close plays, the firstbaseman should reach forward as far as possible toward the thrower. It may mean the decision.

Next Week. . . . . .Playing Secondbase

THAT'S WHAT HE SAID, BUT HIS PALS KNEW BETTER!
WHY SHOULD I BUY A TICKET FOR A DANCE? I DON'T LIKE GIRLS--AND THEY DON'T LIKE ME!
AW, COME OFF THAT, JIM! YOU'D RATE PLENTY WITH THE GIRLS IF YOU'D ASK THE SCHOOL DENTIST ABOUT YOUR BREATH!
JIM, MOST BAD BREATH COMES FROM LITTLE PIECES OF FOOD THAT GET STUCK BETWEEN YOUR TEETH AND DECAY THERE WHEN YOUR TEETH AREN'T CLEANED RIGHT. I ADVISE COLGATE DENTAL CREAM. ITS SPECIAL PENETRATING FOAM REMOVES THESE ODOR-BREEDING DEPOSITS. AND THAT'S WHY...
LATER—THANKS TO COLGATE'S
WELL, IF IT ISN'T JIM THE WOMAN-HATER HIMSELF!
SKIP IT, TED! THEM DAYS ARE GONE FOREVER!
NO BAD BREATH BEHIND HIS SPARKLING SMILE
...AND NO TOOTHPASTE EVER MADE MY TEETH AS BRIGHT AND CLEAN AS COLGATE'S!

COLGATE RIBBON DENTAL CREAM

COLGATE DENTAL CREAM combats bad breath. Its special penetrating foam gets into the hidden crevices between your teeth that ordinary cleansing methods fail to reach . . . emulsifies and washes away the decaying food deposits that cause most bad breath, dull, dingy teeth, and much tooth decay. Besides, Colgate's soft, safe polishing agent gently yet thoroughly cleans enamel —makes your teeth sparkle!
